BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—The renewed demands of America's war debtors for reduction of their 11½ billion dollar obligations have revived the question of the cession of British and French possessions adjacent to American territory in part payment of their borrowings.

From numerous quarters has emanated the suggestion that America might well make reduction of the 8 billions owed by Great Britain and France conditional upon cession of their possessions which are situated within the sphere of influence of continental United States, which lie athwart our trade routes and which include ports and bases constituting potential threats to our national security.

Lodge Resolution Recalled.

This occupation of American territory by European nations consists of 15 groups of possessions, comprising more than one hundred continental areas and inhabited islands any one of which is as much a potential menace to the United States and the Panama canal as was the threatened establishment by Japan of a foothold in Mexico's Lower California, which called forth the Lodge resolution in 1912. In the Lodge resolution the senate declared:

"That when any harbor or other place in the American continents is so situated that the occupation thereof, for naval or military purposes, might threaten the communications or the safety of the United States, the government of the United States cannot see without grave concern the possession of such harbor or other place by any corporation or association which has such a relation to another government, not American, as to give that government power of control over it for national purposes."

Exercise Complete Control.

The only difference between actual European and the threatened Japanese occupation of American territory is that the European powers exercise that complete and direct control of their outposts off our shores which the Lodge resolution forbids even when only indirectly exercised.

Neither at the Paris peace conference, at which the British first broached cancellation of the war debts, nor at the Washington naval arms conference, in which the United States scrapped its fleet preponderance over Britain and made naval base concessions to Japan, nor in the debt funding, in which America canceled 30 per cent of the British and 60 per cent of the French obligations, nor at the London arms conference, in which America again yielded to Britain—on none of these occasions did the United States propose cession of even the British possessions near our shores as a consideration for the concessions we made.

Never Sell, Britons Say.

When the suggestion was advanced unofficially British statesmen dismissed it with the curt comment that Britain never sells her subjects to another flag. Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to the United States a decade ago, embroidered this sentiment with the remark that "Great Britain will never sell her subjects into prohibition slavery." What he had particularly in mind was a vision of the rum producing British West Indies impoverished like the rum producing Virgin islands upon passing under the flag of prohibition America. Now, however, it looks as if the Geddes objection will be nullified at no distant date by repeal of prohibition.

MOVE TO FORCE PRESIDENT TO SIGN MEASURE

Democrats Link It to Budget Balancing.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—A squeeze play designed to force the President to sign a beer bill or take the responsibility for allowing the budget to go unbalanced pending the calling of a special session by President Elect Roosevelt was in the making today.

It called for by Democratic sponsors the play's execution almost certainly will be marked by a pyrotechnical renewal of last summer's Hoover-Garner feud over pork barrel legislation. This time the clash would revolve around an unbalanced budget and possibly farm relief. Should the oft repeated predictions that President Hoover will veto the beer bill prove correct that alone might set off the storm.

Special Session Probable.

A possibility that farm legislation might prove a major source of friction between the President and Speaker Garner developed when the latter announced his program included balancing the budget and sending farm relief and beer legislation to the White House this session. Failure to sign these bills, the speaker said, would mean an unbalanced budget and a special session of congress early in the Roosevelt administration.

As the program tentatively has been worked out, it calls for congressional approval of the beer bill and a separate revenue measure which probably would include the sales tax and a continuation of the gasoline excise tax. The two measures would be designed to raise 500 million dollars to bridge the prospective deficit of 307 million dollars and leave something to work on in event the war debt payments are not paid.

With the three bills before him, according to the sponsor of the new strategy, President Hoover would have to sign them both or accept responsibility for leaving the budget unbalanced. Close friends of the President said Mr. Hoover would be much more likely to sign a beer bill if by such a step it would balance the budget than if it represented the sole piece of revenue legislation submitted to him at this session.

No Committee Quorum.

As the absence of a quorum was blocking action by the senate judiciary committee on the Collier beer bill, Speaker John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.] and Chairman James W. Collier [Dem., Miss.] informed newspaper men that steps would be taken to balance the budget at this session. Speaker Garner said no special session would be necessary if the President signed the beer bill and an agricultural bill now being formulated. Mr. Collier said he would initiate a new revenue bill and that almost certainly it would contain a sales tax.

On neither side of the capitol was there any indication of any move to balance the budget through slashing the cost of government. That the Democrats have no such plan was indicated by Chairman Collier when he said the budget could not be balanced that way at the short session.

May Propose Sales Tax.

Chairman Collier said he expected nonpartisan support for a budget balancing measure. He added that on Jan. 3 the committee will meet to decide what form the proposed revenue bill will take.

"I would rather have the dentist pull my back teeth than to support a sales tax," Mr. Collier said dryly, "but I do not see any other possible tax. We are going to balance the budget even if we have to use a sales tax."

Action on the Collier 3.2 beer bill was blocked temporarily by the failure of sufficient senators to show up at a called meeting of the senate judiciary committee to permit the transaction of business. Lacking a quorum Chairman George W. Norris [Rad., Neb.] called another meeting for Wednesday. If a quorum is lacking at that time nothing definite on the bill can be done until after Jan. 10.

Investigate Legal Problems.

The Nebraskan also authorized Senator John J. Blaine [Rad., Wis.] and his subcommittee to go ahead and investigate the constitutional problems involved in increasing the alcoholic percentage of the Volstead act to 3.2 per cent by weight. The Blaine investigation has no official status, however, as no subcommittee can be appointed without the presence of sufficient committee members to form a quorum. Norris declined to refer the bill directly to the Blaine subcommittee.

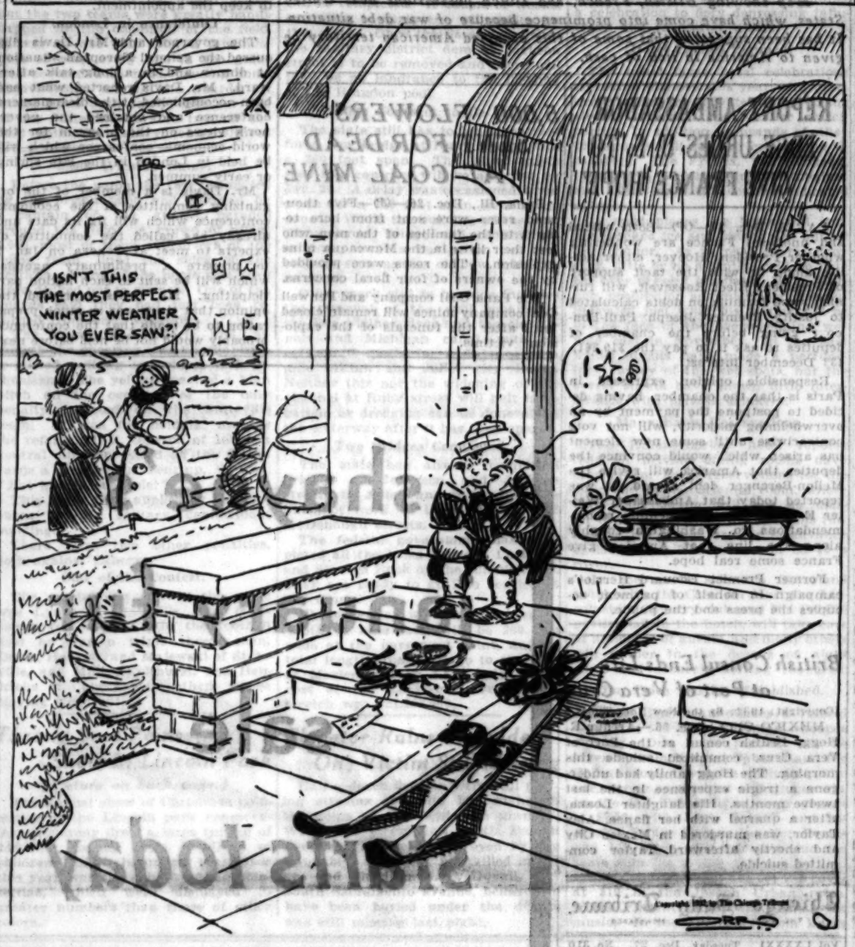
ANOTHER VICTIM OF THE WEATHER



Killing of Girl Starts Inquiry by Courtney

A suspicion that Miss Gertrude Modrow, slain 19 year old high school graduate, may have been shot to death by the Melrose Park alky peddlers because she knew too much, yesterday caused State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney to order a thorough investigation of illegal activities in the suburb.

"There have been too many killings attributed to warfare of gangs around Melrose Park," the state's attorney said. "Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief of my investigators, is working on the case now and will report tomorrow or Wednesday. Appropriate action will be taken on his findings."

Quizzed for Killing Clews.

Six men, all alleged to have been engaged in the liquor traffic around Melrose Park, were questioned yesterday at the Maywood police station by Du Page county authorities. The body of the girl was found Christmas morning near the village of Addison, in Du Page county, two miles west of the Cook county line, and the Du Page county sheriff, John Hesterman, and Police Chief R. H. Bailey of Maywood are coöperating in an investigation.

Those questioned were Louis Stacey and his three sons, Michael, Elmer, and John, owners of O-P inn at North avenue and River road, Melrose Park; James Burns, porter in the roadhouse, and Albert Strunewitz, an idle resident of Bellwood.

The Staceys are all said to be quite friendly with the De Grazio brothers, long known as the alcohol gang leaders of Melrose Park. They were called in after the investigators were told the Modrow girl had been frequently seen in the O-P inn. The six men denied ever having seen her, however, and were released.

Suspect Gang Revenge.

Despite this, the investigators all were reluctant to give up the belief that gangland had taken revenge on the girl. It was determined by Coroner Isherwood of Du Page county that the girl had not been attacked. Furthermore, it was pointed out that the killing was accomplished in the typical gang fashion—a ride in an automobile, a bullet through the head, and the body tossed by the roadside.

A single .38 caliber bullet was found in the ground near the body by a digging squad of policemen. It will be retained in the hope that ballistic science may be able to trace the killer.

Miss Modrow, known as a quiet and retiring girl, was graduated at the Proviso High school with honors in 1930. The school year book shows her to be the winner of two scholarship medals. She was described in the book with a quotation: "A maiden never bold, of spirit so still and quiet that her motion blushed at herself."

Will Question Employer.

Recently Miss Modrow had been employed as a maid in the home of C. O. Lejonstein, 1208 North Rossol avenue, Oak Park. Lejonstein and his wife are to be questioned today about her life since she went in November to work for them.

The body lay unidentified for more than a day after its discovery. Then Lieut. Paul Maggio of the Melrose Park police and Dr. Edmund Brust, president of the Melrose Park village board, told who she was. They said they had heard the description of the

RENEW SEARCH TODAY FOR 15 STILL IN PIT

Chance for Life Is Believed Gone.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

Moweaqua, Ill., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—All rescue workers were withdrawn from the Shafer mine shortly before this midnight. The south branch of the main tunnel had been thoroughly explored and no miners, dead or alive, had been discovered.

Fifteen men of the fifty-four who descended early Saturday morning still remain in the north branch of the main tunnel. The chances are a hundred to one that these men are dead, mine officials said. The task of searching for them cannot be undertaken until the chambers, which had been sealed to smother a smoldering fire, are ventilated for at least twelve hours to allow the diggers to work in safety.

"We have not given up all hope," said Glen Shafer, mine superintendent, and John Millhouse, state mine inspector. "But only a miracle could save those fifteen men left in the mine. However, miracles have happened before. In the Cherry mine disaster a group of men was brought out alive after seven days."

Thirty-nine Bodies Recovered.

Thirty-nine bodies, mangled by the force of the explosion which showered tons of rock on the workers early Saturday morning, had been hitted to the surface late this afternoon.

Hope had been held out for five of the remaining fifteen men when it was recalled that William Herriott, mine boss, had ordered three mule drivers and two timber men to proceed ahead of the main body of miners into the south tunnel on the fatal morning. But when the south tunnel had been completely explored late tonight the five men had not been found and it was concluded that they had been imprisoned with the ten others in the north branch of the tunnel.

All indications were that the fifteen men probably were suffocated or burned alive in the north tunnel. One or two may have saved themselves by seeking refuge in one of the many galleries intersecting the main tunnel. Sealing the north branch today stopped the fire and at noon tomorrow the workers will proceed to dig through the debris which fills that section.

Hope Held for Some.

The three mule drivers were young and inexperienced miners, but the two timber men were veterans who, it was hoped, might have had time to erect a barricade against the onrushing cloud of poison gas released by the explosion.

At a late hour today the workers had penetrated 1,000 feet along the south tunnel and they then had hopes of finding some one in that part of the mine.

Nerves are strained in this little town to the breaking point. Thirty-five state troopers are on constant guard, holding back the hundreds who have thronged to the scene.

At one time this morning the ventilating system which feeds air to the rescuers was damaged and the digging was halted for a time. The tension was heightened as word of the delay spread among the waiting crowds.

The north end of the mine was sealed up when it became impossible for the workers to breathe the fumes which came from the chamber, where fire had started. Dimly in the distance, through a small opening along the roof of the bore, the diggers could see the red glare of the smoldering coal and it was apparent that no man could have remained alive there.

Despair Rules Community.

Women, poorly clad, with shawls over their shoulders, their heads bare to the wintry air, stand in groups on the main street and converse in low, hopeless tones or wait in front of the town morgue where the list of recovered dead is augmented at intervals.

Relief for the families made destitute by the disaster was under way today. The community chest of $4,000 maintained by the miners who were working the mine on a coöperative basis was augmented by a gift of $1,000 donated by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, who arrived on the scene.

Mayor Charles Howard called a special meeting of town leaders to prepare for a drive for funds to care for the needy. An appeal was made to

Science Urges Electric Dollar to Help Trade

Atlantic City, N. J., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Adoption of the "electrical dollar," based on units of electrical energy as an optional standard while retaining the gold standard, was advocated here tonight before a joint session of the Econometric society and the economy section of the American Association for Advancement of Science, which opens its regular 91st winter meeting here tomorrow. It was pointed out that the electrical dollar might be an agency toward ending the slump.

The "electric currency" proposal was made before a number of leading economists by Dr. John Pease Norton, economist, of Sufield, Conn. Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale university, president of the Econometric society, presided at the meeting. Others who presented papers included Carl E. Thomas of the Federal Reserve bank of New York and H. T. Davis of the Cowles commission for economic research, Colorado Springs.

Known as Edison Dollar.

Dr. E. B. Wilson of Harvard university, Dr. Harold Hotelling of Columbia university, Dr. J. A. Shohat of the University of Pennsylvania and Dr. Nobert Wiener of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, took part in the discussion.

The new "electric dollar" would be known as the "Edison dollar," Dr. Norton declared, and would be measured in terms of kilowatt-hour units. Forty kilowatt hours would be equivalent to one "Edison dollar." Since the cost of kilowatt-hour production varies but slightly in five year periods, the new standard could be revalued but once every five years.

The kilowatt hour, Dr. Norton explained, is an electrical unit which is the same in quality and quantity everywhere in the United States.

Will Need Legislation.

To start the system into operation legislation would be needed, Dr. Norton added, "defining the standard of value within the United States as the 'electric dollar' legal tender for all transactions or contracts with durations less than five years.

"The 'electric dollar,' or the 'Edison dollar,' might be defined as forty kilowatt hours, valuing the average kilowatt hour as 2½ cents. By doing so we will have a real, useful electric measure of value, extremely uniform throughout the United States. Forty kilowatt hours by the definition of the standard of value would become for five years the 'electric dollar' in which rents, wages, and prices would be quoted. Corporations would pay wages and dividends in 'electric dollars.' The volume of currency necessary to do the country's business would come about in this way."

LOST U. S. FLYER REPORTED SAFE IN AMAZON WILDS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

RIO DE JANEIRO, Dec. 26.—The newspaper Noite today published a Havas News agency dispatch stating that the Folha do Norte confirms a report that the American aviator, Paul Redfern, who left Fort Brunswick in August, 1927, and then disappeared, has been discovered in the upper Amazon region.

The Folha's informant is Charles G. Hasler, an American engineer, who recently arrived from the hinterlands at a locality on the Tapajoz river, near the Amazonian Ford concession. According to Hasler, Redfern is now in the Rio Maior zone near Humayta village on the right shore of the Maderia river and is enjoying perfect health among the Parantui Indians.

BRITISH STEAMER SINKS; CREW OF 35 IS RESCUED

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The British freighter Newborough sank in Morant bay Saturday morning, but her crew of 35 was rescued, it was learned here definitely today. Advices reaching here were that the vessel, which was bound for Hull with a cargo of wheat from Vancouver, was a total wreck at the bottom of the bay. Her engine was smashed.

The British steamer Norseman took Capt. Smith and the crew from the ill-fated vessel. The Newborough was calling here to take on more coal.

The Newborough sent out an S O S early Saturday when south of the eastern tip of Jamaica. Her engine room was reported flooded. The Norseman is a cable ship belonging to the Western Telegraph company, Ltd., with London as her home port.

O.K.'S ALDERMAN'S TASTE IN AUTOS; STEALS HIS CAR

A man with a pistol walked into a garage at 540 East 61st street last night, pointed to a shiny automobile, and remarked to Walter A. Floyd, the colored attendant:

"I'm going to take that car."

"You can't take that one," remonstrated Floyd. "You'll get in trouble if you do. That car there belongs to Ald. John Healy."

"Tell him I like his taste in motors," remarked the robber.

Then he drove away. Floyd went in person to the home of Ald. Healy, who represents the Sixth ward and resides at 6210 Rhodes avenue, to tell him of his loss.

Insull to Fight Extradition in Athens Today

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Dec. 26.—Five judges of the Athens Court of Appeals tomorrow morning will begin the hearing of the United States' request for the extradition of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, to decide whether he will be returned to Cook county to stand trial on charges of embezzlement and grand larceny.

Prosecutor Anthony Reganakos of the Greek court will present the case for the United States on the basis of nineteen depositions on which a Cook county grand jury found a true bill against Insull on Sept. 8.

Reganakos will ask that Insull be delivered to the assistant state's attorneys, Charles Bellows and Andrew J. Vlachos, who, if the court decides Insull shall be extradited, will conduct him back to Chicago.

Public Opinion Favors Defense.

Unusual interest has been aroused among the Greek public, especially Greek legal circles, by the Insull case. There is considerable speculation as to whether Insull's defense will spring a bombshell tomorrow which may upset the prosecution's case against him.

Public opinion generally believes that Insull will not be extradited.

Insull said the documents on which his lawyers will claim he should not be extradited are not long, but that one deposition to be submitted tomorrow is of great importance and will create fireworks in the courtroom. The author and the nature of this deposition could not be learned.

Leaving Aretelon clinic for the first time since Nov. 5, Insull will appear in court at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning accompanied by a special guard which will remain with him in court. He will meet his lawyers, Cristos Ladas of Athens and Arthur Page of London, in the courtroom. Ladas will present Insull's defense after the prosecutors have finished their case.

Insull Talks of Case.

Insull tonight appeared well and completely recovered from his recent cold. He is awaiting tomorrow's legal tussle calmly, but expressed his eagerness to have the hearing concluded. He talked of his case and adventures since he fled from Paris on Oct. 4 to Athens, as he sat in his hospital room, decorated with mistletoe, holly and flowers, some of which were cabled from Chicago.

He was in high spirits over the hundred or more Christmas cards and telegrams reaching him yesterday and today.

LOCUST SWARM, 350 MILES LONG, DESTROYS CROPS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FORMOSA, Argentina, Dec. 26.—The relentless advance of a swarm of locusts, estimated to be 350 miles long and five miles wide, down the banks of the Bermejo river has caused a panic among the farmers. The insects are completely destroying the cotton, maize and tobacco crops.

Available supplies of arsenic dust and other locust killing products have been exhausted and the farmers have directed an appeal to authorities for assistance.

Crops Gone; Two End Lives.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN SALVADOR, Entre Rios, Argentina, Dec. 26.—Juan Spomer, a farmer, and his wife committed suicide by hanging this morning when they found their fruit orchard and linseed crop destroyed by a swarm of locusts. The Spomers left a letter, which said: "All our capital is gone and three years' labor lost, therefore we prefer to die rather than begin the struggle again."

Arrests of Seven Men Clears Up 18 Robberies

Seven men, arrested by the Summerdale police, last night were identified as having committed a total of eighteen robberies in the last few months. They are George Brennan, 23 years old, 1207 Leland avenue; Walter Jensen, 31 years old, 5315 Sheridan road; Cecil Ford, 30 years old, 4009 Sheridan road; Jack Lawhorn, 38 years old, 4065 Sheridan road; James Pappas, 23 years old, and Andrew Papageorge, both of 954 Edgecomb place, and Joseph Diann, 33 years old, 1819 West Adams street. sessions in close proximity to the shores of continental United States and to the Panama canal, a vital link in American national defense, are an immensely greater potential menace in time of war than they actually were demonstrated to be during our civil war.

Nassau in the Bahamas was the port in which British cargoes of supplies for the confederates were transferred from the large, deep draft ocean steamers to small, swift, shallow draft vessels more suited to the running of the blockade. Bermuda was used in the same way but to a lesser extent. Havana, then under Spanish rule, was used for launching blockade runners to gulf ports.

This network of hundreds of foreign owned islands off our coasts was a blockade runners' paradise. Whenever a Union cruiser captured a blockade runner in this region there invariably arose a controversy as to whether it had not unlawfully seized the vessel within three miles of some British islet, perhaps no more than a sand bar. As the Union could not afford to go to war with Britain it invariably backed down before the British protest.

Commander Holloway H. Frost of the United States navy estimates that the part played by these islands in the frustration of the Union blockade added a year to the civil war.

Confederate Cruisers Aided.

It was also because of the existence of these foreign possessions that the confederate cruisers were able to destroy the vast American merchant marine of that day.

Commander Frost thinks our situation today is even less favorable than it was in the civil war.

"We are definitely committed," he said, "to the retention of the Panama canal and to the security of the intercoastal trade through it. In our highly industrialized condition today we are far more dependent upon the receipt of raw materials from abroad than during the civil war. Also the submarine and airplane, if provided with bases near our coast, are weapons of attack which did not have to be considered 70 years ago. Outpost positions, therefore, are far more vital to national security than ever before.

U. S. Fortifies Pacific Bases.

"We have recognized this in the Pacific. There we have fortified Hawaii to the teeth and developed a naval base for the protection of our Pacific coast. To the southward we have done the same at the Canal Zone. But to the eastward and southeastward we find ourselves still ringed about by foreign possessions. Some of these are fortified naval bases. All are potential bases for hostile naval forces. If the countries owning them should ever be at war with us these islands may be used as bases for their own forces—surface vessels, submarines, and aircraft. If they be neutral they will be used possibly under restrictions by hostile cruisers and perhaps even submarines. In either case, their possession by European powers will react to our disadvantage."

Fire Destroys Hammond Elevator; Loss Over $25,000

Damage estimated between $25,000 and $50,000 was caused yesterday by fire which destroyed the elevator of the Nowak Milling company at Calumet avenue and the Grand Calumet river in Hammond. The entire fire fighting force of Hammond was called to the scene. The elevator, which was filled with grain, was a total loss, but nearby buildings were saved.

REPORT AMBASSADOR EDGE URGES U. S. TO GIVE FRANCE 'HOPE'

PARIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Both official and unofficial France are wondering whether President Hoover, either acting alone or with the tacit support of President Elect Roosevelt, will furnish some formula on debts calculated to justify Premier Joseph Paul-Boncour going before the chamber of deputies to ask it to pay the $19,261,437 December interest.

Responsible opinion expressed in Paris is that the chamber, having decided to postpone the payment by an overwhelming majority, will not vote contrariwise until some new element has arisen which would convince the deputies that America will revise the Mellon-Berenger debt accord. It was reported today that Ambassador Walter E. Edge has made definite recommendations to Washington roughly along the line that America give France some real hope.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot's campaign in behalf of payment occupies the press and the public.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 26.—Arthur R. Hogg, British consul at the Port of Vera Cruz, committed suicide this morning. The Hogg family had undergone a tragic experience in the last twelve months. His daughter Loana, after a quarrel with her fiance, Alex Taylor, was murdered in Mexico City and shortly afterward Taylor committed suicide.

5,000 FLOWERS SENT FOR DEAD AT COAL MINE

Pana, Ill., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Five thousand roses were sent from here tonight to the families of the men who lost their lives in the Moweaqua mine explosion. The roses were provided by the owners of four floral concerns.

The Pana Coal company and Penwell Coal company mines will remain closed until after the funerals of the explosion victims.

ARMS REDUCTION PARLEY BACKED BY ROOSEVELT

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Approval of the efforts of the American delegates to the disarmament conference to bring about an agreement to limit the weapons of offensive warfare was expressed today by Franklin D. Roosevelt, President elect, in a talk with Norman H. Davis, former undersecretary of state, a delegate to the conference.

Mr. Davis arrived at the executive mansion soon after 5 p. m., where he spent the night. The governor motored from his home at Park Hyde to keep the appointment.

Conference in London.

The governor and Mr. Davis discussed the general European situation at dinner and in a long talk afterward. Mr. Davis reported what had been accomplished at the disarmament conference and obtained the governor's views on the program for the world economic conference which will be held in London in the late spring or early summer.

Mr. Davis is a member of the organizing committee of the economic conference which will fix its date and already has called the committee of experts to meet at Geneva on Jan. 9 to prepare a preliminary agenda, which will be sent to each nation participating. Mr. Davis expressed the opinion that there was so much preparation to be made that the conference probably would not be held before next summer, which will put the responsibility for naming delegates and shaping the part the United States is to play on Mr. Roosevelt.

The war debts came up in the discussion, as Gov. Roosevelt sought information of the situation in each European country, but there was no indication that the governor would change the position he took in his recent communications with President Hoover.

Hopes for Good Results.

Mr. Davis in his talk with the governor was optimistic that the disarmament conference would produce some good results. He informed the governor that there had been a virtual agreement to limit mobile guns to those of six inch caliber and said he regarded this as a very important accomplishment, since it would prevent what military authorities term the "knockout blow" at the beginning of hostilities and greatly increase the effectiveness of the nation on the defense.

It was pointed out that without their heavy mobile artillery the Germans would have been unable to raze the forts of Liege at the beginning of the world war and that this fort and the French fortress could have made sufficient resistance against light artillery to prevent German invasion of French territory at the outset. Mr. Davis informed the governor that the French had come to realize this and that France could not continue to insist upon the limitation of the armament of Germany without some limitation of French arms in return.

SENATOR LEWIS AND WIFE ARE IN MIAMI, FLA.

Miami, Fla., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis arrived in Miami late last night with Mrs. Lewis to join the Illinois executive delegation. Although not intimated by them it is expected that important conferences will take place among Senator Lewis, Mayor Anton Cermak and Governor Elect Henry Horner.

Senator Lewis refused to discuss further the rumor that he sought a federal judgeship and would resign from the senate, asserting he had already disposed of that matter in his message to THE TRIBUNE Saturday night.

Mayor Cermak and Governor Elect Horner last night attended the Temple Israel ceremony, where Judge Horner lit the first candle in the opening of the Jewish holiday, Chanukah, over which he said a prayer in Hebrew.

3 Gasoline Stations Robbed by Bandit Gang

Attendants in three gasoline stations on the south side were robbed last night by a gang of five bandits riding in an automobile. The victims and their losses were: Leslie Jacobson, 2800 West 55th street, $160; Timothy Murray, 1958 West 51st street, $9; and Harry Riney, 1334 West 74th street, $20. Jacobson and Murray were kidnaped by the robbers, apparently to prevent them reporting the stickups to the police until all had been completed.

WOMAN OUTWITS THREE GUNMEN; SAVES $700 GEMS

Three young robbers last night entered the confectionery store of Mrs. Lucille Gauss, 608 South Tripp avenue. They forced Mrs. Gauss and two customers, Paul Brady, 3461 West Jackson boulevard, and Miss Minnie Baretta, 620 South Tripp avenue, into a room in the rear of the store. One of the men sharply reprimanded Mrs. Gauss for looking in a mirror to view him, and compelled her to face the wall.

While standing according to order, Mrs. Gauss took off two rings, valued at $700, and dropped them behind a water heater. The jewelry was not discovered by the bandits, but they escaped with $29 from the cash register.

Load of 'Christmas Gifts' Sends Possessor to Cell

Policeman Owen Small stopped John Wroble, 26 years old, 1420 West 49th street, near 48th street and Ashland avenue early yesterday, and discovered in a package which Wroble was carrying an electric train, electric clock, electric iron, and some beauty preparations. Wroble explained that they were Christmas gifts for his family. When Policeman Small discovered that the electrical articles had been taken a short time before in a burglary of a Commonwealth Edison company store at 4832 South Ashland avenue, Wroble was locked up.

ILLINOIS TIES PENNSYLVANIA ON MILLIONAIRES

Follow New York in Income Figures.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Illinois tied with Pennsylvania as the second state in the production of millionaires and multimillionaires during 1930, according to statistics of income reports issued by the bureau of internal revenue today.

New York, where much of the individual wealth of the nation is concentrated, was the first state with 66 individuals having incomes running a million dollars a year or more. Illinois and Pennsylvania each had twenty.

In 1930 there were just twice as many millionaires as for 1931, according to preliminary figures given out last week. The 1930 total was 150 and in 1931 it was 75.

Larger Fortunes Hit Hard.

The biggest mortality rate in the big income tax paying brackets came in the multimillionaire classes. In 1929 there were thirty-eight persons in the United States with incomes of $5,000,000 or more. In 1930 this number had decreased to eight. For the 1931 fiscal year there were four. In 1929 there were 234 persons enjoying annual incomes of $1,000,000 to $1,500,000. In 1930 there were eighty-six, and in 1931 the number had dropped to twenty-nine.

A glance at the official figures showing the inroads made by the depression upon the pocketbooks of the rich and the moderately well to do disclosed that the fortunes of the wealthy have shrunken at a rapid rate.

The figures show that back in 1928 the country boasted 511 persons with the million plus income. A year later the number was 513. From this record figure the number of big income taxpayers dropped to 150 in a single year.

Increase in Millionaires.

In 1914 there were 60 persons with net incomes of a million dollars or more. In 1915 there were 120. A year later the number was 206. The number of millionaires dropped the next year (1917) to 141. In 1918 there were 67, in 1919 the number was 65. In 1920 it was 33, and a year later the low point was reached with 21. The report showed 67 millionaires for 1922, 74 for 1923, 75 for 1924, 207 for 1925, 231 for 1926, and 290 for 1927.

Illinois ran far ahead of other states in TAIBUNE territory in the number of ultra-high paying income taxpayers. Michigan was second with six, one in the bracket paying on an income of between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. Wisconsin, Indiana, and Iowa each had one. Of the other states New Jersey had 12, Maryland, 4; Massachusetts, 3; California, 3, and Rhode Island and Texas each 2.

Showing for Illinois.

The records showed Illinois with 9 individuals having incomes above $1,000,000 and below $1,500,000, 7 between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, 3 between $2,000,0000 and under $3,000,000, and 1 of above $3,000,000 and under $4,000,000.

As in recent years, Illinois, New York, and Pennsylvania put up the largest share of the revenue garnered from income taxes. In Illinois, Cook county and Chicago filed the big share of the returns and paid the bulk of the money that the state turned into the federal treasury.

The 1930 individuals for the state of Illinois disclosed that out of 327,631 individual returns filed, a total of 263,763 originated in Cook county. Chicago accounted for 216,819. The net taxable income in Illinois in 1930 was one billion 631 million dollars. The tax paid was $43,731,000.

During 1930 the taxes assessed on individual incomes amounted to 477 million dollars. On corporation taxes the tax liability was 711 million dollars.

ANDREW MELLON GLAD TO QUIT PUBLIC CAREER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Andrew W. Mellon, ambassador to Great Britain, will welcome a retreat to private life after March 4.

After serving as secretary of the treasury under three Presidents and as ambassador for more than a year, he will return to Pittsburgh to spend his declining years in the quietness of his Woodland road home, he said today.

What will he do? He waved the question aside with a generality.

"Why, the things I've wanted to do." And to listening newspaper men he said it as a man speaking of an ambition about to be realized.

FAULTY TRAFFIC LIGHT CAUSES FATAL CAR CRASH

Miss Florence Schneider, 20 years old, 706 Ridgewood avenue, Highland Park, was fatally injured last night when an automobile in which she was riding collided with another at Dempster street and McCormick road, west of Evanston. She died soon afterward in the St. Francis hospital.

The accident was attributed to the fact that both east-west and north-south traffic lights at the intersection showed green at the time. According to the police the flashing mechanism was faulty. The lights were turned off after the crash.

Miss Schneider was in a car with Joseph Futter, 20 years old, 7538 Elwood avenue, a student at the University of Chicago. Futter was not seriously hurt, nor were Thomas W. Ashton, 1710 Wesley avenue, driver of the second automobile, and his wife, who was with him. Miss Schneider was the daughter of R. W. Schneider, Highland Park jeweler.

Miss Schneider's death and three others raised the 1932 Cook county motor toll to 1,099. The other victims:

Andrew Panczak, 50 years old, 1803 South 49th avenue, Cicero. Fatally injured early this morning when he was struck by a truck driven by Charles Brazda, 20 years old, of Lyons, at 52d avenue and 22d street, Cicero. Brazda took the injured man to the Frances Willard hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Jacob Klebes, 53 years old, 1308 Elmwood avenue, Evanston. Died of injuries incurred on Sunday night when his automobile struck a support of the Burlington railroad viaduct at 16th street and Western avenue.

Otto Melvin, 40 years old, 545 North Leclaire avenue. Died in the county hospital from injuries suffered on Dec. 23 when he was struck by a hit-and-run motorist at Huron and Keith streets.

THE BIG GAME AT STATEVILLE ENDS IN 0 TO 0 TIE

Prisoners' First Contest with Outsiders.

Stateville prison was the scene yesterday of the "big game" of the season for the football team of the institution. It was the first time the prison team had ever met a team of outsiders. The opponent was the town team of Cabery, Ill., a village about 25 miles southwest of Kankakee. The score was 0 to 0.

As usual in big games, all of the Stateville players who got into the game won their letters. They already have numerals. It was a hard-fought contest, unmarred by illegal plays, but the two teams were greatly handicapped by the condition of the field. It was so wet that after a few minutes of play every one in the game was covered with mud, causing some apprehension among the guards. It would have been fairly easy for one of the Stateville boys to trot off the field with the Cabery team without being recognized.

3,000 Witness Game.

Before the game the two teams, led by the prison band and escorted by a captain of the guards, paraded around the field. A crowd of about 3,000, most of them supporters of the home team, lined the sides of the gridiron. Some of the home side boys were decked out in stripes. One of the guards said they had just been returned from brief vacations.

The crowd was orderly and, although the cheering was unorganized, it lacked nothing in volume and enthusiasm. The yelling reached a high pitch on the occasion of the only penalty inflicted on the Stateville team. It was for holding, and as the referee, M. P. Gleason of Joliet, a neutral outsider, paced off the fifteen yards a great shout went up. It was, "Put him in the hole!"

There were two other penalties, both against Cabery.

Star of the Contest.

The outstanding star of the game was Lynch of Stateville, who is in prison for murder. On the football field he was a triple threat man. Davis, Hackett, and Majewski of Stateville, and Miller, Colthurst, and Hendricks of Cabery were others whose playing stood out.

PREDICT SEAWAY WILL BE READY BY END OF FEBRUARY

Work Going Ahead on Chicago-Joliet Link.

Barring delays due to severe weather, the Chicago-Joliet link of the Illinois waterway will be ready for navigation by the end of February, it was reported yesterday. With this link completed, barge navigation from Grafton on the Mississippi to Lake Michigan will be practicable.

Construction schedules at present call for the flooding of the Brandon pool below Joliet on Jan. 15. Certain odds and ends of work remain to be done there, but it is expected the channel at that point will be navigable by Feb. 1.

Work to Be Done at Joliet.

Practically all the other work to be done is along the waterway in Joliet. Bridges at Van Buren street and Ruby street must be removed before barges can pass. But the removal of the one at Van Buren street already has begun and it is expected that the tearing down of the one at Ruby street will be started before Feb. 1.

Once the Van Buren street structure is down, retaining walls in the vicinity can be completed. A couple of weeks, according to engineers, will suffice for this work. Once this is accomplished the sanitary district dam at Jackson street is to be removed and there will then be no hindrance to the flooding of the Brandon pool.

Bridge Contract to Be Let.

The state still has to let a contract for a new bridge at Ruby street, with a 200 foot span. The belief exists that this contract will be awarded by Jan. 20. A delay was occasioned when plans for a 150 foot span were abandoned. While the building of the new Ruby street bridge will require six or seven months, navigation can proceed as soon as the old low bridge is removed.

Other work still to be done includes the removal of the wall separating the Des Plaines river and the old Illinois and Michigan canal, with its earthen towpath, for a distance of a mile within the Joliet city limits. Neither this nor the widening of the channel at Ruby street will halt navigation, as dredging can be done along the waterway after it has been opened.

Two Bridges Completed.

The state has already completed bridges at Jefferson and Jackson streets in Joliet, and is nearing the finish of work on those at Cass and McDonough streets.

The federal government has completed all the locks between Lockport and Starved Rock on the Illinois river. They are ready to go into service at any time.

The waterway will have a minimum depth of nine feet, will be 200 feet wide at the narrowest point, and its total length from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico will be 1,230 miles. The cost of the Lockport-Starved Rock stretch was $27,500,000.

Elevator Ruins Smoulder On; Victim Still Missing

Half a dozen firemen were still playing streams of water last night on the ruins of the Santa Fé granary, West 28th street and South Damen avenue, which was destroyed by fire Thursday. One man was killed in the fire and Charlton H. C. Duvall, 6017 South Sacramento avenue, believed to have been buried under the debris, was still missing last night.

CITY PREPARES TO WHOOP IT UP NEW YEAR'S EVE

Night Life Centers Report Reservation Boom.

The new year will be greeted with joy and optimism, according to hotel men and night club hosts, who asserted last night that last year's 20,000 revelers will be equaled or bettered next Saturday night.

Two factors, it was explained, are responsible for the expected host of gayety seekers this year. Prices in general are down as compared with last year, with several places giving one quotation for everything from ginger ale and noise makers to early morning breakfast.

The second factor is a reaction from the depression. Hotel men say that people generally seem to be planning a celebration to defy depressing influences and to scatter gloom.

Hotel Parties Planned.

The usual large hotel celebrations are being planned this year with practically all of the private dining rooms already reserved for smaller watch parties. In addition thousands of other Chicagoans will do their celebrating in cabarets. The Frolics, the Granada, Chez Paree, Vanity Fair, the Rubaiyat and other night life centers indicated sellouts.

In most places the hosts will supply cracked ice and ginger ale, but no hard liquor. As in past years, however, little or no attention will be paid the ever present hip flask. M. L. Harney, prohibition administrator, has not indicated just what his tactics will be in the face of the overwhelming wet vote cast in November. In the past flying squads have made a perfunctory survey of the wet spots, but the arrest sheets have shown little interference with private drinkers.

Many Early Reservations.

The Knickerbocker hotel reports that all private dining rooms have been taken. Early reservations for the main ball in the Oriental room, where Half Pint Jaxon will act as master of ceremonies, with Art Lyons furnishing the music, are far in advance of last year. The price will be $5 a cover.

On the south side the Shoreland hotel, with the Casa del Mar, the Lincolnshire Country club, and Phi Psi Chi parties (all in the hotel), will take care of hundreds of guests, and many others will gather in the dozens of night clubs and cabarets dotting the area.

One Price Parties Established.

Frank Bering announces a radical change in the Hotel Sherman whoopee making. One price parties will be given both in the Bal Tabarin and the College Inn, the price including dinner, favors, souvenirs and ginger ale. In the Bal Tabarin the cover charge is $7.50 with Ivan Epinoff and his music. In the College Inn Ben Bernie and his boys will entertain for the same sum.

The Congress hotel has set the cover at $10 in the Joseph Urban room, where Vincent Lopez will furnish the music. In the Pompeian room Barry Sesnick will wield the baton for the merrymakers. In both parties the price includes dinner, favors and breakfast, if any one wants it.

25 Per Cent Increase at Drake.

The Drake reports a 25 per cent increase over last year's celebrants, according to early reservations. It is expected that about 1,600 will pay a $6 cover charge to watch the floor show and listen to the music of Clyde McCoy. The Edgewater Beach will present two orchestras, Mark Fisher's and Jack Chapman's, to the 2,000 guests in the Marine dining room and the Presidio. The cover is $5 as compared to last year's $7.50.

The Stevens and La Salle will give shows at $3, $3.50, and $4, with music by Dell Coon, Keith Beecher, and George Devron. All private dining rooms at the Morrison have been reserved. A crowd of a thousand is expected in the Terrace Gardens, where $5 a cover takes care of all but the ginger ale and cracked ice. Don Pedro will furnish the music.

The Palmer house and the Blackstone will continue their "save the furniture" program with no public parties on schedule. Reservations for private parties are up to par in both houses.

FARMERS FAVOR TAX EXEMPTION FOR IDLE LANDS

Say It Offers Means to Cut Production.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The proposal recently set forth in THE TRIBUNE to bring farm relief through state action in exempting from taxation idle or fallow farm lands gained added support from many quarters yesterday.

Many leaders in farm thought who are seeking to bring about a readjustment of agricultural production to make it conform to the demand for farm produce hailed the plan as offering distinct advantages over the various projects now being considered in Washington, all of which would require federal appropriations, taxing one group of people to aid another.

Letters from many TRIBUNE readers in the middle west declared the tax exemption plan offered the most logical and direct means of encouraging farmers to restrict production. The plan merely requires that assessors be authorized to exempt such farm land as is left entirely idle or fallow.

Favor Tax Exemption Plan.

"Sentiment from our country correspondents has been quite favorable to this new plan," said R. I. Mansfield, an official of a Chicago grain concern, who has been in touch with several hundred farmers on farm relief problems in recent weeks. "Our reports are that it is a feasible solution for a situation where a farmer is obliged to continue producing grain at less than its production cost because he must raise money to pay taxes on his land."

O. M. James, a farmer in western Nebraska, came forward with a suggestion that the plan be put into force by calling together the governors of agricultural states. Each of the states could put the plan into law by making its action contingent upon similar action of other states, he suggested.

"Our chief executives have been called together and have put through emergency matters during times of stress in unemployment or devastation," declared Mr. James. "The farmers' situation is rapidly approaching just such a crisis, and the entire nation is directly concerned in meeting it."

Offers Aid to Corn Belt.

Charles A. Wilson, president of the Chicago Live Stock exchange and owner of Iowa farm land, declared that "many parts of the corn belt would be improved" by the exemption of idle lands from taxes.

Mr. Wilson pointed out that thousands of acres of marginal land in such states as Wisconsin and the Dakotas have already been forfeited for taxes. Grass lands have returned more than corn lands this year, he said, and farmers find themselves powerless to stop producing in the face of taxes and other overhead costs. He warned against permitting the idle lands to be used for grazing purposes, which would increase cattle production.

"If the politicians who are now considering the domestic allotment scheme for farm relief could talk with actual farmers, as we do every day at the stockyards and in the country, they would get a different picture," Mr. Wilson said.

"Part of the present rush to market their stock is due to fear among stockmen that their markets will be upset by government relief schemes. If the matter could be left with each state, as the tax exemption plan proposes, the sensitive market structure for all farm products would not be upset."

Truck Gardeners Favorable.

Grain farmers were not the only ones to comment favorably on the proposal of allowing farmers to curtail their acreage voluntarily to save taxes. Truck gardeners in sections of Michigan, Indiana, and southern Illinois declare the plan would have helped them this year, when they were obliged to pay taxes and other overhead costs on hundreds of acres of vegetables that either were not marketed or brought less than the taxes and interest on investment.

The exempting of the marginal lands would perform an emergency service only while farm prices were exclusively low, it was pointed out.

"If the last three years have taught us anything," writes C. J. Classen, president of the Farmers' National company of Omaha, a concern managing several thousand acres of Nebraska and Iowa land, "it is that 'that which goes up will come down'; and we know as surely that the present subnormally low price cycle will run its course.

"Agricultural price records kept by the department of agriculture since 1866 show that the average 65-year (1866-1931) corn price is 41.9 cents per bushel; wheat, 79.3 cents, and oats, 29.9 cents a bushel."

JOBLESS 'MAGICIAN' SAYS HE KIDNAPED THE LINDBERGH BABY

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Martin Drayson, 25, homeless sleight of hand expert, who told police he was the kidnaper of the Lindbergh baby, was held in $1,000 bail today on a charge of violating the Sullivan act.

Drayson was arrested in the lobby of a midtown theater last night after he had phoned police headquarters and said he was the kidnaper. Police said they did not take his "confession" seriously.

The Sullivan law charge was based upon his possession of a revolver. He told police he had intended to commit suicide.

FLIGHT OF POUND STIRS SO. AFRICA; CABINET MEETS

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Support of former Judge Tielman Roos' plan to devaluate the South African pound grew among farmers in the Union of South Africa tonight, while rumors of an impending general election were current and the cabinet met in emergency session. The governor of the reserve bank was called into conference with Prime Minister Hertzog and N. C. Havenga, minister of finance, and all bank employes on leave were recalled.

Bankers said the unlimited sale of currency for exchange was the immediate effect of Roos' return to politics after resigning as a judge in the appellate division of the Supreme court. They said that more than $5,000,000 had left the country in the last few days.

Belief was entertained in some quarters that the government would issue an emergency decree to check the movement of South African money from the country. The cabinet members announced they would meet again tomorrow.

'DINGLEY DELL' OF PICKWICK FAME BURNS ON XMAS

(Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.)

LONDON, Dec. 26.—"Dingley Dell," legendary scene of Mr. Pickwick's amusing Christmas adventures, was devastated by fire Christmas morning. It was a large country house near Maidstone called Cobtree manor. The roof and rafters of the great hall fell a blazing mass.

Mrs. H. Tyrwhitt-Drake, the owner, aged 80, was saved by the coolness and resourcefulness of her nurse.

Incendiarism is suspected, as several other famous country homes were damaged by fire during the week-end.

Takes Gems from Vault; Loses Them to Robbers

Mrs. Sophie Minkin, 3579 Dickens avenue, took her jewelry out of a safe deposit vault to wear it to the wedding of a friend Sunday evening. Early yesterday, on the way home from the wedding, she and her husband, Joseph, owner of a delicatessen store, were held up by two men at Kimball and Barry avenues. They took Mrs. Minkin's fur coat and jewelry valued at $1,100.

COURTNEY BEGINS INQUIRY AFTER KILLING OF GIRL

victim broadcast over radio station W-G-N. Dr. Brust, who had been treating the girl—her last visit to his office was on Friday—said he believed he recognized this description as Miss Modrow's and confirmed his belief by viewing the body.

Otto Dannenberg, Oak Park fireman and a brother-in-law of Miss Modrow, also identified her. He named several young men who were friends of the girl and these also are to be questioned. Also Dannenberg is said to have mentioned her frequenting the Stacey roadhouse.

Questioning of the witnesses was done by Allen Myers of the staff of State's Attorney Reed of Du Page county and by Deputy Sheriff Arthur Bennett. State's Attorney Courtney is not directly interested in the murder case unless it is shown that the murder occurred in Cook county and the body was taken to Addison. He does wish to trace the connection between Melrose Park liquor gangsters and the long series of murders that have occurred in and near the suburb.

Scene of Many Killings.

Melrose Park has been the scene of frequent gang murders, growing out of the fact that the vicinity has for a long time been a thorn in the side of prohibition authorities. The stills of the village, housed in barns, garages and residences, have for a long time been a leading source of Chicago's bootleg liquor.

Prohibition agents made frequent and wholesale raids, but new stills were set up as fast as the old ones were discovered. In 1928 the federal grand jury indicted 101 residents of the village in a prohibition conspiracy case, among them Gus Bohlander, the village president. He was later freed, but scores of lesser defendants pleaded guilty or were convicted.

Federal agents charged at the time that stills were so numerous in the village and used so much water to cool their coils that the village pumping plant broke down from overwork, while the used mash dumped by the distillers clogged the local sewer system.

An aftermath of the conspiracy trial was the bombing on Jan. 13, 1930, of the home of Guy C. Guerine, village attorney. Guerine, it was learned at that time, feared the terroristic tactics of the alcohol gangsters too much to give federal authorities open help, but he did aid them secretly, under a pledge of their silence. A drunken prohibition agent broke the pledge in a roadhouse one night, it was reported, and the bombing followed.

About the same time Lieut. Rocco Passarelli of the Melrose Park police disappeared. Found once, he soon disappeared again, and it is now accepted in the suburb that he has been murdered by gangsters.

The De Grazio brothers, Rocco and Nick, started out as lieutenants of Al Capone in Melrose Park, and, it is said, have ruled the gang affairs of the village virtually in their own right since Capone went to prison and the syndicate which he headed began to lose power.

De Grazio Visits Police.

It was considered significant yesterday that in investigating the murder of Miss Modrow authorities fixed their headquarters in the neighboring police station at Maywood, rather than in Melrose Park itself. In the course of the investigation a messenger arrived at the Maywood station in a car bearing a license issued to another De Grazio, Andrew, of 1514 North 21st avenue, Melrose Park. He demanded to know why the Staceys were being held, but got a sharp answer from the Maywood desk sergeant and departed at once.

In recent months the "cowboys" of the Touhy gang, headed by Roger Touhy and his brothers, Thomas and Edward, and operating in the Morton Grove neighborhood, have been credited with more efficient work in putting the De Grazio gang out of business than prohibition agents have ever been able to accomplish.

The murders, early on Dec. 7, of Nicholas Maggio, a cousin of the Melrose Park police lieutenant who received the information which led to the identification, and of Anthony Persico, were laid to the Touhys. Maggio and Persico peddled alcohol for the De Grazios. Then on Dec. 16 machine gunners believed to have been Touhy's "cowboys" shot to death John Rinella, a De Grazio adherent, who ran a roadhouse north of Melrose Park.

The Touhys were also accused of the earlier murders of Elmer Russell, Freddi Giavanni, and Joseph Provenzano in beer and gambling strife northwest of Chicago, and were said to have been responsible for machine gunning George (Red) Barker, who sought to set himself up as Al Capone's successor.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt in Shanghai on Trip to See Son

SHANGHAI, Dec. 27.—[Tuesday.]—(AP)—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, who is en route to Manila to visit her son, Theodore Roosevelt Jr., governor of the Philippines, arrived on the steamer President Madison from Seattle today.

PRIMARY SYSTEM TO BE UNDER FIRE IN LEGISLATURE

Basic Reforms Sought in Election Laws.

Contemplating the opening of the 58th Illinois general assembly next month, members of both houses foresee efforts during the following six months to make sweeping changes in the election laws of the state, particularly the primary law.

Committees composed of election law experts, appointed by County Judge Jarecki and County Clerk Sweitzer, are whipping into shape a group of bills for the consolidation of 1933 elections in Cook county, but the assemblymen say the changes they hear advocated go far beyond the goal of this economy program.

Would Repeal Primary Law.

First of all, there are advocates of the repeal of the direct primary law and its replacement by a system of convention nominations. No predictions are heard that this will be accomplished at this session, but some of the members believe that radical changes in the primary law may be made and that a compromise between the primary and the convention systems may be evolved.

Chicago discussions of this sort concern chiefly the law for Cook county and gradually there seems to be developing a plan for a systematic rewriting of the statutes so far as the big county of the state is concerned.

Many Republicans are distressed over the fact that their present county committee, elected last April, is due to remain in power until a year from next April, and they believe that the time is ripe for amendments providing for the election of precinct committeemen instead of ward committeemen in Chicago.

Bosses Upset Measure.

That was the original provision of the present primary law when it was presented in 1927. It immediately met with protests from the bosses who are still in control of the county committee, their big argument being it would be impossible to hold a county convention consisting of about 3,500 precinct committeemen.

Advocates of bringing party government closer to the people now meet this opposition by a combination proposal for several changes.

They urge that the precincts be doubled in size—instead of being held at an average of 400 voters each that the precinct lines be drawn on a basis of 800 voters.

They anticipate arguments that the judges and clerks in a polling place could not handle that many voters and count and tabulate that many votes by insisting that more representative public sentiment would be recorded if the polls, instead of being closed at 5 o'clock, were kept open until 9 o'clock.

Also, they believe that fraud and error would be minimized by doing away with the counting in precincts election night and substituting counting at a central office by trained and less acutely interested employés at a central office the day after an election.

Reduction in Costs.

An additional argument they list for their plan is the economy it would bring about in election costs through a big reduction in the number of judges and clerks employed and in the number of polling places rented.

They propose that the precinct committeemen elected on this basis serve two year terms and constitute every city or county convention held during that time, and that all local nominations be made by these conventions. By this method, they say, the sentiment of the people would be as accurately presented as by the primary system, and the precinct committeeman or convention delegates would be more fully responsible to the wishes of their constituents than are the ward committeemen who now make up the primary slates.

Under such a system they propose that there shall not be more than one election a year, and at that election there shall be a separate ballot for approximately each territorial unit for which officers are being elected. In a presidential election year there would be one ballot for national offices—President, congressmen and United States senator when a senator is to be elected—a state ballot for state officers and members of the general assembly, and a city or county ballot for all local offices to be filled that year.

So far as can be learned there is not yet any organized movement behind a broad plan of this character, but wherever two or more legislators or other politicians are gathered together for a chat one or more phases of the general scheme is likely to be under discussion.

One of the suggestions heard is that the new assembly create a special commission to draft some such plan for presentation as early as possible in the session which convenes on Jan. 4.

Gets Death Threat

KING FUAD.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

CAIRO, Dec. 26.—King Fuad's life was threatened today for the first time since his ascension to the throne 15 years ago. He had been scheduled to appear at the royal school of engineering at 11 a. m. to lay the cornerstone of the new electrical laboratory, but about 6 a. m. the gardener discovered a bomb on the fence of the school director's house, adjoining the school.

The police investigation showed the bomb was filled with black and white powder, iron and gravel. That it was not intended to explode, however, but was only a threat was indicated by the fact that one side was unclosed and was covered only by a piece of cloth. The fuse was very short.

Another indication that it was intended only as a threat was a letter received by the chief of the Cairo secret service, allegedly sent by the persons who placed the bomb. The letter gave the location and description of the bomb and said it was meant only as a demonstration of protest against the present régime. It added that the senders were the same persons who placed the bomb at the residence of the British high commissioner on Dec. 10 for the same reason.

FISH IN FLORIDA WATERS SHY AT HOOVER'S HOOK

Sails On Today to Try Deep Sea Angling.

After two and a half hours of casting from a small boat near the northern Florida border he returned empty handed to the Sequoia, flagship of the presidential fishing fleet.

The chief executive tried his luck during the lone halt made today by the cruising party. Except for this stop the Hoovers and their guests pushed steadily southward from sunup until after dark, the President having determined to try deep sea fishing off southern Florida.

Fleet Makes Pretty Scene.

The seven government boats in the Hoover fishing fleet dropped anchor tonight at the mouth of the Nassau river, about a score of miles north of Jacksonville. At sunrise tomorrow the southward push will start again.

The fleet made a pretty scene tonight as it was drawn up in a rough circle near the river mouth, with the lights from scores of portholes laying silver paths across the water. The water was heavily phosphorescent and the movement of the picket boats caused flashes of light.

The President started his fishing effort, his first since an unsuccessful session last Saturday, when the Sequoia stopped to refuel at Fernandina, just south of the Florida-Georgia state line. He put off in a coast guard patrol boat and dropped his line about five and a half miles northeast of Fernandina.

Tosses Small Ones Back.

Mrs. Hoover and her five guests likewise put out in another small boat for a fishing expedition of their own, but with no more luck than was enjoyed by the chief executive.

Mrs. W. S. Whitney, president of the Fernandina Woman's club, presented the bait used today by the presidential party. Its lure, however, was limited to the landing of several small fish, which Mr. Hoover tossed back into the water.

OVER 350 KILLED DURING THREE DAY CHRISTMAS PERIOD

[By the Associated Press.]

A survey by the Associated Press last night indicated that the nation's fatalities during the three day Christmas celebration period probably would exceed the 350 mark.

Automobiles, as usual on holidays, accounted for the greatest number of deaths, but trains, poisoned liquor, fires, drownings, brawls, miscellaneous accidents, and suicides contributed to the total.

Only a fraction of the deaths, however, could be attributed directly to the yule festivities. They occurred generally under circumstances not directly connected with the holiday season.

As arranged by causes, the Associated Press table showed automobiles took at least 193 lives, while miscellaneous accidents and suicides accounted for about 105 others. Railroad trains killed 9, but firearms and poisoned liquor brought death to 37.

California, with 20 dead, led the list of states in automobile deaths, but was pressed closely by Pennsylvania and Delaware, combined, which reported 19, and Michigan with 14.

Kentucky, Texas, Pennsylvania, and Delaware contributed 21 of the total of 36 fatalities from shootings, stabbings, and other such personal violence.

There were fifteen deaths from drownings, some persons falling through the ice while skating. Fires killed eleven.

ORAL ARGUMENTS ON GAS RATES TO BE HEARD TODAY

Oral arguments in the gas rate case before the Illinois commerce commission are set for today. Assistant Commissioner Robert H. Ferrell said the present commission hopes to give a decision before it goes out of office. It was learned yesterday that some opposition has arisen to having the commission take any decisive step at this time inasmuch as any rates which it fixed may not be changed for two years.

Since the incoming governor, Henry Horner, is expected to appoint a new set of commissioners, the objectors to changing utility rates assert that this responsibility should be left for the new commission. Resolutions by the county board asking immediate steps in cutting telephone, gas, electricity, and surface and elevated line rates brought out the objections from attorneys for various local governments. They said that the city, county, and state are not prepared at this time to present their cases properly.

HE USES SAME CHRISTMAS TREE AS LAST YEAR

John Rogers, 5746 South Paulina street, used the same Christmas tree this year that he bought a year ago. When the 1931 celebration was over Rogers set the tree up in the woodshed. Then he filled a 2 quart jar with water in which he dissolved some sugar and put one end of a long lamp wick in the jar. The other end of the wick he put in a hole bored in the butt of the tree.

Working up the wick the water spread through the tree and revived several branches at the tip which had begun to turn brown and shed their needles. Today, Rogers said, the tree is as fresh as it was when he first bought it.

The tree itself is a small balsam fir about 5 feet 4 inches in height, and its fragrance fills the Rogers flat. He says he put up the tree this year in memory of his small son, who died 2 months ago. Rogers formerly was a lineman employed by the Commonwealth Edison company. He has been jobless for 10 months.

U. S. EMBASSY IN ROME MOVES TO VILLA ONCE KING'S

ROME, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The United States embassy was moved today to beautiful new quarters in a villa once the property of King Victor Emmanuel and occupied at various times by members of the royal family.

The property consists of two buildings 82 years old and 11,000 square meters of park in the center of the fashionable hotel district. It was purchased by Ambassador Garret in 1930 for $1,000,000 from the Fascist party, to which it previously had been sold by the king.

During the last two years the United States embassy and consulate have occupied rented quarters.

WAR OF PARTIES KEEPS IRELAND'S POLITICS ABOIL

Cosgravites Foresee Civil War in Near Future.

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Dec. 26.—Numerous conflicting forces are tugging at the Irish body politic, but none of them apparently desires to give the country what it badly needs, namely, a long rest from politics.

While nothing serious happens from the operations of these diverse groups many persons do not hesitate to express pessimism as to the future, envisaging a time when the posturing and make-believe of today will take on a more sinister form, and a bloody conflict will be the outcome in the near future.

Thus, in a recent speech Ernest Blythe, late minister for finance, referred to the danger of the Irish Republican army, which, since the new government came into power, had been comparatively quiet. He did not think it would remain so if President De Valera's government were defeated.

Transition Damage.

Blythe felt that in the interval between governments the I. R. A. would do much damage and certainly there would be loss of life while the country was at the mercy of the forces of disorder. He feared the I. R. A. would terrorize voters at election times. It is recalled that the I. R. A. in their weekly "An Phoblacht" continuously urged "no free speech for traitors," referring to the followers of ex-President Cosgrave.

The official journal of the Cosgrave party, "United Irishmen," appealed for a united front among all anti-government parties to take united action when the crucial moment arrives "to stop the mad career of Fianna Fail and its revolutionary allies, and remove the menace of civil war."

The same journal says, "National disaster can only be avoided by organization both for electioneering and for financial and physical defense," and further charges that De Valera is heading the country straight into bolshevist servitude. "He is proceeding along the bolshevist path as precisely as if he were getting daily orders from Moscow."

Boycott's Effect.

These expressions of opinion show the feeling as the situation stands at the moment. But, daily life of the country goes on much as usual. True, there is a certain amount of disturbance consequent on the upset of trade due to President de Valera's new high tariff policy in his economic war with Great Britain over land annuities. There is a lack of employment at the ports owing to fewer imports, and exports have greatly fallen because of the British retaliatory tariffs.

Farmers clamor that they cannot pay their rent because of the depression and the loss of the British markets. De Valera's government answered by granting bounties to exports. Relief has been afforded by the proposal that a year's land annuity payments be suspended and the amount due spread over a long period. No one suggests that these concessions are any more than temporary.

The elements of trouble are always present. The forces which the Cosgrave safety act was brought in to suppress are still in existence. Their new anti-British boycott plan is at the moment a very tangible fact.

Dump Beer in Streets.

Lorry loads of Bass' beer have been spilled in the streets, saloonkeepers have been warned not to stock it. The government says traders will be protected, but these things occur, and there are no arrests and no prosecutions.

The opposition party has prepared itself to meet the situation with an organized striking force, the Army Comrades association. The A. C. A. places itself in the hands of the government to support the law; it has in a few instances aligned itself with the Civic Guards to protect opposition meetings from I. R. A. attack. It claims more than 50,000 members and is a purely honorary and voluntary body.

Nobody knows the total number of the I. R. A. It is not large, but the personnel is very daring, and is armed. The Cosgrave government banned them, then De Valera's government released those who were imprisoned, but now De Valera finds them a highly embarrassing left wing. They seek through their newspaper to point the path which the government should go—a republic for all Ireland.

HOMELESS WAIFS IN POLAND SLEEP IN DUMP HEAPS

Hundreds Beg and Steal for a Living.

BY M. M. NOWINSKI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LODZ, Poland, Dec. 26.—The economic crisis in Poland has created an army of nomadic, starving children who thieve or beg on the streets of every city. In front of hotels, restaurants, department stores and theaters can always be seen children clothed in rags, with no shoes to fend off the cold, begging for a few pennies.

In Warsaw their number is not so great as in other cities. In the capital they are not so bold. They fear the police, accept any offer to better themselves and are willing to work. Their goal is to raise a few zloty to serve as a deposit for a bundle of newspapers which they sell in the streets.

In other cities of Poland, however, especially industrial centers such as Lodz and Bialystok, they have no hope of making money. Lodz has by far the worst conditions. It is a Polish milling city, once filled with smoking chimneys, but now almost a desert.

Sleep Under Fences.

In Lodz the homeless waifs sleep under fences, in doorways, under bridges, in cellars and under the city's old gates. In daytime they try to obtain money for food by begging, selling shoe strings or pencils, and stealing. The girls, between the ages of 11 and 13, eventually become prostitutes.

Hundreds of unfortunate children also camp and sleep in a large field used as a dump near Brzezinska street. Filth is protection against cold and the children dig themselves up to their necks in the dung for the night.

"Aristocrats" Use Shack.

The "aristocrats" have occupied an empty shack near Tramwajowa street. In this wooden structure, without a single pane in the windows, some 30 boys and girls spend their nights. The windows are covered with planks. Every crack is stuffed with rags.

There is no ventilation, and in the terrible stench of their quarters one derelict clings to another to keep warm. When the sun rises they crawl out of the place. Nobody cleans it.

Although handicaped by lack of funds, Lodz charitable institutions try to help, but with little success. The little beggars consider anybody who tries to help them an archfiend. They fight, kick and bite when stopped. It is impossible to approach them with help and advice. The links of crime have already chained them to the underworld. They prefer stealing to work, and their liberty to live a lawless existence.

They are the permanent clients of the juvenile courts. They serve their short sentences for vagrancy or theft and are free again to join their comrades. There is no immediate relief in sight, for public institutions have no funds, and the government cannot give them jobs.

CANCELS BILLS OF PATIENTS IN 'SPIRIT OF XMAS'

Fifty patients who had been treated by Dr. Jay Frederick Pitts, eye, ear and nose specialist, at 64 West Randolph street, received Christmas cards that really meant something.

"With the spirit of Christmas upon us," wrote Dr. Pitts, "I feel the urge to do something good for my fellow men. With this thought in mind, I want to start the new year by canceling in its entirety your indebtedness to me. Please consider your debt paid in full. I hope that you will find a measure of happiness in this little deed and that the New Year will bring you success and contentment."

TAXES EAT UP RELIEF CASH FOR DENMARK'S IDLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 26.—One year ago the Danish legislature granted farm and labor unions $16,500,000 as support and relief funds during the crisis. The sum was to be divided equally. The money now has been spent but hard times still weigh heavily on unemployed persons, both rural and urban.

Most of the relief funds were spent paying taxes to the state and municipal governments. So the state got nothing for its money. Therefore, when new relief appropriations will be made in the near future the government will decrease doles and claim work for the funds it provides.

Prime Minister Stauning has announced the Socialist cabinet's program to meet the crisis. He states that Denmark must issue a new loan and use the money for the benefit of the country. Accordingly, he has outlined a system of new bills calling for emergency work. It will be paid for by public authorities but will become of value to the public in two ways: by the real value of public works so built and by the moral value of the idle receiving wages and work instead of doles.

K. K. Steincke, minister of social welfare, has been appointed chairman of a council of seven members which will be nonpolitical. It will consist of experts in various branches of daily life. This council will supervise the building of harbors, roads and public buildings.

At the same time, the premier is planning a bill providing for a seven instead of an eight hour day in order to place a part of the unemployed labor within the various trades. All the trades unions are supporting the measure.

MADE IN AMERICA CLUB PLANS FOR A NATIONAL DRIVE

Members of the executive committee of the Made in America club, meeting yesterday at headquarters in the Pure Oil building, completed plans to extend its affiliation to any club, association, church, or civic group wishing to promote the movement and give help to the American idle. To extend the scope of the club to national proportions, literature, pledge cards, and automobile stickers have been made available for any interested group.

"Briefly, the purpose and objective of the club is stated in the pledge," said James W. Clark, president of the organization, after the meeting yesterday. "It says: 'I hereby pledge myself, so far as within my power, to buy only products made or grown in America, by American labor, of American materials.'"

WILLIAM A. LAFIELD, PROFESSOR AT YALE, TURNS ON GAS TO DIE

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Dr. William A. Lafield, professor of radiology at Yale university, committed suicide early today by turning on the gas in the kitchen of his apartment, sitting down, and awaiting the end.

Medical Examiner Scarborough gave a verdict of suicide, based both on his examination and on a note found in the apartment, which clearly defined Dr. Lafield's determination to end his life. Several years ago Dr. Lafield became separated from his wife, Edith, and some of his friends believe that the separation had preyed upon his mind.

NITTI TO UNDERGO OPERATION FOR BULLET REMOVAL

Frank Nitti, Capone hoodlum, continued to improve last night at the Jefferson Park hospital, where his father-in-law, Dr. Gaetano Ronga, is planning to operate for the removal of three bullets, received in a battle a week ago when he was shot by Detective Harry Lang. His condition was reported as good.

Dr. Ronga would not announce a definite date for the operation, saying he wanted Nitti to build up his resistance during several more days of rest.

Lang is recovering in the John B. Murphy hospital from the bullet wound in his arm which Nitti inflicted. A police guard is still maintained at the hospital and at Lang's home, at 1246 Independence boulevard, to protect his wife, Mrs. Sarah Lang, and son, Sidney, 15 years old.

SPANISH WRITERS AID NOTED POET DYING OF HUNGER

MADRID, Dec. 26.—(AP)—More than twenty writers and public figures today formed a national committee to relieve the poverty of Spain's noted poet and dramatist, Francesco Villaespesa, who, with his family, has been described as dying of starvation.

Villaespesa, whose works are known in Spain and in South America, a few months ago was found in a shabby apartment, his clothes in rags, and without a cent to buy food or medicine.

He was suffering from partial paralysis of the right side. A petition to the government asked for a pension or some kind of civil service post.

ICE CREAM PLANT BLAST.

New Orelans, Dec. 26.—(AP)—An explosion audible for more than a mile, followed by fire, today destroyed an ice cream manufacturing plant here. As far as could be learned no one was injured. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

FLU EPIDEMICS CALL FOR PRECAUTIONS!

A Few Simple Rules that Will Put a Person on the Side of Safety!

While it does not pay to become alarmed over Flu, it does not pay either to be careless. Many a case of Flu could have been avoided with a few simple precautions.

Here are a few rules which may be wisely followed:

Stay out of crowded, stuffy and smoky places.

Stay in the sunshine as much as you can.

Avoid coughers and sneezers.

Watch out for colds. The so-called "common cold" often paves the way for flu.

At the first sign of a cold, do something about it! One of the best things you can do is to take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine immediately. These tablets are effective because they do four important things. They open the bowels, combat the infection in the system, relieve the fever and headache and tone the entire system.

Better still, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine as a preventative of colds! A cold is easier avoided than cured. A cold anticipated is a cold thwarted. As a precautionary measure do what thousands are doing—watch your living habits and take one or two Bromo Quinine tablets every morning and night. That will keep your bowels open and combat germ attacks.

All drug stores sell Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet, the formula keeping pace with Modern Medicine. No reliable druggist will try to sell you a substitute on any pretext. As a measure of safety, get a package today and keep it handy all winter.

MIKADO OPENS DIET WITH SPEECH OF 3 SENTENCES

Japanese Budget Is Only Proposal Mentioned.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

TOKIO, Dec. 26.—In a speech of three sentences in which the budget was the only legislative proposal mentioned, Emperor Hirohito today opened the diet session. After adopting formal replies to the throne the houses of parliament will adjourn tomorrow until Jan. 24.

Although national business of highest importance, both domestic and foreign, is before the country, public attitude towards the legislature is apathetic and indifferent. It is realized that neither the case now being fought out before the league of nations nor the task to which Japan has committed herself in Manchuria, nor the economic situation at home can be much affected for better or worse by the legislators, who have been little more than spectators of events during the last 15 months.

Line of Least Resistance.

The Manchurian policy has been irrevocably set by the Manchukuo protocol, while economic developments are following the line of least resistance opened by currency depreciation.

The only question the session can decide is whether the present mixed cabinet will survive or be overthrown by the Seiyukai party, whose members are increasingly disgruntled at being deprived of office and the sweets thereof despite their unexampled majority.

If they could be certain Premier Saito's exit would mean a Seiyukai premier's entrance they would carry a nonconfidence resolution without hesitation, but in the meantime they are deterred from action by grave doubts whether Kisibro Suzuki would succeed Saito.

Plays Careful Hand.

The army and the Nationalists are still hostile to party government, and the emperor's highest advisers would oppose any appointment which would create discord. This uncertainty is the governing factor of the situation and until it disappears the Seiyukai leaders will hesitate to force the issue.

Premier Saito on his part plays a careful hand. His policy shows he considers the emergency which called him from retirement is one which can best be met by a minimum of legislative activity. He will devote the session mainly to passing the budget which, being a compromise measure, is substantially accepted by both parties. Korekiyo Takahashi, finance minister, has announced his intention to ask power to control the exchanges, but has not indicated the method of control he proposes to adopt. The flight of capital takes the form of export of goods, the value of which is left abroad to cover purchases of raw materials. How this can be checked unless export trade is controlled is not clear.

Depreciated the Yen.

Takahashi depreciated the yen in order to stimulate the export trade and any measure which would restrict exports will appear to deprive the country of the advantages it obtained by going off the gold standard.

The budget and exchange control bill are the only two measures which will require the vote of the houses.

St. Louis Dentist Who Slew Aged Woman Found Suicide

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Dr. Squire Pomeroy Bevier, sought since last Friday for the slaying of his patient, Mrs. Josephine M. Elder, 71, slipped into the garage back of his home here early today and killed himself.

Mrs. Elder, mother of former Missouri Supreme Court Judge Conway Elder, was killed with a mallet Thursday in Dr. Bevier's office, where she had gone for dental treatment.

The sixty year old dentist, for whom police throughout the nation were searching, entered the garage unnoticed by a policeman stationed on the premises.

Climbing into the tonneau of an automobile the fugitive sent a bullet through his heart from a .32 caliber revolver. Powder burns indicated that he had pressed the muzzle against his flesh, muffling the report with his overcoat.

Body Found in Garage.

The body was found this morning by a patrolman who, after relieving another officer a short time earlier, noticed that the garage door, which previously had been open, was closed and bolted on the inside.

On the automobile seat beside the body was a thirteen page penciled note, written in an incoherent style, explaining the murder of Mrs. Elder and reviewing the failure of the dentist's first marriage which terminated in divorce, his quarrels with his son and daughter by that marriage, and his professional troubles in which Mrs. Elder was alleged to have had a part.

The statement told of Dr. Bevier's flight following a hurried visit to his home Thursday noon after he had killed Mrs. Elder at his office that morning.

Tells of Brief Flight.

He then walked to his home, the statement said, to the Meramec river, eight miles south of the southern city limits of St. Louis, and there found a vacant clubhouse which was unlocked. He dined on stale bread and cold coffee he found in the clubhouse and then se' up a cot on which he first intended to shoot himself.

Of Mrs. Elder he wrote: "This woman confessed [the man's name] sent her. Worried me for a year. Made me fix her teeth over four times. Paid a part at start, then said she did not want them and I must pay back her money and all her car fare. I became mad, choked her. I became wild—you know the rest."

Dr. Bevier was graduated from the American College of Dental Surgery at Chicago and was admitted to practice in Missouri in 1905.

BOY EXTORTIONER FACES TRIAL ON FEDERAL CHARGE

The federal government yesterday entered the case against Joseph White, 18 years old, of Crystal Lake, confessed writer of three extortion letters to Mrs. Rose Kellogg, wealthy widow of Charles Watson Kellogg, Chicago attorney.

Frank Davis of the postal inspectors' office in Chicago asked Chief Deputy Sheriff Harold Reese of McHenry county to turn White over to the federal authorities here for prosecution under the new law, which makes it a felony to send threatening letters through the mails. Reese referred Davis to State's Attorney V. S. Rumley of McHenry county, who arranged a conference for today at Woodstock, the county seat.

White was arrested last Saturday night as he picked up a decoy package, supposedly containing $5,000. He confessed sending three letters to the Crystal Lake home of Mrs. Kellogg, in each of which he demanded $5,000 and threatened death to Mrs. Kellogg if she refused his demand. The letters, received on Dec. 8, Dec. 13, and Dec. 23, said machine guns would be used to carry out the death threat.

KILLED IN FALL FROM CAR.

Thomas Daley, 150 West 81st street, was fatally injured last night when he fell from a car which he had been cleaning in the surface lines carhouse at East 38th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

RUSSIA SLOWS UP INDUSTRIAL PACE; NO NEW PROJECTS

State's Capital Investment Reduced for '33.

MOSCOW, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Considerable easing of the present pace of industrial construction in the soviet union beginning with the advent of the second five year plan was seen today in an announcement that the state's capital investment in all Socialist economy in 1933 will be more than 3 billion rubles less than in 1932. (The nominal value of the ruble is 51.5 cents.)

The announcement was made by D. G. Sulimoff, president of the council of people's commissars of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic, reporting that that body in the 1933 plan placed total capital investments for the whole union at 18 billion rubles, compared with 21,100,000,000 rubles in the present year and 16,100,000,000 rubles in 1931.

Largest of Seven Republics.

The Russian Socialist Federated Soviet Republic is the largest of the soviet's seven republics, constituting 92.7 per cent of the entire union and approximately 70 per cent of the population. In it are located most of the country's basic industries.

Sulimoff's report is significant and seems to bear out the trend already noted toward a general slowing up of feverish industrial efforts, in that, while it is declared that coal, metallurgy, machine building, transport, and the socialization of agriculture will continue to be emphasized in 1933, it does not mention any new large scale construction such as characterized the first five year plan now ending.

Instead, major attention is expected to be devoted to the development of the present heavy industrial plants in an effort to increase productivity and reduce costs, at the same time accentuating correspondingly the development of light industry, or the production of consumers' goods.

To Perfect Structure.

In other words, the theory here now is that the first five year plan has created an industrial base and the time has come to perfect this structure rather than to continue frenzied efforts to build up new industrial giants.

Some heavy industrial aims for 1933 are increases compared with 1932—45 per cent for pig iron production, 46 per cent for rolled steel, 29 per cent for coal, 34 per cent for tractors, and 60 per cent for automobiles.

To inaugurate better living standards the capital investment in light industry will be doubled in 1933 compared with this year, Sulimoff declared, adding that much effort would be centered on the development of local industries heretofore neglected and subordinated to the larger task of creating the means of production.

The central executive committee of the Russian Socialist Federated Soviet republic meets Jan. 12 to adopt a specific plan for 1933. The all-union central executive committee, or the Red parliament, originally summoned into annual session Jan. 10 to adopt a general plan for the country as a whole, now has been postponed until Jan. 20.

CHICAGO NEGRO WINS $1 DAMAGE VERDICT IN HUMILIATION SUIT

Centerville, Mich., Dec. 26.—[Special.]—A jury in St. Joseph Circuit court here awarded Alexander L. Jackson, wealthy Chicago Negro, a graduate of Harvard, $1 for "humiliation" suffered in 1930. Jackson sued Arthur Thompson, resort owner at Fisher lake, near here, for $2,500.

The Chicago resident stated that during July while his wife and child were in swimming in the lake a card which read "we cater to whites only" was placed on his automobile. The handwriting was identified as that of Thompson.

Jackson declared that the amount of money asked in the suit was of a secondary nature and all he wanted was vindication for the humiliation resulting.

AL JOLSON HAS ATTACK OF FLU; MAY CANCEL TOUR

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Al Jolson, the "mammy" singer, is suffering from an attack of flu in his suite at the Sherry-Netherland. He got out of a sick bed against the advice of his physician last Friday night to make a radio broadcast, it became known today.

The star first became ill last Wednesday and, according to his physician, had a temperature of 103 when he dressed to go to the broadcasting studio. Dr. Evan Evans, Jolson's doctor, said last night the singer was still "pretty sick."

Jolson expects to cancel a trip to Chicago for a personal appearance tour unless his condition improves.

Yellow Cab
Trying to make a living is another "Noble Experiment"
Just look at these figures and weep:
For the year 1931, YELLOW CAB paid in taxes the astonishing sum of $498,541.60, or only a thousand or so less than half a million dollars.
Of this vast sum, we paid $232,589.70 for gas tax alone. And now comes the Government with a gas and oil tax peculiarly its own, which must be absorbed in 1932. Can you beat it?
During all the time that we have been paying these exorbitant taxes, our rate of fare has remained as it has been for several years, and our service has steadily improved.
Contrast this condition with that of other systems of local transportation which have been permitted to advance their rates to the highest in history and which have at the same time cut their service down.
For heaven's sake, what do you expect YELLOW CAB to do — carry on this tremendous load in addition to its own operating and maintenance expenses, and at the same time lower its rates of fare?
Two cents per passenger is YELLOW CAB'S net earning for dividends and surplus needed for public protection.
WE have come to the conclusion that trying to make a living is just another "noble experiment."

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

A SARGENT COMMITTEE FOR WASHINGTON.

The success which has thus far attended the efforts of the Sargent committee to reduce the expenditures of the local governments in Chicago has its parallels in New York, Philadelphia, Charleston, and many other cities. There, as here, the citizens and taxpayers are forcing reductions in budgets. In general it can be said that the movement for economy in government has been most successful in the sphere of local government and least successful in the sphere of national government.

There are many reasons for this, not least of which is the physical remoteness of Washington from the people of the United States. The members of congress are not continually reminded, as are the officials of the local governments, of the hardships which the American people are undergoing today. In a city of political job holders, a city whose prosperity has been maintained by fantastic expenditures for public building, the representatives of the people lose all sense of the state of the nation. They may have been awakened momentarily by the political hurricane which blew a powerful party out of office but cannot bring themselves to believe that the government in Washington is in large measure responsible for what has been going on.

It becomes increasingly clear that neither the department and bureau heads nor the members of the house and senate will attack the federal budget as it should be attacked until an irresistible pressure, such as the Sargent committee has exerted in Chicago, is brought to bear. Men of affairs throughout the country can no longer say they cannot spare the time required to impress Washington with the need for economy. The fact is that they cannot afford not to. The wholesale wrecking of productive enterprises throughout the land by excessive taxation must be stopped. If it takes time and organization to achieve economy, the time must be given. The alternative is a ruin which will engulf even the giants of American industry.

American business, large and small, must organize for the fight. A start has been made here and there, but it is only a start. The spearhead of the organization should be a small committee organized on the plan of the Sargent committee from among the most forceful men of the nation, a committee armed with facts, a committee which will command attention because of its distinguished personnel and command action because of the unassailable logic of its argument.

The sooner such a committee is formed and goes to work, the sooner the American people can expect relief from the contemporary nightmare.

THE BEER BILL IN THE SENATE.

Senator Bingham's attempt to speed the beer bill failed, as had been indicated in advance. The Democrats in the senate were not prepared to be hustled by a Republican who had tried all spring to get beer out of the Volstead act and who had been really embarrassing about it after the Democratic convention pledged the party's congressmen to immediate beer. Mr. Bingham was on sound ground when he argued that there was nothing relevant to say about the bill. It required a minimum of discussion, and the senate's best service would be in a roll call. That was not the way it was to be done. Mr. Bingham was not to be allowed in the picture.

Mr. Garner in the house proved that, at least since the election, immediate retains some of its meaning, but in the other chamber it must be related to the habits of the Conscript Fathers. Except for the fact that the senators did not propose that Mr. Bingham should hurry them the vote on the question presented Friday is thought to be meaningless. The Democratic promise is out and Republicans will offer them enough help to make it good. If pledges are honored, as the country expects them to be, the beer bill will be given its day in committee without further stalling and will be passed. Then the nation will feel that it has broken through one section at least of the intolerable circle which encompasses it.

CRITICISM AND SUPPRESSION.

J. J. Harpell, owner of the Montreal Journal of Commerce, has been found guilty of criminally libeling T. B. Macaulay, president of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada. The jury recommended leniency. Harpell's defense included justification in public service. He had accused Macaulay of being guilty of practices detrimental to the interest of the policyholders. His language was actionable and the jury found that he had not substantiated his charges.

Wherever the newspapers of a community fail in their responsibility or are controlled or intimidated by law and authority it will be found that criticism will become more virulent in the form in which it does break out. Minnesota, among American states, has had experience with the bootleg consequences of trying to restrict the freedom of the press for the protection of officialdom. And so has the capital, Washington. A conspiracy of silence which includes responsible newspapers or an intimidation to which they yield will produce a crop of less responsible and more violent criticism and exposure.

Suppression of facts when publication is in public interest and prevented for special privilege never gets what it seeks. Harpell went to extremes in attacking Macaulay because criticism of influential men in Canada is not regarded as desirable. Men at the top are protected by legalities and proprieties which are not always in the public interest. Minnesota has tried gag laws and finds that they develop more violence and less responsibility in pamphleteering.

Washington, under the dominance of the foreign embassies in this as in many things, sowed an atmosphere of scandalum magnatum and lese majesty and reaped the Mirror.

LA SALLE STREET NEEDS A VIGILANCE COMMITTEE.

The receivership of the Illinois Life Insurance company and the disclosures of how its business was handled have led, as might have been expected, to demands for changes in the laws governing insurance companies in this state. That the code should be revised may well be true; but the fact should not be overlooked that the best code in the world will not prevent abuses. The only approximate guarantee of sound management of any trust fund is the character of the trustee.

Chicago has suffered greatly from the indifference of the sound men in the financial community to the self-appointment of irresponsibles to important fiduciary positions. What is needed even more than stricter laws is a more rigid moral censorship of those intrusted with other people's money. It is probably well within the truth to say that a dozen men in Chicago, if they wish to do so, could constitute themselves a sort of vigilance committee in such matters. If they are not able to drive from town the untrustworthy with ambitions to play a major rôle in finance, they can, at least, minimize the injury which the irresponsible can do.

The accumulated wealth of this community has been dissipated in recent years in a manner which is at once shameful and dangerous for the future of the city as an economic entity and as a financial center. Men who regarded themselves as honorable investment bankers have lent the public's money freely to promoters of dubious character. Moral risks were minimized. A briber had unlimited credit. Men so illiterate that they could scarcely sign their names received advances of hundreds of thousands of dollars, though it was obvious that with their limitations they could have made no adequate analysis of their projects. The public, to be sure, was foolhardy, but that does not excuse those investment houses and other financial institutions which underwrote the despoiling of the public. And it does not excuse men who were in a position to know what was going on and did nothing to prevent it.

UNCLE SAM AS LENDER.

The senate has passed the Norbeck bill giving the secretary of agriculture full power to "collect, extend, adjust, or compromise" some 20 million dollars of loans to farmers. These loans were made to enable the farmers to obtain seed and put in their crops and were secured principally by liens on the crop to be produced. Something more than half of the loans made in recent years have been repaid and the rest are in various stages of default.

No gift of prophecy is required to foresee that more loans will be compromised than adjusted, more will be adjusted than extended, and more will be extended than collected. It was apparent from the first that these loans were loans only in name. In fact, they were subsidies and, like all political subsidies, were subject to the characteristic abuses. A government which must depend for political support upon those to whom it has loaned money is not likely to insist too strenuously upon collection.

These were, of course, peculiarly vicious subsidies in that they encouraged production precisely at the moment when lessened production was the great need of American agriculture. A far more substantial benefit to agriculture is to be obtained from the proposal recently put forward in these columns, to grant tax exemption on acres which farmers permit to remain fallow. If that is a subsidy it has the advantage of not being disguised as something that it is not; and it has the further advantage of being a bonus to the farmer to encourage him to do what he ought to do in his own interest—that is, to reduce his output to conform with the demand.

Editorial of the Day

THE BIG TAX BURDEN IS LOCAL.

[Kansas City Star.]

How the major tax savings to be effected in Missouri must come from local government is shown by Lieut. Gov. Edward H. Winter. About "fifty-seven per cent of all the tax load comes from local taxes," he explains. State taxes account for about 16 per cent, and federal taxes for the remainder. Missouri must look to its representatives at Washington when it comes to the less than one-third paid to the national government. Economy must be expected from the state government, but it is obvious that the big end of the tax burden that invites especial attention is that of the counties and other local subdivisions.

Mr. Winter suggests a saving of thousands of dollars annually in many communities by the transfer of all local road building to the state highway department. That is one of the things done in North Carolina. It might be expedient for Missouri. Again, there is the suggestion of district jails to serve groups of four to six counties. The idea could be extended to include other county institutions and some of the county officers. Virginia, for example, has adopted the plan of regional almshouses or county homes, each serving a half dozen or more counties. The same state, with others, is at work on a simplified plan of county government, with big savings as a prospect.

These are indications of the broad lines of action that might be followed in Missouri. The point is that local government, especially that of counties, is obsolete and unduly expensive and needs to be thoroughly modernized. The whole trend of present day thought pertaining to local economies is in that direction.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

ADD MOST EMBARRASSING MOMENTS! "I went into a bookstore to buy some school books for Junior," writes H. K. D., "and had just picked up one of the books I wanted and was standing there with it in my hand when an old family friend dropped in and said rather sternly: 'I hope you are a hundred per cent patriotic and that you are heeding the call, "Buy American."' And then he reached over and took the book I had just bought out of my hands, gave it one glance and then slammed it back on the counter. Giving me a horrified and utterly disgusted look he strode out of the store and I knew he would never speak to me again. Oh, my dear! I could have gone through the floor. Also you could have knocked me down with a feather. I was never so embarrassed in my life. That book was an English grammar!"

EXPLORERS.

Seeking escape from innocence and night,
We sail at dawn; buoyant our youthful hearts;
Our prows are turned toward earth's remotest parts;
We have no fear because our hearts are light.
Onward we speed, eager for each strange sight;
Wonderful isles, purple and gold and chrome;
Shimmering dawns, noons like a silver dome,
Sunsets aflame, star-fields of clustered white.

But youth must pass; over our ravished eyes
Hovers a mist; it is the mist of years.
Morning, alas! loses its glad surprise.
Mist turns to rain—we reach the zone of tears.
We falter now, who once were boldly wise;
We long for home, who once were pioneers.

CABLES FROM PARIS narrate with awe that Denys Puech, described as a world famous sculptor, has just completed designing and carving his own tomb. Denys may create quite a stir in Paris with stories of his waiting tomb, but if he ever comes over here it's a cinch no hotel clerk will let him have a room higher than the first floor.

Ought to Work Both Ways.

Sir: I met a school teacher on the corner and I asked her what she would do if I gave her a string of pearls for Christmas. She said she would make a pearl stew and see if she could find an oyster in it. E. N. F.

"I WAS TERRIBLY DISAPPOINTED," the man in front of us on the bus was saying to his friend yesterday. "I had expected the 'beer for Christmas' thing would go through and that at my Christmas eve party I could roll a keg of it into the room and fill the foaming steins." "Yes," said the other man, "I guess it was a big disappointment to everybody. So you had a dry party?" "Well," said the first man, "not exactly dry because of course we had cocktails and high balls and Tom and Jerrys and mint juleps and plenty of wine and synthetic beer. Then we had a couple of cases of Canadian rye and a half dozen bottles of Bacardi rum and two dozen bottles of gin and a dozen bottles of brandy." "Then I don't see that you needed any legal beer," observed the friend. "I didn't exactly need it," said the man. "I just wanted it there along with all the bootleg stuff so's I could have the satisfaction of bein' a good law abiding citizen."

DALE FISHER.

THE ANTI-SUPERSTITION club of Chicago is out to bring together as many cross eyed red headed girls on the 13th of January as possible so as to kill the notion that seeing three red headed cross eyed gals in one day will be absolutely wrecked. And seeing them on the fatal 13th day of the month and getting out alive ought to prove even to the most confirmed carrier of the hind leg of a graveyard rabbit that superstition is the boloney. However, we shall always cling to a rabid reluctance to walking under a ladder on the 13th day of the month or any other day if there is a cross eyed red headed painter up on the top of the ladder. Especially if he weighs two hundred and fifty pounds and the ladder is old and rickety. And, anyhow, if we did go under it, while we're not at all superstitious, dinged if we wouldn't keep our fingers crossed.

Still I'm not a beggar
Waiting for a crumb,
Why should I ask pity
After love is numb?

There are other gallants
I'll love just as well;
Listen, dear and faithless,
Run along to hell!

THE COMFORT ZONE.

MUCH the most important consideration in an artificially heated house is comfort. The human body is covered by many square inches of skin and each of these square inches is chock-full of nerves of sensation registering heat and cold, ease and disease, and, in addition, serving the complex purposes which we group together under the head of touch.

These nerve endings are comparable in all general ways with the delicate nerve endings in the eye on which sight depends, those in the ear through which we hear, and those in the nose and mouth that register smell and taste.

These skin nerve endings do work that is vitally necessary for our well-being. Air, to be right, must first of all make a favorable impression on those nerve endings. We know that it should also be pure, low in dirt and bacteria and good in chemical quality, but these properties are of academic interest. If the air does not measure up to standard as regards these qualities we vaguely recognize that it may do us harm tomorrow or next year. If it is wrong, as shown by the reaction of the skin nerve endings, we get fighting mad on the spot and hunt up the janitor and threaten to have him fired. Discomfort, registering through these nerves, leads to direct action. If it is wrong in dust, dirt, and chemical constitution we write to the health department and then sit back and await protection.

About twenty years ago Prof. J. W. Shepherd of Chicago Teachers' college, serving as a member of the Chicago commission on ventilation, advised what he termed the comfort zone. This was a zone in which there were certain combinations of temperature and humidity which caused the air of a heated room to be regarded as comfortable. In this comfort zone the temperature allowable was influenced greatly by the relative humidity or percentage of saturation of the air with moisture. If the relative humidity is 30 the temperature of the comfort zone ranges from 69 to 73.

The line that centers that zone, the combination which the majority of people tested regarded as perfect, crossed the 30 per cent relative humidity line at the line for temperature 71. In order that there should be perfect comfort with a humidity of 78, the temperature had to be as low as 60. The zone of reasonable comfort at relative humidity 7. extended from temperature 54 to 65. When the air was drier the range of temperature permitted by comfort requirements was less than it was when the air contained more water.

Room air was reported as being unpleasantly cool at 69 degrees if the humidity was 30 per cent, but it could be dropped to 55 provided a sufficient amount of water was added. Below 55 it was reported as being too cold if the water content was around 30, though not so at 55 if the moisture was over 70.

CHANGE OF DIET.

M. N. writes: I suffered from awful bilious attacks for years, with headache and vomiting once a month or every six weeks. I could not eat for two or three days after an attack. I went through a clinic and had a gall bladder test made. They told me to change my diet, cut out the roughage such as bran, psyllium seed, raw fruits, and vegetables for a while, and to eat a bland diet. I did this and have had only two attacks in the last eight months, and these were very mild. I now eat raw fruits and salads, but moderately, and no bran or cathartics of any kind.

ABOUT LINCOLN'S CASE.

A. H. B., M. D., writes: I do not agree with the opinion that Abraham Lincoln was of a pituitary type. In full length statues his arms and legs are not disproportionate to his trunk length. The vital points are that the molds of his hands and bust, made by Volk, are of necessity accurate. From these have been taken thousands of busts and statues. These do not represent his head as small, or his hands as large. In fact, his hands are remarkably small for an ordinary sized man. These busts and statues, following mask of his face, show no evidence of large or coarse facial bones. All of these physical findings, combined with the intellectual grasp and marvelous reasoning powers in early manhood, rule out any trace of acromegaly in any stage of his early life development.

REPLY.

The evidence is very contradictory. Many who knew Lincoln well wrote of his hands head, and facial bones as being other than you describe. To illustrate how contradictory the record is: Most of those who knew Mr. Lincoln wrote of his poor beard and his sallow skin. Yet one biographer who knew him, and who had daily contact with him, told me he had a good complexion, that he had to shave every day before he wore a beard, and that he had a good beard.

NOT SURE SIGN.

Mrs. E. J. writes: 1. I have heard that cupped nipples are a sure sign of cancer. Is this true?

2. If the nipples at times are pressed in but not cupped, is there danger?

3. I would like to get a good book on cancer. Can you suggest any?

REPLY.

1. No.

2. Possibly, but not probable. Retracted, or inverted, nipples is caused by chronic inflammation of the glands, former mammary abscess, any kind of tumor including cancer, and congenital conditions. A cancer that causes retraction of the nipple is generally advanced and easily diagnosible by other signs.

3. Many state health departments supply booklets on the subject. Local cancer societies either have their own booklets for distribution, or else they get those of the national society. Among the good books on the subject is "Cancer and the Public," by Childs (E. P. Dutton).

REPAIRS ORDERED.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—[Friend of the People.]—Is it possible to compel the owner of a building in our block to repair the steps leading to the store which he operates? It has proven quite dangerous, as several people have fallen, and even though the dealer has called it to the landlord's attention, nothing is done about it. It becomes more dangerous each day. E. K.

Report is made to this department that the steps referred to were found to be in an unsafe condition and accordingly the owner has been notified to repair and put steps in good and safe condition.

RECEIVERS.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. When a receiver is appointed for a building, how long has he control over the building? 2. From the time of the sale until fifteen months later, during which time the owner has a chance to redeem the building, who should have possession of the building? M. H.

1. Until the court removes him, which in turn would depend upon the facts on which the order for the appointment was based.

2. If a receiver is appointed in connection with foreclosure proceedings, then presumably he will remain in control during the fifteen months.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

JUDGMENT NOTE.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is a judgment note for a certain number of years, bearing interest, and made out and given by one party to another, as valuable as a first mortgage if properly recorded? 2. What papers or security should a party secure who furnishes the money for a first mortgage? 3. [a] Should I accept a mortgage from A if his abstract is not brought up to date? [b] Is it necessary for owner to have an abstract? 4. What per cent is an executor of a will allowed when there is also an executrix? N. C. S.

1. An unsecured note made by a solvent person may be more valuable than a note made by an insolvent person secured by inadequate collateral, but in general a judgment note is an unsecured obligation, and in this sense is not as good as a secured obligation. If judgment is confessed on the note while the maker's title to real estate is clear then the holder can secure a lien analogous to a mortgage lien.

2. The mortgage note and coupons, trust deed, abstract, Torrens certificate or guaranty policy, and fire insurance policies.

3. [a] No. [b] He should have an abstract, Torrens certificate, or guaranty policy

4. We see no reason why they should not divide equally. A rough average allowance for executor's fee is 4 per cent. This would mean that each would get 2 per cent.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 27, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Germany's formal proposal of a conference with the entente allies, in replying to President Wilson's peace note, will be followed, administration officials expected, by the confidential communication of Berlin's views of peace terms to the American government. Mr. Gerard, the American ambassador to Germany, has been invited to confer again with the kaiser. The administration believes that the emperor will acquaint the American envoy fully with his views of the conditions upon which Germany would be willing to end the war. The ambassador will cable these views to Washington. Then if the allies also communicate their views of peace conditions Mr. Wilson will be able to determine whether he would be warranted in taking any further step toward bringing the belligerents together. Unless President Wilson gets such a statement from both sides he will regard his effort as a failure.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Gen. Carranza has ignored the latest ultimatum of the administration. At midnight last night, the expiration of the time allowed him by the Washington government either to ratify or reject the protocol drawn by the Mexican-American joint commission, he had not replied.

PARIS.—The government has decided to raise Gen. Joffre to the dignity of marshal of France, in recognition of his eminent services to the country. A decree nominating him will be submitted for the ratification of parliament as soon as possible.

BERLIN.—On Ludova height in the wooded Carpathians there was a strong artillery fire. In Neagra valley, south of Dorna Watra, an advance by Russian raiding detachments failed. During engagements on the great Wallachian plain on the edge of the mountain south of Rimnik Sarat 5,500 Russians were taken prisoner. In Dobrudja the enemy, after a violent struggle on the line of Lake Rabadagh, Washkos, Kamcoara, and Tuerkeatza, was repulsed on the whole front.

PARIS.—There was great activity by both artilleries in the sectors of Belloy-en-Santere and Forquescourt. Everywhere else the cannonade was intermittent. Ten of our aviators bombarded the railroad station and barracks at Nesle and enemy encampments in the Chapitre wood and at Ourscamp.

ROME.—There have been desultory actions along the whole front, interfered with somewhat by bad weather. On the Carso, south of Monteal, we straightened our lines by a surprise advance to a depth of 300 meters.

LONDON.—Successes for the British forces in Mesopotamia are chronicled in the war office statement. Among other reverses suffered by the enemy, we captured Maghdabah, taking 1,900 prisoners.

PARIS.—Mme. de Thebes, the most famous clairvoyant in the world, who prophesied the great war, the death of Queen Victoria, the assassination of President Carnot of France, the San Francisco earthquake, and countless other events of moment in the history of the 19th and 20th centuries, is dead at her home at Meung-sur-Loire. Her real name was Anne de Savigny. She was 78 years old. This strange French character, who read the hands of kings and jockeys, millionaires and beggars—the greatest and the least in the life of Europe—owed her start to Alexandre Dumas, the great French writer, who launched her on her career as a prophetess.

CHICAGO.—"Herman F. Schuettler would make the best chief of police Chicago ever had," was the collective opinion transmitted personally to the mayor by a delegation of Chicago business men. In the committee, which was headed by D. F. Kelly, general manager of Mandel Brothers, were A. A. Sprague of Sprague, Warner & Co.; Robert C. Thorne of Montgomery Ward & Co., James Simpson of Marshall Field & Co., J. Harry Selz of Selz, Schwab & Co., and F. C. Armstrong, cartage contractor.

INSURANCE REGULATIONS IN ILLINOIS.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—There is danger in those not being conversant with the facts regarding insurance becoming unduly alarmed over the condition that was found in the Illinois Life Insurance company and which led to its collapse. People are unduly solicitous, feeling, perhaps, that this condition may be characteristic of insurance companies rather than exceptional. As a matter of fact, most insurance companies are conscientiously and ably managed. They supervise themselves.

The weakness that led to the collapse of the Illinois Life Insurance company was known when it overinvested in securities of the Stevens hotel. At that time, regardless of whether the directors and management were within the law, the state insurance administration should have used the "big stick."

As a matter of fact, Illinois has in most respects excellent insurance laws. They need bolstering in some respects.

First, there should be a law prohibiting officers and directors of insurance companies from investing in any enterprise in which any officer or director is primarily interested.

Next there should be, so far as life insurance is concerned, a statute prohibiting interlocking life insurance companies.

What we need in Illinois more than anything else is a vigorous, intelligent, courageous insurance administration that is free from politics. Our present officials have done as well as they could under political pressure. In my opinion, the state insurance department should be made a separate bureau, with the superintendent responsible only to the governor. The governor should appoint a man of eminent character who will use his discretionary power intelligently and yet with courage, but who will know that he is responsible and that political influence will not be a deterring factor. If Governor Elect Horner will give Illinois that sort of insurance administration he will be rendering the public a most constructive and desirable service. C. M. CARTWRIGHT,
Managing Editor the National Underwriter.

HE THANKS YOU.

Chicago, Dec. 16. — Kindly hand this card to the gentleman who wrote "The Demonology of Beer" on Dec. 15. Your article has been the means of regaining my respect for THE TRIBUNE. BAD TASTING WATER.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—The city of Chicago and the sanitary district of Chicago have been defendants in several lawsuits dealing with the right to use the water of Lake Michigan. It is about time that the city of Chicago became the aggressor with reference to defending its rights in that body of water.

For the last two days hundreds of thousands of people residing on the south side of Chicago have been put to great inconvenience and expense by reason of the pollution of the lake by certain industrial concerns. The water has such a large amount of phenol in solution that it cannot be used for the purposes of cooking and drinking.

This has resulted in thousands of dollars of loss to those who use this polluted water. Food was ruined, and it was necessary to buy water in order to prepare food.

This has happened several times in the last two years, and our public officials, instead of engaging in various sham battles for the purpose of getting publicity in the public press, should take it upon themselves to do a little real work in an endeavor to serve the people by whom they are paid. FRED L. STEERS.

BOOTLEGGING FARM PRODUCTS.

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 22.—I am a land owner and farm rather extensively in grains and live stock. Naturally I would like the benefits of 60 cents per bushel more for my wheat and $2 per hundred more for my hogs. If the allotment plan goes through, though, how will the packer compete, plus the tax, with the farmer who chooses to bootleg his hogs? By slaughtering them on the farm and disposing of the products he could keep below the taxed carcasses and lard, and who would prevent him?

There are thousands of stills on farms turning out alcohol and whisky, and it hasn't been stopped yet. No such equipment would be required for killing and dressing a few hogs, and the products without the tax would find a ready sale. Multiply this by every section of the country and it is not hard to see where it would place the legitimate meat industry. The same thing would apply to bootleg wheat. A flour mill, for instance, could buy 5,000 bushels of wheat which would make 1,000 barrels of flour. If he concealed the purchase of the wheat and the sale of that much flour he would be $2,000 or $3,000 ahead, depending on the extent of the tax.

I'm not saying what the miller and farmer would do, but what they could do. The evasion of taxes on gasoline has become a major industry and we know what it is on alcoholic beverages. When the list includes corn, wheat, cotton, and hogs we will have a fine mess. C. E. C.

SOME ALCOHOL PERCENTAGES.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—In the present discussion of the modification of the Volstead act there seems to be a good deal of vagueness regarding the alcohol content of beverages. In the United States the alcohol content of beverages has always been expressed in terms of percentage of absolute alcohol by volume. In Canada and Great Britain it is expressed in terms of proof spirit.

When expressing it in terms of absolute alcohol one can use either the volume percentage or the weight percentage. For instance, the well known American lager beers of pre-Volstead time usually carried between 4 and 4½ per cent absolute alcohol by volume. This was equivalent to between 3 and 3½ per cent absolute alcohol by weight. Proof spirit is essentially one-half the strength of absolute alcohol.

The Canadian beers that can be legally purchased in the province of Ontario without going to the liquor control stores are rather widely advertised as 4.4 per cent beers. As a matter of fact, a glance at the label shows that it is 4.4 per cent proof spirit. In other words, it is only 2.2 per cent absolute alcohol by volume.

Munich beer	5.1 per cent
Hard cider	5.9 per cent
English stout or porter	7.5 per cent
English ale	8.3 per cent
Moselle wine	9.2 per cent
French claret	10.3 per cent
Champagne, sweet	11.9 per cent
Champagne, dry	13.1 per cent

Fortified wines—that is, wines which have, in addition to the alcohol generated in them by nature, added alcohol—range in terms of absolute alcohol by volume from 18 per cent to 22 per cent. These include such wines as Madeira, sherry, port, Muscatel, etc. A. J. C.

ON THE AIR.

Chicago, Dec. 21.—I heard the future first lady of the land speak on a beauty cream program via radio. Ho hum! I really cawn't ca-ah for her!

That a woman of her position should thus capitalize on her name is of some concern, but that she should affect such an exceedingly ostentatious, would-be aristocratic speech is something to explode about!

This would be terribly funny if it weren't so sad for the country's dignity. H. JONES.

Guide Children with Reason— Mrs. Bevans Points the Way

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Two Parties

Miss Bobette Boysen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis K. Boysen of 1448 Lake Shore drive, made her formal bow to society at a dinner dance given by her parents at the "900" last night. She wore a frost green georgette and satin gown made very simply with a full circular skirt and carried white orchids.

Colored Christmas trees with tiny electric lights at the tip of each branch decorated the tables which were laid for 8, 10, and 12, with the debutante's table the only one in the mirror room where the dancing took place.

Mrs. Boysen wore white crêpe with a tiny black velvet cape trimmed with ermine. The 150 guests were this year's buds, about 50 of them, and their beaux, all of whom went on to the Casino around midnight for the dance that Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey were giving for their debutante daughter, Louise.

Miss Dewey wore a green satin dress to the Boysen party, but for her own dance she had changed into a new gown of eggshell satin made simply, as are all the most chic gowns this season, with the only trimming a belt of crystals. A dash of color was given to her costume by the lipstick red chiffon handkerchief which she carried in her bracelet, and slippers of the same bright hue. She carried gardenias.

Mrs. Dewey wore a lovely gown of black tulle trimmed with bands of turquoises. Receiving with the debutante and her parents were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Alger Jr. of Detroit, who came yesterday to be present at the dance. Mrs. Alger is the former Suzette Dewey. Last night she wore a lipstick red velvet gown with a little gold cloth jacket and a corsage of orchids.

Movie Carries You on Trip to Floor of Ocean

Strange Fish, Old Vessels Photographed.

"WITH WILLIAMSON BENEATH THE SEA."
Produced by J. E. Williamson.
Presented at the Castle theater.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Parents! Children! Old and young alike! There's a delightful hour awaiting you at the Castle theater!

An hour in a studio on the bed of the ocean! Can you imagine such a thing? There you sit, all cozy and dry, looking out upon a submarine world such as Jules Verne dreamed of and, could he have drunk from the fountain of life everlasting, would have seen today.

Forests of strange and lovely growths! Deserts of white, shifting sands! Graveyards of ships—lost through the ages and pregnant with undiscovered riches—housing in their ghastly depths monsters of the deep that menace divers. Divers at work uprooting coral trees, dislodging peculiar specimens, capturing odd denizens of the ocean for preservation in museums. Divers in fun. Divers in danger from quicksands, octopi, and sharks. Fish of all sizes, shapes, and colors peering like curious children through the window of the strange room from the world of ozone and sunlight, so oddly and confidently ensconced in their domain. Some of the diver scenes are staged, you know. But isn't that wonderful, too? Playing on the bottom of the ocean! Some scenes were made in color. Color photography's underwater debut.

O, it is a fascinating movie!

Something to see—this Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Williamson and their little one in the studio. She sketching, typing, and between times tending the baby who is a captain in her own little right and has been rocked in the cradle of the deep all her life. He making notes and, through a telephone, directing the activities of the divers. Something to see—the photosphere, a funnel shaped apparatus, large enough to permit the descent of a human to the studio below. This invention that made possible the remarkable achievements accomplished on this expedition to the West Indies, sponsored by the Field Foundation, is put together like an accordion and lowered over the side of the boat. Down it go papa, mamma, and the baby to work and play in Davy Jones' locker, snug and safe in the compartment at the bottom.

Social Service Gifts of Foundations Show Gain of 40 Per Cent

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Donations by the American philanthropic foundations in 1931 were one-fifth less than in 1930, it was disclosed today in the second annual study of foundation activities by the twentieth century fund, but despite this curtailment donations for social service work increased more than 40 per cent.

More than $54,600,000 was disbursed by the 102 foundations reporting to the fund. The reporting foundations have capital funds of more than $770,000,000.

Of the $54,600,000 given by foundations, the report shows that more than $17,000,000 went to the support of medicine and public health and $13,500,000 to general education. The medical grant, however, was 43 per cent less than in 1930 and the education grant 19 per cent less.

Grants to welfare agencies in 1931 amounted to about $3,500,000, more than 40 per cent greater than the previous year.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The Theater Guild's staging of a dramatization of "The Good Earth," revealed at the Erlanger theater last night, should appease the hunger of the subscription audiences that the American Theater society has organized. For the hunger for land to till, which is the dominant note of this epic story of the Chinese peasantry, is no greater than the hunger of the starved members of this playgoing society for sound Theater Guild fare. There has been a famine of drama in the town that may be compared to the famine of rice through which Wang Lung and O-lan grimly fought their way; and in this stage version of Mrs. Buck's widely read novel there is, if not a banquet, at least a square and satisfactory meal.

Dramatizations of popular fiction are hybrids of the theater arts and therefore are inevitably exposed to nagging criticism from all sides. Enthusiasts of the library are prone to set up an outcry that the illusions they derived from the printed page have been frustrated, while connoisseurs of play construction are likely to complain, with equal vigor, that the mysterious essence of drama has been omitted from the composition. I have always remained a neutral in these debates and have made it a practice to take dramatizations in stride with a tolerant smile.

My first test of a dramatization is: Does it make a good show? My second is: Does it run true to the original source? When applied to "Good Earth," these tests result in favorable reactions. The dramatic summary of Mrs. Buck's novel that the Davises, father and son, have written is definitely a good show, characteristic of the Theater Guild's skill in the evocation of exotic scenes and the visualization of picturesque detail. Furthermore, the play catches and firmly holds the spirit of the book. It is a lesser thing, being merely fragments of a great canvas, but as a re-telling of a saga of the Chinese peasant class in the limitations of two hours of acting time it serves decidedly well.

The play consists of ten episodes that seem like chapters culled from the story and that carry Wang Lung, the striving, thrifty man with the Chinese hoe, and O-lan, his plodding, indomitable wife, through their characteristic lives. Wang Lung's lust for the soil brings him through poverty and famine to a rich and lecherous old age. O-lan marches beside him with oriental submissiveness and the wise conservatism of the peasant soul—merely a child bearing machine from the Chinese point of view, but from our own a great woman and the impressive heroine of a family history.

Alla Nazimova's characterization of O-lan is the work of a notable actress in a new phase. Her voice is the dull monotone of a taciturn peasant; her face is a swarthy, thick-lipped Mongolian mask; her speech is slow; her emotions are muted. She is, however, compelling and appealing at every moment. In the book Wang Lung is always the central figure, but in the play O-lan is the focus of interest, and Mme. Nazimova plays the rôle as if she had sat at Mrs. Buck's elbow, in a Chinese incarnation, while the book was being written.

Claude Rains, another fine artist of the Theater Guild's first string, is a crisp, sturdy, and occasionally quaint Wang Lung. There is more humor in him than in his prototype. The play as a whole, in fact, contains occasional flashes of that mirth in recognition of quaintness which almost always appears in American treatment of Chinese themes. The episode that ends the first act, where Wang Lung and O-lan fear that their happiness over their first born child may attract the evil spirits of the air, and so pretend that their son is a pock-marked, insignificant female, wins a response of laughter.

The late Florenz Ziegfeld's revival of the musical comedy called "Show Boat" will begin an engagement at the Auditorium theater Jan. 8. Helen Morgan will be the leading member of the cast.

St. Vincent's to Hold Open House for All Interested Tomorrow

Open house at St. Vincent's orphanage at 721 North La Salle street from 3 o'clock on tomorrow afternoon will celebrate the third anniversary of the opening of the new building, to be attended by every one interested in the institution. Members of the A. O. H., of which Mrs. Mary McWhorter is president, will be in charge of the program, which will include various numbers by children from outside the orphanage. Trips of inspection will be made through the institution following the entertainment.

St. Vincent's, operated by the Sisters of Charity, was founded in 1851, and for fifty years has occupied the site at Huron and La Salle streets. During the last year 661 babies have passed through the orphanage, 100 of whom were adopted into families. In 1931 567 were admitted and 123 adopted, the babies ranging in age from infancy to three years. After this age they are placed in other institutions.

Engagement Told

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Mrs. Dorothy Garnett Steger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Logan Garnett of Evanston, to Chester Darlington Speakman, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Howland Speakman of Oak Park. The wedding will take place early next summer. Mrs. Steger is a graduate of the University School for Girls and Mr. Speakman attended the University of Illinois. [Daguerre Photo.]

'Average Girl' Tells Results of Visit Here

Student from Europe to Go East Today.

Miss Hertha Zwerger, the "average European girl" delegated to study the private lives of American families, takes back east with her as she departs this morning a different brand of English than she spoke on arrival two months ago; a healthy respect for the service and social clubs of her generation in this country; a vivid impression of the extensive wardrobes of American girls, and of their general freedom.

At an informal farewell gathering last night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Atkins Moore in Oak Park she discussed her activities in Chicago and their results.

The 24 year old student of Innsbruck, Austria, reviewed the experiences she had as a guest for some days at the University of Chicago, with Mary McDowell and Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll; at the National Education college at Evanston, at the central residence of the Y. W. C. A., the Chicago Commons, and various families of the Junior Service league girls in Oak Park. She now talks American instead of English, she commented. She finds our school systems far more flexible than the European, where discussion in classrooms is greatly restricted. And she approves the organization customs that direct the energies of girls of her own age and younger.

Two hundred students at the American People's college at Oetz in Tyrol chose Hertha from hundreds of European young folks to make the trip to this country, that she might take back an understanding of Americans that would counteract impressions left by a dubious type of tourist abroad. She will remain with alumni of the college in New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey until April, when she sails for home.

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

Because a home owner is indeed a monarch of all he surveys, he protects his investment by "keeping it up." In making the wise and periodical survey of your house, consider the attic. Most houses these days need extra space and so do their occupants. Installing extra rooms in the cobwebby spaces beneath the eaves is not expensive. Possibly, upon investigation, you will find that you can finish up the attic for living purposes for half the money it would have cost you three or four years ago! Mallorca Has Several Cafes for Americans

Bars Also Increase, Is Word from Americans.

BY JUDITH CASS.

ALONG with other Christmas cards from near and far away places that were received this year, some of us received one or two fascinating Spanish ones from that tiny island of Mallorca about which so much has been written in the last year or two, for several Chicagoans are spending the winter there. Mrs. Ellen Dudley Root is one of them and Lambert Mullen is another. Mrs. Julia Brooks Cunningham and her sister, Miss Althea Brooks, went there in late November to be there until spring, and Mrs. Charles Cameron Todd and her daughters, the Misses Virginia and Barbara Todd, also went over in the autumn, but the date for their return is indefinite.

There have been reports that prices are going up in this little paradise where luxuries and necessities alike are priced so reasonably, but according to the letters I've seen from there this winter living there still is cheap enough to be intriguing to those with reduced incomes and our correspondent writes that Palma, the principal city, is filled with Americans and English.

A recent letter from there is most interesting, interesting enough to print parts of it, so here they are: "You would never know the place"—this to a Chicago woman who spent last winter there—"that is, the town, we are getting so bar-ey. First the Little Club opened. It is the real American 'hang out' and has developed into a real place to eat—yesterday I had such a lunch there as I might have ordered at home, a toasted, crispy bacon sandwich and the best cup of coffee with real cream which comes every morning from Barcelona. You can get liver and bacon and corned beef hash, too. To continue about the night life in Palma. Some rich Mallorquins have opened the Trocadero bar and night clubs—it is quite Riviera-ish and strange to say seems to have caught on particularly with the natives who are as proud as punch of their new club. The Born is opening under American management with a big orchestra for dancing. A young Spaniard is starting a bar by the Cartuja place and still another is being started on the road to Valldemosa, and Rambova [Natacha] is opening some sort of shindig in the Caves at Genova."

Chicagoans Having Lots of Jolly Parties.

In the same letter "Bert" Mullen, one of society's most popular bachelors before he decided to go to Mallorca for an indefinite stay, is described as "lots of fun, and plays good bridge as well as being an excellent piano player." A party that Mrs. Root gave is described also as being a very jolly one, which her Chicago parties always were, too. The John G. Lesters, she was a Miss Hately of Chicago and they lived here for some years before they went to England, his home, to live, have a villa in Mallorca now, and they have the distinction of having acquired steam heat this winter, so the letter reports. But if their steam heat isn't more effective than that of the hotel in which our correspondent was staying it won't be as much of a joy as it might be, for she says, "here we are shivering with a cold rain. I can readily see that the central heat is merely a gesture and heaven help us if any real cold weather comes. The hotel is full of English now who do themselves out in full regalia each evening to sit around and go to bed, quite a change from the summer crowd who lived in zipper shirts from morning to night."

Recent letters to her Chicago family brings the news that Mrs. Chauncey

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr. Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his casebook covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

THE FRUGAL VIENNESE.

"Waiter, waiter—here," commanded Inspector Kelley, "bring me a salad without any hair on it! No you don't—leave that and bring me another!"

Prof. Fordney chuckled at his friend's discomfiture. "That recalls an incident to my mind," he said. "Several years ago while in Vienna I was the guest of Dr. E. C. Wrightsman. He had taken me to the Café Klinik, his favorite restaurant, for dinner. The cuisine was splendid, but when the waiter left our demi-tasse the doctor was quite perturbed to find a fly in his.

"Having lived there for some time and knowing the frugal Viennese wasted nothing, especially food or drink, he requested the waiter to bring him another; not merely remove the fly from the one he had brought. The waiter returned with another cup of different shape and design, but the coffee was the same!

"In heated language Dr. Wrightsman demanded a cup of fresh coffee. The waiter tried to persuade him that he had been served with one. However, with a puzzled look he removed the cup and this time did as directed.

"It was amusing to watch that waiter. He regarded Dr. Wrightsman as if he were possessed of some mystic power. I received a letter from him after I reached Paris, saying the waiter still held him in awe."

"I don't see how he knew," growled Inspector Kelley, still disgruntled and examining, with a cold eye, the salad that had just been brought him.

DO YOU?

Opera Season in Italy Opened at Milan, Rome

MILAN, Italy, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Italy's opera season opened tonight in Milan and Rome with a blaze of light and flashing new gowns. La Scala, here, opened with Richard Wagner's "Twilight of the Gods," in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary this year of Wagner's death. The Royal Opera house, Rome, inaugurated the new season with Verdi's "Macbeth," which has not been played in Rome for more than 20 years. In Genoa the Carlo Felice Opera house opens Jan. 7. The government has appropriated 1,300,000 lire [$65,000] to help provincial opera houses.

New Venture in Opera Gets Big Welcome

'Il Trovatore' Is Presented at Auditorium.

"Il Trovatore," opera by Verdi, presented by the Chicago City Grand Opera company at the Auditorium, Monday, Dec. 26, 1932.

THE CAST.

John Pane-Gasser	Manrico
Anna Leskaya	Leonora
Ada Paggi	Azucena
Hazel Sanborn	Inez
Martino-Rossi	Count di Luna
G. Mantovani	Ferrando
G. Cavadore	Ruiz

Attico Bernabini, conductor.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

At one time and another this column has expressed the belief that opera is in need of some inteiligent person to lead it out of the wilderness, and that this is about all it needs. Never was there an illustration more in point than last night at the Auditorium.

Seeing that there was little chance of opera being given for them, Mr. Pane-Gasser and Mr. Bernabini put their heads together and decided to see what could be done about giving their own. They organized on both an artistic and a business basis, put a company together, selected one of the most popular operas in the entire répertoire, and told the public about it. The public did the rest.

Although they promised only a single performance, what happened last night would have been enough in the case of many another producer to put up announcements for a series of performances to come, and this for both artistic and business reasons. The Auditorium was not completely sold out, it is true, but vacant seats were by no means numerous and there was applause of the kind to gladden the hearts of the participants.

The performance was an honest, solid, sincere one, of a kind worthy to go into the Auditorium records alongside of some of the memories of old. Miss Leskaya last fall aroused a prediction that she would one day be known as one of the leading dramatic sopranos of the world, and her performance last night added conviction to the belief. Miss Paggi has many times been held up to admiration as a singer and artist and never more worthily than in this performance.

Mr. Pane-Gasser, the successful impresario, was equally a successful artist. His Manrico was fully equal to his Radames last fall at the Stadium, and this is saying a great deal. Mr. Martino-Rossi, although at times showing signs of a cold, rose superior to it when needful, and delivered his fine old melodies with both voice and manner. The lesser parts were well done, particularly Ferrando by Mr. Mantovani, who showed striking ability.

The chorus and orchestra were those of the late Civic Opera company, always distinct assets of that organization and better than ever last night. In case you have forgotten, Mr. Bernabini, last night's conductor, was for a number of years the chorus master of the Civic company, and he never failed to turn out a brilliant aggregation of singers. Under his baton "Il Trovatore" proceeded smoothly, with brisk pace, and the certainty that comes with thorough knowledge of the score.

BARTER AND SAIL

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt. Hiram White sails his four master ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an English woman of title, known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer an unemployed French chauffeur, named Raoul, Roberts Millibank, and Peter Cavan. Roberts's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employe. Benny, a cook, hires up for his keep. Henery Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing, and plans to stop at certain ports to trade cargoes. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. The ship is seized by four snowsnakes on the high seas. A warning comes in over the radio about four bank robbers being at large and the captain realizes he and his crew are in their hands. After several days the bandits are overpowered and set adrift. The ship reaches Cape Town, where Henery's cargo is traded at a large profit. Their next destination is Sydney, Australia. Peter finds the robbers' loot hidden on the boat. The captain turns it over to the U. S. consul at Sydney. The cargo is discharged at Sydney and another picked up for delivery to Japan, where another profitable trade is made. The ship now sails to the island, where the sunken treasure craft is located. Capt. Hiram, Adam, and Peter take turns diving for the oysters. They have them all loaded aboard and are ready to sail out to sea again.

INSTALLMENT XXXII.

A STRANGE SCHOONER.

The Captain came on deck and stood listening. As Peter drew near he called sharply, "Hear anything?"

"Thought I did a few minutes ago but decided it was my ears throbbing."

"Why didn't you call me for my watch?"

There was an unusual note in the Captain's voice that led Peter, invariably truthful, to shirk a frank statement of the fact that he had been asleep.

"I didn't notice the time until it had run over."

"Listen," said the Captain.

This time the sound was unmistakable. A powerboat was coming in through the entrance. They sighted her then though she carried no lights.

The yacht breasted in and they took her lines.

But they were at this same moment relieved to see that aside from the fact of showing no lights she could not be a Japanese patrol boat because of the lowness in the water of her bulk.

Then she cleared the patch of palms and two slender spars were visible against the lesser opaqueness of the sky.

Peter did so quickly. They mustered on the quarter deck and watched the stranger uneasily. One thing they lacked aboard was arms. The Captain had his old shot gun and a few boxes of shells, but that was all. Weapons had never been included with their trade goods and there had been no money with which to purchase them until Yokohama when they had not thought about it.

There was no time to make plans of any sort. The newcomer was inside the lagoon and close aboard. Scarcely more than a furlong away. Against the sheen of the still water they could distinguish her type as that of a small old-fashioned sea-going yacht. To judge from the deep even throbbing of her exhaust she had been installed with a full powered oil engine of modern sort. It was throttled down so that she moved slowly and as they watched she swung in their direction, drifted closer and stopped.

A harsh voice hailed, "Schooner ahoy. What schooner is that?"

The Captain answered, "Abigail White of Portsmouth, New Hampshire. What yacht is that?"

"Schooner yacht Pelican of Apia. Mind if I lay alongside?"

"We're weighing anchor to go out at daybreak. Put in to stop a leak."

"So. We're here with a Japanese permit to prospect for pearls. Know anything about that?"

"Saw some pearl shell on the beach," said the Captain. "What'll you take to tow me out a couple of miles. The tide'll be going in an hour."

"Stopped your leak?"

"Yes. Caulking gone just under the water line. That and the copper loose on the bow. She's light and will tow easy. I figured to make out with our power-launches."

"I'll make a trade with you, Captain."

"That's our business. Tradin' right round the world. Carried old cars and motor boats and frozen fish and cheap clothes to Capetown and then traded it off for a cargo for Sydney. Carried that to Yokohama. What do you lack?"

"Water mostly. I'll tow you off three miles for a hundred gallons of water a mile. Baffle plates got adrift in one of our tanks and started a leak in it."

The Captain perceived immediately that he could not refuse a demand for water nor could he reasonably prevent the schooner coming alongside to take it when some of her people were bound to come aboard. There was no reason to suspect them of being a lawless crowd and what looked like catastrophe for a moment might even prove of advantage. Captain Hiram had been worrying about getting his big unwieldy schooner out through what would be a windward passage and a lee shore when the breeze came.

The yacht moved in closer, assuming that a bargain had been struck. It was really a good bargain as the Abigail had taken water enough to admit of a bathing allowance. What most reassured them about the newcomers was the voice of her captain. The tone and inflexion suggested culture and authority. It indicated the speaker to be perhaps an ex-navy officer, but whether American or English one could not have said. His accent was of the finished perfect English that is neither the exaggerated Oxonian nor the American sort but well modulated though crisp.

There appeared to be six men aboard the schooner. As they got out fenders Captain Hiram said,

"I hate to disappoint you, but it looks like somebody has licked the cream off this jug."

"What makes you think that?" The question cracked out sharply.

"We found a big heap of shell that didn't look to be opened very long ago."

"Where is it?"

"I took it aboard. The stuff's got some value."

"Of course it's got some value. We count on it to keep down the costs when we miss out on the pearls."

Captain Hiram had offered his information because there was no help for it. The first man to come aboard could not miss seeing the bin filled with shell. Besides there was shell fragment scattered about the deck and the diving gear had not been stowed.

The dawn was coming. A rustle from the cabin window behind Peter told that the girls were peeping out.

The yacht breasted in and they took her lines. The sea ladder was down and a man came up it. As he stepped on deck Captain Hiram was at first reassured by reason of his clean well-fitting whites and small, smart helmet. There was also a trim erectness and alertness of movement and carriage that was distinctly military. The natural assumption of anybody would be that here was a naval officer who might have reached the rank of lieutenant commander and who had retired to turn adventurer. Pearler. On some cruise he might have discovered something. He did not offer to shake hands but asked curtly,

"How long have you been here Captain?"

"A week yesterday."

"I see you've had a go at the pearling."

"No, sir. That's just the shell I spoke about. Go look at it if you like."

"Why the diving rig?"

"To look over my copper sheathing. It's old and loose."

Three more men from the yacht came aboard; a big grizzled sailor who was probably white of race at least and two Polynesians whose tremendously muscled bare limbs and torsos were conspicuous even in the half light.

Buffet Suppers Well Adapted to New Year's

BY MARY MEADE.

When horns toot, bells peal, noisemakers clack, and husky lungs explode in an immensity of joyful noise and not too much harmony just four nights from this one, the on-the-dot hostess will have her first 1933 chance to dispense hospitality in a typical New Year's fashion. Already a dozen plans have popped into our heads if we are to be such hostesses.

If the crowd is dashing in from an evening of theater going or has cruised around after an early start at doorbell ringing, they may be cold and they're sure to be hungry. Grill suppers which can be performed while the company hangs anxiously about giving thoughtful advice rank high in popular esteem. Old favorites whose comeback is always a sign for cheers are Italian spaghetti or ravioli with smoothly sizzling mushroom, minced meat, or simply unglorified tomato sauce smiling under a halo of feathery Parmesan cheese. Also, bubbling rarebits or this and that served a la king in fried noodle nests find ready reception.

But there let the hostessing end. New Year's eve is no time for formality. The same service table behind which the hostess sits chaperoning the pièce de résistance may hold baskets of hot rolls, or those nice slim clubs of French bread, a plate of butter pats, relishes and crackers, an assortment of pickle fans, fagots, or even a whole menagerie which can be created from appropriate pickles plus toothpicks, raisins, cranberries, and such sundries. In addition, there may be a fruit salad and a fluffy caramel-frosted nut cake with a topping off of hot coffee and cider or New Year's punch.

Grilled sandwiches of many kinds are other favorite dishes and call for the moral support of olives, gherkins, crisp shoestring potatoes, and chocolate cake.

Or, if no hot dish is in demand, a complete hors d'oeuvres supper of assorted packaged cheeses, sandwich spreads, and relishes will do well against a background of numerous sorts of bread and crisp hot crackers. Hot Russian tea or coffee, or, better yet, the old English favorite, mulled cider, will climax the food end of the party.

The above mentioned buffet supper menus, especially the last, are particularly well adapted to New Year's eve refreshments when there is a lively going and coming of guests over a period of two hours or more. However, if yours is to be a more calculated affair, the following menu, served buffet fashion at midnight, will handle the situation in a lighter and perhaps more digestible way:

NEW YEAR'S EVE BUFFET SUPPER.

Chicken-Pineapple-Celery Salad
Orange Bread Sandwiches and Butter
Boston Brown Bread Sandwiches
Frozen Plum Pudding Meringues
Coffee or New Year's Punch
Nuts Mints

CHICKEN-PINEAPPLE-CELERY SALAD.

3 cups diced chicken
1½ cups iced pineapple
¾ cup chopped celery
½ cup cut pecans
Whipped cream mayonnaise

Combine all the ingredients and chill. Serve in lettuce cups on a large platter so that guests may help themselves with a large, flat serving spoon, or pile lightly all together in the center of the platter, sprinkle with whole pecans, surround with lettuce, and arrange to serve your guests as they pass around the supper table. Serves twelve with one-half cup servings.

FROZEN PLUM PUDDING.

The simplest way to achieve this modern interpretation of the old favorite is to make or buy approximately two quarts of rich frozen custard, preferably chocolate, allow it to stand at room temperature until slightly softened, and then stir into it with a strong wooden spoon one and one-half cups of a mixture of seedless raisins, currants, candied orange peel, candied cherry, citron, and pineapple. This mixture of fruits should have been prepared previously, run together through a fine food chopper, and then allowed to stand six hours or more in thin sugar and water sirup [one part sugar to two parts water], and then thoroughly drained from it before being combined with the ice cream. Now crush macaroons to make two cups of crumbs and with them line refrigerator freezing pans or a mold to be frozen in crushed ice and salt. Pack in the fruit-ice cream mixture and freeze.

How Average Man Views Jobholders Shown by Survey

What the average citizen thinks of his public servants and of holding a public job himself is set forth in the report issued yesterday by the University of Chicago of a survey made by Leonard D. White.

Chicago was not included in the eleven cities surveyed, but in 1929 a similar survey made by Prof. White in Chicago showed that local citizens think even less of public employment than those of any of the eleven cities in the present survey. In that survey citizens of Philadelphia were found to have the highest regard for public jobholders and jobs.

The other cities, ranged in their order on the prestige scale, were: Trenton, N. J.; New York, Columbus, O.; Madison, Wis.; Austin, Tex.; Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Minneapolis, and Seattle. Prestige was judged from replies to 7,168 questionnaires on a scale ranging from plus 100 to minus 100. On this scale Philadelphia public employes were graded plus 31.42, those in Seattle minus 12.36, and those in Chicago, in the 1929 survey, minus 14.06.

A Stopped-up Nose

-may cause the MOUTH BREATHING • HABIT •

When a cold causes your child to breathe through his mouth instead of his nose, beware of the mouth breathing habit.

The nose filters out the deadly germs that enter with each breath, but the mouth cannot. During mouth breathing these germs invade the lungs and undermine vitality. Body and mind are stunted. The child is dull in school. The unnatural breathing distorts his mouth.

Take no chances! Keep the nostrils open by inserting Mentholatum night and morning. This soothing ointment clears the nasal passages and promotes natural nose breathing.

Open the nostrils with... MENTHOLATUM

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Ill, Jobless, No Money.

"I am interested in a young writer, who is ill, out of work, and with no money for food. He would do any kind of work he could get, but in his weakened condition he can't do manual labor. He is badly in need of clothing and I wonder if you could help him get some. He needs a suit, size 38, a pair of shoes, 7½ or 8, and shirts, size 15. Anything you can do to help him will be greatly appreciated.

"Mrs. N."

This man is most deserving and is reluctant to ask for this aid but he is ill and without work or funds and needs this assistance urgently. Can you do anything for him?

B. Champ Clark Pens Story of John Q. Adams

Offers Biography of High Excellence.

"John Quincy Adams," by Bennett Champ Clark. [Little-Brown.]
"Alexander Hamilton," by Johan J. Smertenko. [Greenberg.]

THE Adams family in America is the most famous family that has ever played a continuous role on the public stage in this country. For three centuries the Adamses have passed on their heritage from one generation to another. It is a rare occurrence indeed for the name of Adams to be absent in a time of crisis in American political life. Whether they take an active part in the events of the day or whether they participate indirectly in the making of American history they are always on the scene.

BENNETT CLARK.

John Quincy Adams, "Old Man Eloquent," was the second Adams to enter public life. His father was the second President of the United States and one of the great leaders of his day. His eldest son, John Quincy (known familiarly to Mr. Clark as "J. Q. A."), showed signs of his promise at an early age. He was at the age of 10 asking his admired and respected father if he would plan out a course of study and play for him and deploring the fact that "my thoughts are running after birds' eggs, play, and trifles till I get vexed with myself."

This precocity so painfully revealed is the tragic letter of the young boy bore the seed of his later development. Always dignified, mature beyond his years, a nature unaccustomed to play or harmless frivolities, he went through his life bravely, with the honesty and the brilliance of a fine mind, but with that sad lack which made his personality seem in some way atrophied and unattractive to his contemporaries.

At 14 John Quincy Adams was secretary to the American minister to Russia. In his youth he was educated abroad, but made a decision in his early manhood to return to America and finish his education on his own soil. After graduating from Harvard he went into law and for several years tried his luck with practicing. He soon returned to public life, however, and was appointed minister to Holland. His early leanings were toward the Federalist party [Republican], but his sympathy was before long captured by the Republicans [Democrats].

He was in turn minister to Germany, a member of the U. S. senate, professor at Harvard, minister to Russia, minister to Great Britain, secretary of state, and President of the United States for eight years. At 80 he died, a member of the national house of representatives.

Thus he lived and died in the service of his country. Many of the most stirring events in American history took place during his lifetime. The effects of the revolution were still being felt when John Quincy Adams first began his career and he helped force the European recognition of the colonies as a nation.

Toward the end of his life the struggle that was to rock the later years of the 19th century was beginning. All his life he battled against sectionalism, but he was a nationalist when nationalism was dying. He knew Czar Alexander of Russia, George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, Abraham Lincoln, and Jefferson Davis, as well as all the eminent diplomatists here and abroad. He witnessed the fall of the Dutch republic and the defeat of Napoleon. Living in the lull between two terrible wars, his ears heard the dying war echoes of the revolution and the first ominous rumblings of the civil war.

John Quincy Adams was a patriot and a constructive thinker as well as a shrewd diplomat and orator. But partly because of the views he held, though he was, as Mr. Clark makes clear, after all a conservative man who never conquered his conservative inheritance, and partly because of his petty and gossipy ill humor—his egotism was smug and supreme, though he darkly wore the cape of morbid sensitiveness and reserve—and his strangely repellent personality, he was one of the most viciously hated men of his era.

It has been fifty years since a biography of this eminent figure has been written. Bennett Champ Clark, himself a public man, writes a calm and judicious study of the sixth President of the United States. The book is a disinterested analysis, without psychological paraphernalia, though the author makes many implications about the tragic little boy who was so humiliated about his preoccupation at 10 years of age with birds' eggs. Mr. Clark should be saluted for his splendid accomplishment, a biography of high excellence and one badly needed.

Johan J. Smertenko writes of "Hamilton" [Greenberg], a distinguished contemporary of John Quincy Adams. There is a cool presentation of facts that tell their own story. M. D.

Paris Sweaters Call Attention to Themselves

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Sweaters to wear skiing, skating, and hiking during the coming two months are being shown right now in Paris. No eye, public or private, could escape seeing some of these sweaters, for they come in loud colors and striking patterns.

The newest are knitted in checkerboard patterns in two colors, like the one shown at the top of the accompanying sketch, which is in golden brown and vivid periwinkle blue checks. It is a waist length sweater blouse, buttoned up to the neck on brown bone buttons, and with a little turnover collar. The sleeves are plain, and there is a patch breast pocket on the left side.

Below is shown a Schiaparelli sweater jacket and cap which are brand new this season. The jacket has a hip-length vest, made in Schiaparelli's new smocked tricot stitch, with ribbed bands at the top and the bottom. This vest buttons up the front on brown buttons, and over it goes a bolero with long sleeves, which ends at the normal waistline. The bolero is knitted in what our grandmothers knew as the suspender stitch, and which they used to knit galluses for our grandfathers. The cuffs are done in the smocking stitch of the vest.

"Saloon" Party Given on Set by Mae West

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 26.—Mae West was hostess to an evening party of 100 on her Bowery set of "She Done Him Wrong" at the Paramount studio. The set showed a saloon and back room of the gay 'nineties. The old fashioned bar, equipped with enormous schooners of happy memory, was operated by two conventional bartenders with handle bar mustaches and checked vests, who dispensed foamy liquid and pointed out the free lunch counter for a thirsty crowd.

The free lunch was really a bounteous holiday banquet. It was spread out buffet style at each end of the bar with the time honored pretzels, potato chips, and dill pickles to provide the proper trimmings. A huge ornamented gas chandelier provided illumination.

Mae contributed largely to her own program of entertainment by appearing in a white satin costume sewn with brilliants and made in the manner that we remember as the Lillian Russell style, with a large white hat bearing four enormous white ostrich feathers.

She sang "Frankie and Johnnie" and recited her own composition, "Diamond Lil," as well as two other numbers she does in her new film, with a few interpolations that I feel certain will never appear in any film for public release.

Mallorca Has Several Cafes for Americans

Bars Also Increase, Is Word from Americans.

J. Blair and her daughter, Mme. Ricardo de Soriano, will go to Mallorca from Chambesy, Switzerland, where Mrs. Blair has a villa, early in the new year, and if all the people who are threatening to visit the small island in the Balearics this winter go there, I fear the island will be so crowded that it may sink into the sea and become another lost Atlantis.

Two Chicagoans who leased a charming villa just out of Palma last winter for several years—and for an unbelievably small rental—are sailing early in January to spend the balance of the winter there. Mrs. Emily Rowe Lord and Mrs. Frances Keyes Stillwell. Mrs. Lord is spending Christmas in Philadelphia with a daughter, and Mrs. Stillwell is in Washington with her daughter for the holidays, but they will meet in New York right after New Year's day and sail together for that garden spot which grows more and more attractive to this reporter, at least, the more she hears about it in spite of the fact that real cream is a treat and that central heating is "merely a gesture."

250 Are Expected at Party for Debutantes.

The debutantes will dine and dance this evening at a party Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift and Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior are to give at the Casino for their daughters, Miss Lydia Swift and Miss Mary Senior. The guests will number about 250. Miss Swift made her debut last month at a tea given jointly by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alden B. Swift, and her uncle and aunt, the Gustavus F. Swifts for her and for her cousin, Miss Marie Swift. Miss Senior was presented to society last September at a tea given in Lake Forest by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Senior.

Advance reservations for the Harris schools' holiday supper dance, to be held this evening at the Belden-Stratford hotel, have made the sponsors hopeful of raising a nice sum for the school's charity fund. The older students of the schools, recent graduates and alumni of varying ages, as well as mothers and fathers of alumni and students, are all planning to attend.

The committee in charge includes Mrs. Edward R. Bacon II., Mrs. Nelson L. Barnes, Mrs. C. Groverman Ellis, Mrs. Howard F. Gillette, Mrs Robert Hall McCormick, Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, Mrs. Allen B. Ripley, Mrs. Nelson Thomasson Jr., Mrs. Wallace F. Kirk, Mrs. Ralph M. Shaw, and Mrs. Albert A. Sprague.

Lake Forest Academy Plans Diamond Jubilee.

The Lake Forest Academy Alumni association will hold its annual holiday luncheon at 12:15 o'clock today at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club. It's to be a gala occasion, because the adademy is observing its diamond jubilee this year, and Headmaster Richards is to speak briefly of current affairs at the school and will make some important announcements concerning the plans for celebration of its 75th birthday in connection with commencement exercises next June. Dr. Allen D. Albert will speak on A Century of Progress and there also will be short talks by Robert J. Thorne, president of the academy board of trustees, and Cornelius M. Trowbridge, president of the Alumni association.

Dr. and Mrs. Paul W. Greeley of Winnetka gave a tea yesterday afternoon at their residence for Mrs. Greeley's brother and sister-in-law, Prof. and Mrs. Julius Goebel Jr. of New York, who arrived on Saturday to spend Christmas with the Greeleys. Prof. Goebel is a member of the faculty of the law school at Columbia university and is here to attend meetings of the Associated Law Schools Faculties.

Indian Hill Country Club Children's Party.

There will be a gay children's party from 4:30 to 7:30 o'clock this afternoon for the children of members of the Indian Hill Country club. There will be a Christmas tree, dancing and refreshments.

Donald McPherson Jr. has returned from the Fessenden school and will be at home with his parents in Winnetka until Jan. 13. His subdeb sister, Miss Fanny McPherson, is spending the holidays away from the family circle for the first time this year. She is attending a finishing school in Florence, Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Comly and their children, Ann and Cynthia, arrived on Christmas eve to spend the holidays with Mrs. Comly's parents, the Mark W. Cresaps of Winnetka. They will remain until after New Year's, and, while Mrs. Cresap is not planning any large parties, undoubtedly there will be some informal entertaining for the visitors. Mark Cresap Jr. is at home from Harvard for the holidays.

Miss Marion Calkins has returned from Smith college and her sister, Patty, from Sarah Lawrence college, to be with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. George B. Calkins of Winnetka, until their schools reopen after New Year's.

Exercise Improves Neckline

Clasp the hands behind the head and bring the elbows close together in front. Hold the chin in and push the head up and forward with the hands, rising on the toes at the same time. Back down slowly and relax.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I hope you're keeping up the simple stretching work I gave you the first week of this series: walking around the house on tiptoes, with arms stretched above the head! Get the habit, anyway, of feeling yourself pulled up high, tall and 'ansum. This for reduction as well as for smart posture and those beautiful lines of body we want you to have.

While you're walking around on tiptoes, let your arms drop to your sides and swing them up again in a wide sweep with hands meeting overhead, meanwhile keeping the body stretched tall. Do this as many times during the day as you can manage.

Now, if you happen to be one of those girls who'd pass for 16 except for a fattish lump on the back of your neck or between the shoulder blades, you need an extra tug on the upper part of your spine. Incidentally, almost invariably where the back of the neck is bumpy, the chinline is not clean cut. It's either frankly leading a double life—that chin—or it's flirting with the double-life idea.

Your spine needs extra stretching. So, I'm offering you today a means of getting that bump off. Incidentally, is there anything that makes a frock so dowdyish looking as the thick back shoulder line?

Get down on the floor. Give yourself a good long pull on all muscles from head to toe as a preparatory move. Then, clasp your hands behind your head. Bring your elbows as close together as you can. (Don't overlook this important instruction.) Let the weight of the head fall on the hands and hold the chin in. Now, with your hands pull your head forward as far as you can without discomfort. You'll feel the stretch all along the back of your neck o. k. if you're doing this right.

Relax between each pull forward of the head. Don't try to get yourself up in a sitting position yet. That will come easily later. This exercise is a bit strenuous, so better not try more than five times at first. But if you keep at it you won't have to wear a cape to disguise that lumpish upper back.

Doris Tells Lou to Be Herself, Forget Woes

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Recently a girl told me that she became popular by always smiling, talking and being animated. Now, I must admit frankly that I lack animation. I wish I could be animated at all times, but it isn't in me. If, on special occasions, I try to act animated, the effort exhausts me. It seems to me that I lack the enthusiasm a girl my age should possess.

"I'm in good health. I've tried to psychoanalyze myself many times as to why I'm unhappy, why I find no joy in living. I had an unhappy childhood and lack of parental understanding as a child.—Lou."

It's not your act, "Lou," to be the animated doll." It is the other girl's. And any time you try playing the other one's rôle in an effort to please, you become a flop. You have your own act, "Lou." We all have! Greta Garbo has hers. Clara Bow, hers. Janet Gaynor, hers, and so on.

True, you can't be a dull doll, a stupid one, one without any enthusiasms at all. That wouldn't be normal. But if you're a little reserved by nature, there's no use trying to convert yourself suddenly into a little Miss Cutup. It can't be done—successfully. But reserved people may have their enthusiasms. They may reflect in their own quiet way a whole well of enthusiasms. They may be just as vital, just as compelling as the other type, more so even, providing their reserve isn't allowed to take on a tone of bitterness.

Now, about this psychoanalyzing of self. It's no healthy habit for a young girl. Leave that for the gentlemen who get paid for their performances. You have no business with it when you're trying to locate causes for your lonesome dilemma. You're not original at all in looking back upon that unhappy childhood of yours as an influencing factor. It's a common alibi for self-failure.

Perhaps it wasn't a merry childhood. But, goodness, can you keep pondering it and expect to go on and do something with your life. Forget it. Countless numbers have had to forget the grievances [fancied or real] of childhood days. This is your weakness, "Lou." Shake out of it and you'll find the enthusiasms your soul craves. There are plenty of them about in this world of ours today.

Take Time to Come When Your Child Calls You

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"Mommie, look—come here!"

The house of blocks has just been finished. That moment, that peak of accomplishment, must be shared for his satisfaction to be complete—but, "I can't come now, honey. I'm busy. Wait till I get through," is the answer the little boy gets. His mother may remember and come in in fifteen minutes. But for him the moment has gone.

How tired little children must get of the words "busy" or "wait." And how often they are used when it isn't necessary, when, if a mother cared enough or understood enough, she could stop her housework for a few minutes and sit down on the floor to admire and to talk over the latest achievement.

The practical housewife may object at this point and say, "But my work has to be done and if I stop all the time where shall I be?"

The answer is, "You'll be a little longer getting your house in order. Or you may have to leave something undone or not done so well." As Patrick Henry said, "If that be treason, make the most of it."

But does that matter so much? Is the house so important that it should be allowed to interfere with your responsiveness to your little boy or girl? Should it be allowed to prevent your sharing their play and answering their questions?

These are important days to the very little son and daughter. These are the days when the acquiring of a simple skill, the coördination of a new set of muscles as shown by building or drawing or hammering, is a great event to him.

We grownups can't savor a success alone, can we? Neither can a child. And what you mean to him and what he means to you in these beginning years is tremendously important.

Pajamas Give Way to Skirts for Beaches

Startling New Winter Vacation Outfits on Display.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If by some weird chance of fate you have been able to add your Christmas checks up to a grand total that will enable you to plan for a winter vacation, your first thought will be clothes: New clothes, crisp fresh ideas that will cause your shopping pulse to flutter a bit madly while they are paraded before your hungry eyes.

You are going to see some startling new things; double duty dresses, for instance, that go places alone, at night, without the matching jacket, or are transformed with a clever cape collar, or trot about during the day as a simple little suit with the jacket.

The cotton frocks you will wear from early morn till late in the afternoon are charming. They are made of fine striped cottons, pastel tinted linen and the new losely woven cotton ratines. All are sleeveless and most of them are backless or crossed with a couple of straps. Intricate detail marks the best of them.

As for 1933 trimmings you'll see lots of super-imposed bands of the material used as hip accents, pocket facings and neckline outlines. But the best new ideas are the millions of pleats that are used in daytime dresses, suits and even coats. Skirts are pleated in sections, in back, in front, and all the way around the lower edge. Sleeves are pleated, blouses are tucked and pleated and unquestionably the summer gal will swish and snap with all the new fashionable pleats that have taken the first collections by storm.

Beach clothes are as gawdy and color gay as posible, but you'll notice thankfully, or sadly, depending upon the slimness of your silhouette, the passing of the beach pajamas. This year you'll lounge around the best beaches in skirts, and long ankle covering skirts at that, but they are effectively smart flaring models that tie snugly around your hips and waistline, like a Javanese dancer's skirt. Very brief jacket waistcoats of the same material fashion the tie on tops of these beach dresses and either a cartwheel size hat or a small skull tight turban is used.

You are going to see the revival of linen, a super linen that can be packed indiscriminately with layers of other apparel; a linen that will emerge nonchantly from the depths of the well stuffed suitcase or trunk, without the usual distressing rumpled appearance that made it the bad actress before. Natural linen dresses are extremely smart this year, especially the stuff that looks like the old fashioned crash. Some of the swankiest dresses are made of this good looking stuff, with equisite tailored details, pleats, and pockets. One particularly interesting dress is fashioned with a turnover collar and contrasted with a vivid linen four in hand tie to match a stitched belt.

One outstanding evening ensemble to be packed in resort going trunks and to be worn later in the spring or early summer, is made of a supple, printed taffeta. The greyed black background is contrasted with a pale grey white leaf design that is small and precise. The dress is made with a pleated skirt that is long, the neckline is square, high in front, and cut out deep in the back, while a deep burnt orange sash belt is a splendid contrast. The hip length coat is made simply but smartly with a semi-fitted silhouette. The sleeves are long, the neckline is high and ties with a scarf collar that matches the tie belt used at the pinched in waistline. These are but a few hints of what you will be able to find in all the new resort collections that are to be found in Chicago's fashion wise shops and stores.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Practical, inexpensive to make, and up to the minute in every detail is this chic dress. Black blistered crêpe satin, using the reverse side for the neck band, upper sleeves, and cuffs, on a rough gray silk crêpe combined with a fuchsia red rough crêpe, are two smart suggestions.

The pattern, No. 3,267, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Note—Clotilde patterns are made in New York exclusively for THE CHICAGO DAILY TRIBUNE. They are perfect in fit, up to date in style, and the easiest of all patterns to use.

The Winter Fashion Magazine, a 32 page Clotilde pattern book in color, is available for 15 cents a copy; but if a Clotilde pattern is ordered at the same time, the price of the magazine is only 10 cents. Be Sensible about the FLU

With every epidemic of influenza comes an epidemic of advice. But if you have the flu—or you even suspect its presence—there's just one thing to do. Call a doctor immediately.

There are, however, some simple and sensible precautions everyone should take at this time. Try to keep in good physical condition. Guard against colds or sore throat by avoiding contact with all coughers and sneezers. The germs of disease will often fasten upon the man or woman whose vitality has been lowered by a severe cold.

If you should catch a cold, Bayer Aspirin will help fight it. Keep a supply of these tablets in the house and take them according to directions at the first sign of any cold. Crush three Bayer Aspirin tablets in half a glass of water and gargle as directed, if there is any soreness of the throat.

Be sure to use the genuine Bayer Aspirin tablets stamped with the Bayer cross.

Above all, don't delay calling your doctor if you have reason to suspect that you may have caught the flu.

SCHOOL BUDGET TO REFLECT HIGH COST OF DEBTS

1933 Estimate Fixed at Nearly 21 Million.

The effect of the tax strike and reassessment in Chicago is reflected in the rising cost of debt service for the school system. The total set up for debt service in the revised estimates on the 1933 school budget is $20,875,074. It was $19,188,887 in the 1932 budget, Harry Brackett, school auditor, revealed yesterday.

The cost of meeting bonds maturing in 1933 will be $6,405,500, or an increase of $555,500 over 1932. Interest obligations on bonds in 1933 will cost the board $768,500. The same charge in 1932 was $642,500.

The bond issues were authorized at a special session of the legislature in the summer of 1930. Their purpose was to create a working cash fund for the board so as to eliminate the need for issuing tax anticipation warrants. Educational fund and building fund bonds were approved in order to redeem tax warrants and outstanding interest.

Interest on Loans.

Another increased charge for the school board in 1933 will be the interest on temporary loans. In 1932 this item amounted to $5,330,000. In the 1933 budget these interest obligations will total $5,595,000, or an increase of $265,000.

The items under the heading, debt service, in the tentative budgetary estimates for 1933 are listed as follows:

Educational fund	$ 5,059,404
Building fund	1,903,489
Text book fund	131,413
Playground fund	82,133
Teachers' pension and retirement fund	131,413
Revolving bond fund	620,000
Educational bond fund	176,222
Interest on temporary loans.
Educational fund	$ 4,450,000
Building fund	1,100,000
Playground fund	45,000
Redemption of bonds.
Educational fund	$ 1,400,000
Building fund	5,500
Revolving fund	5,000,000
Interest on bonds.
Educational fund	$ 186,000
Building fund	2,500
Revolving fund	580,000
Total	$20,875,074

Fixed Charges Items.

The items for fixed charges in next year's budget is $2,077,909, practically the same as for 1932. Included in this classification are retirements under the Miller law, $850,000; teachers' pensions, $1,184,187; rent and insurance, $38,722, and additional for rent, $5,000.

Mr. Brackett and his staff of accountants hope to complete the revised estimates of the 1933 year's budget today. The totals for the building fund have not yet been fixed.

COLLECT $181,000 IN ALIMONY AND SUPPORT MONEY

The court service division of the county bureau of public welfare collected $181,000 from relatives and husbands for dependent persons and ex-wives during 1932. Of this amount $60,000 was paid out to dependent persons who are supported by relatives. The remainder was collected for divorced wives, in most cases for the support of minor children.

These facts were revealed when Miss Ruth Coleman, head of the court service division of the welfare bureau, made her annual report. The collection of alimony and support money is undertaken by the division only in those cases where women have been granted either separate maintenance or divorce decrees. If the court orders are disregarded by former husbands an attempt is made to secure voluntary compliance. When this measure fails the matter is placed in the hands of the welfare bureau lawyers, who force the payment of the money through court action.

Doctor Gives Creosote For Dangerous Coughs

For many years our best doctors have prescribed creosote in some form for coughs, colds and bronchitis, knowing how dangerous it is to let them hang on.

Creomulsion with creosote and six other highly important medicinal elements quickly and effectively stops all coughs and colds that otherwise might lead to serious trouble.

Creomulsion is powerful in the treatment of all colds and coughs, no matter how long standing, yet it is absolutely harmless and is pleasant and easy to take.

Your own druggist guarantees Creomulsion by refunding your money if you are not relieved after taking Creomulsion as directed. Beware the cough or cold that hangs on. Always keep Creomulsion on hand for instant use. (Adv.)

PLAN TO START THIS WEEK ON SUBWAY PARLEY

Property Owners Propose Changes in Plans.

Corporation Counsel Sexton announced yesterday that he would undertake this week to open the series of conferences that has been planned between city engineers and representatives of interested property owners on objections raised by the latter to engineering features of the proposed State street subway.

The trial of the special assessment cases against the property owners whom the city would have pay a portion of the subway cost has been postponed pending a possible settlement out of court of the objections. Meanwhile, expenditures from the city traction fund for subway plans have been considerably reduced.

May Be Further Cuts.

The salaries paid from this fund average now about $4,000 a month, while for the first ten months of this year the average was more than $17,000 and for the twelve months of 1931 it was $90,472. When the conferences get started and it is known just what services will be required to present the city's case, the traction pay roll may be pruned more, according to reports in the city hall.

An examination of the pay roll for the first two weeks of December showed that the subway bureau and the council committee on local transportation carried three engineers, two surveyors' rodmen and three clerks for a montly total of $876. Two valuators, who are paid $20 a day each and work four days a week, are on the roll of the board of local improvements.

Only two attorneys, the records show, are being paid out of the traction fund. Irvin Rooks, attorney for the board of local improvements, is paid $5,000 a year, minus a 21 per cent pay cut and Attorney Walter L. Fisher's salary, acording to Ald. James B. Bowler [25th], chairman of the transportation committee, has been reduced from $5,000 a month to $2,500. The records show that Fisher has not been paid since July 9.

Owners Propose Changes.

Among the changes in the subway plans proposed by State street and other property owners who would be assessed, are the elimination of the mezzanine level and alterations in other structural features. The purpose of the changes, the property owners say, is to reduce the cost of the subway. The reduction, according to Attorney Rooks, would be about $1,000,000. He declared that the features which the property owners propose to abolish are worth far more than that.

A second suggestion was that the subway be changed from a four track to a two track tube, and also that the tube be built on caissons instead of on the floating foundations now provided by the engineers' plans. Adoption of any of these proposed changes is opposed by the city enginers.

Bolivian Planes Bombard Paraguayan River Port

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Renewing an aerial campaign along the upper Paraguay river after observing strictly a Christmas truce, Bolivian planes this afternoon twice bombarded Puerto Pacheco slightly below Bahia Negra. A Paraguayan gunboat and a seaplane anchored in the port fled into the river and escaped the bombs.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 69; recovered, 57; stripped, 15 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Sunday].

In the eleven months ending Nov. 30, 33,173 automobiles were stolen in Chicago, an average of approximately 100 a day.

It was shown in a report of the police automobile division that 29,443 cars were recovered and returned to their owners in the same period, making the number stolen and kept by the thieves, or disposed of by them, 3,730. The recovery record is considerably better than that of 1931. In that year the cars stolen exceeded those recovered by 6,966.

Acting Capt. Philip Parodi, in charge of the division, and his assistant, Lieut. George Teeling, said that a large proportion of stolen cars are stripped before being regained by the owners. One reason why accessories, especially tires, cannot be traced is the failure of car owners to keep records by which the accessories can be identified. Only one car owner in keeps the numbers on his tires.

FOUR CHICAGO QUINTETS WIN IN STAGG MEET

O'DOUL TAKES N. L. BATTING TITLE WITH .368

[AVERAGES ON PAGE 18.]

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Frank J. O'Doul, Brooklyn's left handed slugger, today officially was pronounced batting champion of the National league for the 1932 season, but Chuck Klein of the Phillies walked off with the all around laurels.

Leader in three hitting departments and champion base stealer of the circuit, Klein also was third in batting, tied for home run honors, second in hitting doubles, third in triples, and a smart fielding player.

Chuck scored 152 runs, only six below his own league record, hit safely 226 times, leading Bill Terry, Giants' manager, by one, and his hits went for 420 bases. He hit 50 doubles and 15 triples and stole 20 bases, two more than Frank Frisch and George Watkins of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Frank Far Ahead.

In contrast to the 1931 campaign, when Chick Hafey, Terry, and Jim Bottomley finished in a virtual tie for the leadership with averages of .348, separated only by fractions, O'Doul left no doubt about his 1932 superiority. His mark of 148 games was .368, 20 above last year's winning percentage and 18 ahead of the nearest regular, Terry.

The list of leaders gave an outstanding example of the consistency of the star hitters, as the first four for 1932 all were among the first five for 1931 with only Bottomley dropping back and all the first ten were listed among the league's regular .300 hitters.

Klein was only two points behind Terry at .348, followed by Hafey, playing with Cincinnati, at .344; Paul Waner, Pittsburgh, .341; Don Hurst, Philadelphia, .339; Ernie Orsatti, St Louis, .336; Virgil Davis, Philadelphia, .333; Lloyd Waner, Pittsburgh, .333; and Harold [Pie] Traynor, Pittsburgh, .329.

Paul Breaks Doubles Record.

Only a few hitting records fell before the bats of the National leaguers playing for the second year with the deadened ball, although Klein's performance threatened several others that he set two years before. Paul Waner walloped 62 doubles, surpassing by three the National league mark Klein established in 1930, but five short of the major league record of 67 set by Earl Webb of the Red Sox in 1931. In the course of making his doubles Waner tied another by hitting four in one game.

Johnny Frederick of Brooklyn doubled the old record for hitting home runs as a pinch hitter when he came through six times during the season. Hamilton Hyatt of Pittsburgh, in 1913, Fred Williams of Philadelphia, in 1928, and Cliff Crawford, of New York in 1927, were the ones to hit three pinch homers.

Terry on Home Run Spree.

Terry hit six home runs in four days during an early season burst to tie a major league mark held by Klein, Babe Ruth and Ken Williams, of the St. Louis Browns. A minus record was made by the Giants, who hit only 49 sacrifices during the season for a new low.

Of the other miscellaneous hitting records, Floyd [Babe] Herman, then of Cincinnati, got 19 triples for first place; O'Doul hit 158 singles for top ranking in that department; Hughey Critz of the Giants, appeared at bat the most times, 659, and Dick Bartell of the Phillies, sacrificed 35 times.

Bear Eleven Beats Boston Braves, 25-0

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, led by Red Grange and Bronko Nagurski, trounced the Boston Braves here today, 25 to 0, in a professional football game for the benefit of the community chest.

The Massachusetts team was outclassed in every way by the Chicago eleven, which outweighed the Braves nearly 20 pounds to the man.

Nagurski carried the ball across for two touchdowns, the first coming after a drive of 51 yards in a series of line plunges.

Grange made the second touchdown on a long pass from Nagurski, which, with Grange's run, netted 57 yards. Engebretsen made the extra point with a place kick.

Another long pass from Nagurski to Grange put the Bears within striking distance of the goal line again and Nagurski carried the ball over for the third touchdown. The fourth touchdown was scored by Johnson on a pass from Doehring.

ROSE BOWL GAME TICKET OFFICE ROBBED OF $653

THE GUMPS STILL THINK UNCLE BIM IS PEEVED AT THEM FOR NOT MAKING MORE OF A FUSS OVER HIM WHEN HE WALKED IN ON THEM AS A PENNILESS BEGGER—
MIN MADE SOME VERY CAUSTIC REMARKS AND NEARLY SPILLED THE BEANS—
WELL—WE NEARLY LOST OUR UNCLE—AND YOU WERE GOING TO LET HIM GO—YOU DIDN'T HAVE ROOM FOR HIM WHEN YOU THOUGHT HE WAS BROKE—IT'S A GOOD THING I THREW MY ARMS AROUND HIM AND OFFERED HIM HALF OF ALL WE HAD OR HE WOULD HAVE GONE—AND IT WOULD HAVE BEEN ALL YOUR FAULT—
YOU OUGHT TO MAKE UP TO HIM—I STILL THINK HE GOT SORE WHEN YOU TOLD HIM IT WAS TOO BAD HE HADN'T SAVED ANYTHING FOR HIS OLD AGE—THERE HE IS NOW—GO ON IN AND MAKE A FUSS OVER HIM—WHAT SHALL I SAY?
HA! HA! HA! SO THE OLD BOY THOUGHT HE PULLED A FAST ONE ON US—YOU WERE VERY FOXY-EH? SAY—YOU'LL HAVE TO GET UP PRETTY EARLY TO PUT ANYTHING LIKE THAT OVER ON YOUR OLD PALS—ANDY AND MIN—
YOU DEAR OLD SWEET THING—IT'S TOO BAD THAT YOU'RE NOT PENNILESS AND BROKE SOMETIME—SO THAT WE COULD SHOW YOU WHAT A ROYAL RECEPTION YOU WOULD GET WHEN YOU CAME TO SEE US—

In the WAKE of the NEWS

OUTSTANDING ATHLETES.

In a nation-wide poll of sports writers Gene Sarazen was voted the outstanding athlete of 1932 among men and Mildred (call me Babe) Didrikson among women. These choices are in a measure surprising, not because of the persons named, but because of the sports they represent.

Sarazen, no doubt, was selected because he captured in the same year the American and British open golf titles, a feat previously recorded only by the peerless Bobby Jones in 1926 and 1930. Even the great "Haig," Walter Hagen, twice winner of the American open and four times British champion, was unable to synchronize these triumphs in the same year.

Golf probably has more amateur participants than any other sport, even baseball. Yet it is not a spectators' game. Galleries of five thousand at a title match overrun a golf course and become almost unmanageable. Baseball crowds of sixty thousand, prize fight assemblages of one hundred thousand, and football gatherings of from fifty thousand to one hundred thousand are not uncommon.

Baseball is called our national sport. Babe Ruth is the calcium light figure of baseball, even if supplanted in the last year as home run leader by Jimmy Foxx. Yet Sarazen received 52 votes as against 32 for Foxx and 20 for Ruth. Harry Newman was the leading football player with only 12 votes. In the pugilistic ranks one goes far down the list before finding Tony Canzoneri with eight. Then one searches through the one vote list before meeting the name of Jack Sharkey, world heavyweight champion. Shades of John L. Sullivan, what a showing!

Now Babe Didrikson has been exploited and publicized until her choice is nothing of a shock. Yet track athletics, except in a few parts of these United States, do not attract many spectators. The Olympic games were an exception and that is where Babe capitalized—capitalized used advisedly, if she adheres to her decision to turn pro. Chicago, in particular, has been luke warm to this entertaining branch of sport.

So Babe's selection as the outstanding woman athlete of 1932 is not unusual unless you consider her 77 votes against the 21 for Helen Wills Moody, perennial tennis champion, or the 16 votes for Virginia Van Wie, who achieved after many years' effort the national golf title. Far down in the list with one vote is Amelia Earhart, aviatrix.

The Wake has no objection to the selections. We are surprised baseball did not fare better in the balloting and that Ellsworth Vines, attaining world tennis premiership for the first time for America in years, did not run a closer second—or first—to Sarazen than 56 to 52.

Thoughts of This Season.

Beautiful is the dawn
That wakens
In the fragrance of a new day
With laughter on its lips
For having seen
Wondrous gifts of God
That all around us lay.

Blessed is the evening
That follows
Mingling violets with rays of gold
And lullabys on wings
Of every breeze,
Murmuring peace and slumber

Noble Kizer.

The Purdue Alumni association has issued an illustrated leaflet under the title, "An Enviable Record," giving Purdue's gridiron record since the accession of Noble E. Kizer to the coaching staff—assistant coach 1925-'29, and head coach 1930-'32. The record shows 27 victories, 10 defeats, and 3 ties. In that period Purdue was undisputed champion in 1929, co-champion with Northwestern and Michigan in 1931, and second this year to Michigan, although undefeated, because of a tie game with Northwestern.

NOMINATE KNOX, CHICAGOAN, FOR NET PRESIDENCY

Action Result of "Revolt" Against East.

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—Harry S. Knox of Chicago, first vice president of the United States Lawn Tennis association, today was named by the nominating committee for president in 1933, the first man from the midwest to be so honored since Dwight F. Davis, donor of the International cup, was elected to the office in 1923.

Knox succeeds Louis W. Carruthers of New York, president for two years, who declined to be considered for renomination because of the press of business interests.

Nomination Result of "Revolt."

The nomination is the culmination of a "revolt" by certain eastern elements in the association and the midwest and far west organizations against alleged domination of U. S. L. T. A. affairs by the eastern group, which has held the presidency and other important offices without a break for nine years. The "revolt" was suppressed last year at the New Orleans meeting, but has been gaining headway since.

One concession was made to the "old guard" in the insertion of the name of Holcombe Ward, president of the Eastern association, as first vice president ahead of Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City, who was in line for promotion from the second vice presidency he held last year after being elevated from the post of secretary. Ivy was renominated for second vice president.

Renominate Baker Secretary.

Lawrence A. Baker of Washington, D. C., the "old guard" nominee of 1932, who defeated one of the insurgents, Paul W. Gibbons of Philadelphia, for the secretaryship last year, was renominated for that post and Walter Merrill Hall of New York was renominated as treasurer.

Although there have been upsets at the convention in the slate of nominees, the vote generally follows the list as presented.

Five were nominated as delegates at large: Alrick H. Man and Walter L. Pate of New York City, Harry S. Walsh and Chester C. Johnson of Chicago and Joseph W. Wear of Philadelphia. Man was nominated at the request of the California association, as he formerly was a resident of that state and familiar with the far western problems.

Brown Named Chairman.

Wray D. Brown of St. Louis, subchairman of this year's nominating committee, was nominated as chairman of that group in 1933, with Charles N. Beard of Philadelphia, Capt. James H. Bishop of Culver, Ind., Dr. S. Ellsworth Davenport of New York, and John Temple Graves of Birmingham, Ala., as the other members.

In making the report Ralph Westcott of Chicago, the chairman, said:

"One universal comment your committee received from all sections of the country was praise for the administration of President Carruthers."

The annual meeting is to be held in February.

KNOX IS EXPERIENCED.

Harry S. Knox, nominated yesterday in New York for the presidency of the United States Lawn Tennis association for 1933, is known as the greatest promoter of junior development in tennis in the central states.

Knox, in his early fifties, has been connected with the sport for 30 years. He served as president of the Chicago Tennis association, treasurer of the Western Tennis association, and secretary and later a vice president of the national organization. At present he is chairman of the national association committee in junior development.

Dye Hits Referee as His Hockey Team Loses, 2-1

Gilbert Scores on Three Mounts; Total Hits 208

New Orleans, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Johnny Gilbert apparently rode to the 1932 jockey championship today when he brought in three winning mounts at Jefferson Park. The feat brought his total for the year to 208. Hank Mills, his closest rival, who led at the beginning of the meeting, could not add to his total of 194.

To overtake Gilbert, Mills would have to get a triple for the remaining five days of the year while his rival got none. In this event, Mills would win the title by a point. Gilbert's three winners today were Drombo in the third, Justina in the fourth, and Jack Biener in the sixth.

Gilbert's feat is the best record created since Vincent Powers scored with 324 mounts in 1908. The modern record of 207 was set in 1927 by L. Hardy. Walter Miller holds the world's record with a total of 388 winners, which he rode in 1906, out of a total of 1,384 mounts.

The day's feature, the fourteenth running of the Christmas handicap, fell to Mrs. Emil Denemark's Pigeon Hole, a stake racer a couple of years ago when he bore the silks of Hal Price Headley.

Pigeon Hole won by two lengths under excellent handling by T. P. Martin, and returned $10.60 for $2. Nell Kuhlman was second and Hillsborough third. The winner finished the mile over a deep, holding track and through a driving rain in 1:47 1-5.

Carnegie Tech and N. Y. U. to Meet Nov. 25 Next Year

Packers Beat Honolulu Prep Alumni, 19-13

HONOLULU, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers, professional football team from the Wisconsin city, defeated a fighting band of prep school players calling themselves the Kamehameha alumni, 19 to 13, here today after Kamehameha had ended the first half leading 7 to 6.

Outweighed nearly thirty pounds to the man, the Honolulu team, composed of all the diverse races of the islands, slipped through the heavy Packer line with an attack that sparkled into the final minutes of the game when they completed three passes for an eighty yard march down field to their second touchdown.

Cold wind which swept down off the Oahu mountains, where it was raining, made excellent football weather of a day that otherwise would have been warm.

Led by the 150 pound, part Hawaiian, high school half back, Danny Wise, the local team scored on the first play tried. They held the Packers for downs on the Kamehameha 20 yard line when the game was three minutes old. Then Wise shot a 55 yard pass to Kerr for a touchdown. Wise kicked the goal.

Unable to break through the light Kamehameha line the Packers took to the air in the second period and scored a touchdown on a pass from Herber to Engleman. Herber missed the kick in trying for the extra point.

Dilweg intercepted a Kamehameha pass in the third period and ran thirty yards to a touchdown, but again the kick was missed. In the final quarter the passing combination of Herber to Rose brought the Packers' final score. Herber's goal kick was good.

Again taking the ball on downs on its own twenty yard line with three minutes to play, Kamehameha opened a passing attack. Wise tossed one to Kerr that was good for 35 yards. He completed another to Kerr for twenty yards. On the next play Wise tossed the ball again to Kerr for a twenty-five yard gain and a touchdown.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THE sharp reduction in gridiron fatalities and serious injuries during the 1932 season leads you to the opinion that the rules makers did a good job last spring when they inserted certain restrictions calculated to decrease the chances of physical disability.

Some coaches contend that the changes in the playing code had nothing to do with it. They hold that 1931 was an abnormal year for injuries and that the decrease would have occurred this season, changes or no changes.

Noble Kizer of Purdue, however, believes that at least one of the new provisions had an important bearing. He refers to the regulation permitting a player who has been taken out of the game to return in any subsequent period.

"Most injuries occur when a player is nearing physical exhaustion," Kizer explained. "Under the old rule coaches who sometimes were more interested in their reputations than in the well being of their athletes allowed a man to stay in the game when he really was unable to give his best. Perhaps there was no substitute in whom the coach had confidence. This condition was true particularly in the last half of close games.

"Suppose you had an expert forward passer who early in the third quarter suffered a twisted ankle or knee. He still was able to keep going, but with every play increased the likelihood of aggravating his condition. Your team was trailing by a touchdown and about your only hope to snatch the game out of the fire was by a forward pass. Knowing that once you took him out he could not return, you probably would let him in there longer than was good for him.

"Under the new rule it isn't necessary to play men in that condition. A fellow slightly injured in the third quarter may be taken out, rested until he has regained his strength and sent back in the closing period, if necessary. This provision enables a coach to keep players who are practically fresh on the field throughout the game," Kizer stated.

The congratulations of the football fans of the middle west, to which I would like to add my own, are due Harry Newman, University of Michigan's great quarter back who has won THE TRIBUNE trophy for being the most valuable man to his team of any player in the Western conference.

Newman won the award in the fairest competition the sport provides. His selection was not the opinion of one man or a small group of men. The honor which eventually came to him originated with the members of the Michigan squad. His co-workers, the linemen who opened the holes for his runs, the back field men whose blocking swept tacklers out of his path chose him as the most valuable player on the squad. There could be no higher recommendation.

Newman's name then was presented to a committee made up of the athletic directors, coaches, and football officials of the Big Ten. The fact that more prominent names came before this group for consideration than ever before is additional reason why Newman has reason to feel happy over the award.

They said that Heartly Anderson had the hardest assignment in sport when he was asked to step into the position at Notre Dame vacated by the late Knute Rockne. They can add another. I mean Thomas Nelson Metcalf of Iowa State. He was given the job of firing A. A. Stagg. When officials of the University of Chicago decided that forty-one years of service was enough for Stagg, Metcalf was named athletic director.

President Hutchins and members of the board of trustees said that the reappointment or dismissal of Stagg as football coach was entirely up to Metcalf. That made it easy, of course—for President Hutchins and the board of trustees.

9:30—Crane vs. Thornton.

Four city league teams and four from the suburbs survived the opening day's play of the Christmas week high school basketball tournament at the University of Chicago fieldhouse yesterday.

The winners, who will be paired in the following order for second round games beginning at noon tomorrow, were: Parker, Roosevelt, York of Elmhurst, St. Charles, McKinley, Senn, New Trier, and Proviso. Those eliminated were Maine Township, La Grange, Fenger, Austin, Elgin, Tilden, Englewood, and Morgan Park.

Parker Just Too Tall.

A crowd of 1,500 saw a total of 404 points scored during the eight games, plenty of good scoring opportunities missed, and a fight all the way. In the opening game a lanky Parker team was just too tall for Maine and swept over the Township lads by a margin of 25 points, but the last seven games finished with an average of less than 5 points between winner and loser.

Eight games, beginning at noon today, will conclude the first round. Today's pairing brings into action seven of the eight teams which have gone into the semi-finals during the last two years, starting with Morton, last year's tournament champion. In addition, Lake View, led by Fred Troutwine, 6 foot 8 inch giant, will battle Bowen, although the promise of the latter team is dimmed by the illness of Capt. Frank Dolac.

The University of Chicago team will divide the evening program of the tournament at 8 o'clock when it comes on the floor to meet Beloit college in its second preconference season game. The Maroons hope to have Chiz Evans, eligible now after an absence from school, at one of the forward posts.

Long and Short Heroes.

The two heroes of yesterday's play were the tallest and the shortest boys in action. Leonard Rumpf, Parker's 6 foot 4 inch center, handed the ball into the basket 13 times, nine times from the field and four times from the free throw line, to lead all individual scoring for the day. Tipler of Morgan Park and De Larme of McKinley divided second scoring honors with 15 points each.

It was Sammy Adler, 5 foot 3 inch star of the Senn team, however, who really caught the fancy of the crowd and, incidentally, won the game for his team. Adler, recruited from Senn's lightweight squad, accumulated a shiner on one eye early in Senn's game with Tilden, seven points to lead the scoring of the match, a great deal of applause and a basket from midfloor with 15 seconds to go which proved the winning margin.

Senn Noses Out Tilden.

Senn opened the evening play with an upset by outscrambling the rangy Tilden Tech five, 26 to 24. The south siders took a lead of 7 to 2 at the quarter before Elliott, Smith, and Sharf of Senn collaborated on enough goals to give the north section team a 14 to 12 advantage at the half.

Jack Sinding, New Trier forward, led his team to a 22 to 15 victory over Englewood in the second match of the evening. Technically the game was the most polished of the day, smooth passing against systematic defense. The suburbanites had a height advantage which was the chief difference. Each team had a scoring hero, Capt. Sam Kelly accounting for 12 of Englewood's points with three field goals and three free throws and Sinding accumulating eleven points with five goals and one free toss.

This Was a Thriller.

The last minutes of the evening were the most exciting of the day's many spirited moments. Proviso and Morgan Park alternated in the lead with the timer's gun in readiness until Fink of Proviso scored from under the basket five seconds before the finish to give his team a 24 to 23 victory.

Led by Rumpf, Parker walked over Maine township, 36 to 11. Rumpf scored nine baskets and four free throws for 22 points. The victors led at the half, 14 to 7. Maine was held scoreless in the last period.

A fourth quarter spurt, which netted 14 points, gave Roosevelt a 31 to 20 victory over La Grange. La Grange was ahead 5 to 4 at the end of the first period. The teams were tied at the half and third quarter, 11 to 11 and 17 to 17, respectively.

SONS, DAUGHTERS OF TURF STARS AWAIT DEBUTS

Eyes of Chicago Will Be on Our Count.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Some very fine demonstrations as to whether heredity or environment is the stronger in a thoroughbred race horse will be given in such famous stakes as the Arlington, Belmont, Pimlico, and Breeders' Futurities next season.

Not in a score of seasons have so many sons and daughters and kid brothers and sisters of famous race horses come along to take up the battle where their noted ancestors left off. Their tests will have every racegoer and all the students of breeding in suspense.

Throughout the country, and particularly in Chicago, the performances of Reigh Count's first sons and daughters will be awaited with great interest. Down in Kentucky brothers and half brothers of Bubbling Over and Blue Larkspur are to be sent to the races. It isn't any wonder that there's excitement around Col. E. R. Bradley's Idle Hour farm. A young sister to Ladysman is on Warren Wright's Calumet farm in Kentucky, and she is coming in for much attention.

East Has Its Attractions.

In the east brothers and sisters of Twenty Grand, American Flag, Sun Beau, Jamestown, Gusto, Hi-Jack, Jack High, and many other famous horses are to make their first trips to the barrier when the new season rolls around.

And a brother to the notorious in and outer, Brown Wisdom, will make his debut in the west during the 1933 season.

Most of these young horses have been named and the names are in the hands of the registrar of the Jockey club in New York, but it will be some time before even the owners know whether they have been approved.

A few of the most celebrated mares ever to race in America will send sons or daughters out to do battle during the coming season. Among them are Oh Susanna, Handy Mandy, Mother Goose, Cleopatra, Nimba, Priscilla Ruley, Alice Blue Gown, Jean Bowdre, and Blossom Time.

They'll Watch Our Count.

The 2 year old whose racing fortunes will be watched more closely than any other young horse of his age will be Our Count, the son of Reigh Count-Anita Peabody, which will race for Mrs. John Hertz.

The glamour of his mother and father's first and second in the Belmont Futurity of 1927 has made this fellow a marked horse. He has the looks of a champion yet the history of thoroughbred blood lines mixtures show that it will be the next thing to a miracle if he should be as good as his dam or sire.

The 3 year old which will command most attention will be Boilermaker. He is a son of Bubbling Over-Vaila and didn't live up to the Bradley expectations as a 2 year old. Yet he only started twice and was thrown out of training when a slight lameness developed.

"I think this is the best colt we've ever had on Idle Hour farm," Dick Thompson, the head Bradley trainer, says of the son of Bubbling Over.

Accurate shooting in the second and third periods gave St. Charles a 29 to 25 victory over Austin.

McKinley defeated Elgin, 33 to 29, in a loosely played game. The westsiders had a slight edge in both speed and floor play. Elgin was kept in the game by the shooting of Silogy and Humbracht, who scored seven and eight points, respectively.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Dec. 26. —(AP)—Bahamas, 3 year old gelding of the Oak Tree stables, won the $2,000 added Christmas handicap by a nose after a thrilling stretch duel with Wirt G. Bowman, veteran campaigner, owned by A. A. Baroni.

Covering the course of a mile and 70 yards in 1:42 3-5, Bahamas paid $3.40 to win, $3.20 to place and $2.80 to show in the $2 mutuels. Up, owned by Ralph Emrie, was third.

Bahamas took the lead at the start of the race, increased it to seven lengths at the halfway mark, and held a good margin until he hit the stretch. Wirt G. Bowman moved up fast on the last turn, passing Jim Dandy and Up and getting on almost even terms with the winner, but in the last furlong he could not gain an inch.

Bahamas' time was two-fifths of a second over the track record. He was the favorite and carried 118 pounds. The race paid $1,735 to the winner. Wirt G. Bowman paid backers $5.40 for $2 in the mutuels in the second spot and Up paid $3.40 to show.

FREEMAN AND JONES DRAW IN LISTLESS BOUT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 26.—(AP)—While the crowd cried for greater action, Tommy Freeman of Cleveland, former welterweight champion, and Gorilla Jones, Akron, O., Negro, fought a listless 10 round draw today. The judges differed on the winner, while the referee voted for a draw. Freeman weighed 157½; Jones, 156.

Jacquette Elverilla, 146, Cleveland Negro, won the decision from Joey Spiegel, 145, of Uniontown, Pa., and Carl Mantavanno, 163½, of Braddock, Pa., gained the decision over I. T. Battles, 170½, Cleveland Negro, in six round bouts.

Huts Dot Ice of Lake Geneva as Ciscoes Bite

BY BOB BECKER.

Ice fishermen had their little shacks on the ice of Lake Geneva last week. The ciscoes had been biting and many anglers like to while away the mid-winter hours by fooling these fish with artificial lures.

When we visited Lake Geneva there were two items which made one think that winter really had come. First, there were the picturesque flocks of wild Canadian geese coming in to spend the night on the ice. We stood on one of the hills near the Yerkes observatory for quite a while to watch these big game birds appear in the sky way beyond the lake and then dip down to a safe night roost on the ice. As usual, the sonorous honking of the birds produced a thrilling broadcast for the ears of an outdoor fan.

Cisco Resembles Lake Herring.

The second sign of winter was the presence of the fishing shanties on the ice. These told us that cisco fishing had begun. At times fishermen have obtained long strings of this small food fish which is abundant in Lake Geneva.

The Lake Geneva cisco is by far the most interesting of all the American whitefishes. It does not differ greatly from the lake herring with the exception that the head seems to be slightly larger and the eye smaller. It may reach a length of 14 inches. The species which is found in Lake Geneva also is distributed through certain small deep water lakes of northern Indiana and other lakes in southern Wisconsin. It has a very tender mouth but can be caught on hook and line. When they are running just right the Lake Geneva fishers get many of them. A gold bead, which to us seems quite a high hat lure for just a plebeian member of the whitefish family, does the trick.

Available Only for Few Days.

David Starr Jordan, the distinguished student of American fishes, seems to be quite carried away by the cisco and lauds its peculiar characteristics. He takes the time to point out that it

S-S-H! LET HAWKS REST—THEY PLAY LEAFS TONIGHT

They'll Need It for Battle at Stadium.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The travel worn Chicago Blackhawks got home from their heroic travels yesterday and forthwith went to bed, planning to stay therein until shortly before time to go the Chicago Stadium tonight. Tonight, refreshed, they expect to conquer the world champion Maple Leafs for the third time this season and the second time in four nights.

Although the Hawks wound up their road trip by taking a 4 to 0 licking in Detroit Sunday night, their voyage was glamorous, as compared with their first road visitations. On their first trip the Hawks tied one game and lost three for a total of one point in the league standings. On the enterprise just concluded they tied the New York Americans, 0 to 0, for one point in the league tabulation, beat the Montreal Maroons, 4 to 1, for two more points, and brought the trip point total to five when they beat the Leafs in Toronto Saturday night, 2 to 1. Strangely enough, the two teams which they failed to beat trail them in the league while they are ranked by the two outfits which they blistered.

Leafs Bring Stars.

The Leafs' roster carries an exceptional number of stars who are favorites with Chicago fans. Jackson, Conacher and Primeau, the famous scoring line of the champions, always thrill the bugs here, and King Clancy is a villain the customers always like to ride.

While no effort has been made to give the encounter any grudge aspects, it is obvious that two defeats of the world champions at the hands of the Hawks has not lessened the determination of tonight's visitors to any extent whatsoever.

The first Hawk victory over the champs was a 3 to 1 affair in Chicago on Nov. 17. The victory was fast, but held no such unusual features as were contained in the clash at Toronto Saturday night. This game saw Charley Gardiner, up from a sickbed long enough to play, in a remarkable demonstration of skill and stamina.

Chuck Makes 55 Saves.

In the first period Gardiner made twenty stops to seven by Chabot; in the second period Chuck made twelve stops to two by Chabot, and in the final session Chuck headed off twenty three shots to nine for his goalie adversary—a total of fifty-five Chicago saves to eighteen for Toronto.

After tonight's affair the Hawks will have a chance to rest until next Sunday night, when they will hook up against the colorful but somewhat oppressed Canadiens. After the Canadiens come the Boston Bruins on Jan. 5. [The Bruins, incidentally, are the only team boasting a victory over the Hawks on Chicago ice—this by virtue of a 1 to 0 win on Dec. 15.] The third game of the home stand will be played against the Maroons on Sunday, Jan. 8, after which the Hawks will set out on their third eastern trip of the season.

TILT DEFEATS M'NALLY IN GLEN VIEW SHOOT

The largest crowd of the season at the Glen View traps yesterday saw C. A. Tilt and Fred L. McNally stage a spirited race for top honors in the regular weekly shoot. In the regular shoot Tilt came from behind to tie both turning in cards of 98s. In the shoot-off Tilt broke 25 straight, with McNally getting 24 during his second. It was Tilt's first win of the season.

In the protection shoot, W. E. Graham and R. C. Vilas Jr. won with a card of 47 out of a possible 50. The high gunners were:

	Birds. Broken.	Handicap.	Total.
C. A. Tilt	94	4	98
F. L. McNally	94	4	98
J. A. Bishop	88	8	96
J. J. Lewis	88	8	96
R. C. Vilas Jr.	84	12	96
H. M. Harper	90	5	95

M'HALES MEET TAYLOR TRUNK QUINTET TONIGHT

The McHale council will play the Taylor Trunk girls' basketball team at White City tonight. A preliminary opening game will bring together Carson-Pirie-Scott and the Rock Island railroad quintets.

The McHale-Taylor Trunk game will be the test of a men's team against the best girl players of the city. The Taylor Trunk team features two pairs of sister players, Helen and Inez Teague and Suds and Teddy Teighman.

HOPPE DEFEATS KIECKHEFER IN FIRST 2 BLOCKS

Hoppe won both matches decisively, taking the opening block 50 to 16 in 42 innings and the evening block 50 to 29 in 36 innings. Hoppe turned in high runs of 7 and 9.

The 50 point blocks will be played each day, one in the afternoon and the other in the evening. The match winds up Saturday night.

Mrs. Hayes Wins Divorce; Teddy and Lina Marry

New York, Dec. 26.—(AP)—A newspaper quotes Mrs. Dorothy Hayes today as saying that she has been granted a Mexican divorce from Teddy Hayes, former trainer of Jack Dempsey and more recently manager of Lina Basquette of the screen. The newspaper reports also that Hayes and Miss Basquette were married the day after notification of the divorce was received, which was Dec. 21. Friends of Hayes and the actress said they had received Christmas cards from them signed by Mr. and Mrs. Hayes.

C. Y. O. Boxing Team to Begin Workouts Today

The sixteen members of the Catholic Youth organization boxing team who will battle teams from Los Angeles and San Francisco at the Chicago Stadium on Jan. 6 will open intensive training today at the C. Y. O. athletic center.

Before them stretch almost ten days of road work and calisthenics, calculated to bring them to the ringside in shape. Packey McFarland, boxing director of the C. Y. O., will have personal supervision of the work of conditioning the boys.

"It isn't going to be a matter so much of putting the boys into shape," said McFarland, "as it will be in keeping them in condition."

If caution will prevent mishap during the intercity bouts, Bishop B. J. Sheil, chairman of the C. Y. O. boxing board, has left nothing undone. Before any boy goes into the ring at the Stadium he will have undergone a physical examination at the hands of Dr. James V. Russell and his medical staff.

The boys who will report for training are:

Chuck Makes 55 Saves.

In addition to the intercity bouts the Jan. 6 card will include eight bouts to determine the various weight championships in the junior C. Y. O. tournament. These bouts will precede the main fights of the evening.

W. J. Campbell, business manager of the Catholic Youth organization, reports an increasing demand for tickets for the bouts. He said that half of the house had already been sold.

Nichols Again Cancels Bout at Stadium

Georgie Nichols, Buffalo, N. Y., light heavyweight, who recently was dethroned by the National Boxing association for failure to defend his title, yesterday for the third time canceled a ten round bout with Martin Levandowski at the Chicago Stadium. This match, scheduled for Thursday night, was co-featured with the ten rounder between Tommy Paul, N. B. A. featherweight titleholder, and Fidel La Barba. Bob Olin, New York, has been substituted for Nichols.

Upon his arrival yesterday with his stablemate, Paul, Nichols announced that he would be unable to go through with the Levandowski match due to an injury to his right knee. He will undergo an examination at the Illinois athletic commission today. In the event the commission insists Nichols meet Levandowski or face suspension, Nichols said he would go through with the contest.

Canceled Nov. 30 Bout.

Last Nov. 30 Nichols signed to face Levandowski at the Stadium, but shortly before the bout was to be held he informed Nate Lewis, matchmaker, that he had injured his leg and was unable to go through with the match. The show was postponed to Dec. 9 because King Levinsky became too ill to fight Primo Carnera. Nichols said he would be able to battle Levandowski on the new date. A few days later he canceled the match again.

The Buffalo southpaw won the N. B. A. 175 pound tournament at the Stadium a year ago, beating five opponents, including Dave Maier, Billy Jones, and Lou Scozza.

Lost Four Bouts.

Since that time, nine months ago, Nichols failed to cash in on his championship. He had four overweight matches, losing to Lou Scozza, George Manley, Ham Jenkins, and Adolph Heuser. The defeats caused loss of much prestige and his standing received another blow when he was dethroned as champion by the N. B. A.

Paul boxed five rounds yesterday at Kid Howard's gymnasium for his match with LaBarba. He went three rounds with Lou Vine and two with Al DeRose. DeRose was knocked out late in the second round.

After his match with La Barba Tommy will return to Buffalo to start training for a title bout with Kid Chocolate, New York state's titleholder, on Feb. 6.

N. B. A. Suspends Chocolate.

The bout will not be recognized as a championship contest by the N. B. A., however. Chocolate was suspended by the association several months ago for refusing to go through with a bout at Detroit. The ban is not recognized by the New York athletic commission, which is not a member of the N. B. A.

LaBarba sparred four rounds yesterday at Trafton's gymnasium, two each with Mickey McGuire and George Engle. Fidel expects to weigh 127 pounds for Paul, who will scale 124½. The title limit is 126 pounds.

Damen Loses to Hennepin Five, 26 to 19

The list of undefeated teams in the Knights of Columbus Basketball league was reduced to three yesterday when Damen, setting the pace in the West division, took a 26 to 19 defeat from Hennepin-Shields, the league champion. Damen led until the middle of the first half, when Red Hayes, former St. Viator star, made three baskets to put Hennepin in front. Husfield and Hallessey clinched the game in the second half with 11 points between them.

Loyola-Hyde Park, in the South division; St. Cyr, in the North, and Quigley, in the South end, are the sole unbeaten quintets remaining in the league. All won their games yesterday.

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

VIOLENT DEATHS INCREASE IN '32; SUICIDES HIGHER

But Murders Fall Off in Cook County.

Violent deaths in Cook county increased 3.3 per cent during the county's fiscal year which ended last Nov. 30, as compared with similar deaths recorded in 1931. Murder declined 7.1 per cent, other homicides dwindled 11.1 per cent, but suicides increased 11.5 per cent during the year, according to a report completed yesterday by Coroner Frank J. Walsh.

In 1931 the total number of deaths recorded in his office was 3,846, but in 1932 the total was 3,975. The records show that murders of 1931 numbered 350, while in 1932 there were 25 less. Homicides other than murder for the two years totaled, respectively, 188 and 167. Suicides for 1931 numbered 618, while in 1932 these deaths aggregated 699.

The Most Dangerous Age.

The coroner's records show that 392 minors and 3,583 adults came to deaths by violence in 1932. The report also shows that the most dangerous age in the average life comes during the decade between 40 and 50. A total of 732 persons whose ages fell within that decade suffered violent deaths. The second most dangerous decade is that from 30 to 40. The report shows 716 persons were killed in that age bracket. The least dangerous decade is that from 10 years to 20. Only 280 persons whose ages were within those limits were killed.

During the year 926 women and 3,049 men were killed. Of these persons 1,845 were married and 1,311 single, 247 were widowers, and 203 were widows. Those who were divorced totaled 120 and there were 249 victims whose marriage status was undetermined.

Automobile accidents accounted for 1,157 deaths, the largest single cause during the fiscal year. Thus far since Jan. 1, 1932, automobile fatalities total 1,092. Suicides and homicides in order are the second and third largest contributors to the death totals in the coroner's report.

234 End Lives with Guns.

His records show that 234 persons took their lives by shooting themselves and 171 hanged themselves. Poison took 120 lives, 34 jumped from windows or balconies, 75 asphyxiated themselves, 34 slashed their wrists or throats with knives, 24 drowned, and one man drove his automobile over an abutment, while another set fire to his own clothing.

The homicides included 366 persons shot to death during robberies, exchanges of fire between police and fugitives, gang rides, etc. Two others died of heart failure during holdups.

The death reports disclosed that 12 men died from alcoholism. Sixty-four men were accidentally asphyxiated, 151 died from accidental burns, 95 drowned while swimming, and 430 died from injuries suffered in accidental falls. Six persons died in the county as the result of airplane accidents.

'Hot-cha' Gardner of Radio Marries Josephine Larkin

Frederick, Md., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Richard B. Baumgardner, radio entertainer, and Mrs. Josephine Larkin, stage actress, were married here today at 4 p. m. by the Rev. Amos John Traver, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran church of Frederick.

Baumgardner, who is known as Dick "Hot-cha" Gardner, and Mrs. Larkin were visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Baumgardner here over the holidays.

He gave his age as 24 and Mrs. Larkin, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Larkin of London, England, said she was 27 and a widow.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

HAROLD TEEN—NOT EVEN TWO PRICES

ASK R.F.C. TO BUY $6,500,000 BONDS OF RELIEF ISSUE

Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller, and Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, left yesterday afternoon for Washington, D. C., as the advance guard of the group of Cook county representatives who will ask the Reconstruction Finance corporation to buy $6,500,000 of the 17 million dollar bond issue for which the county could find no bidders.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the relief commission; Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton, and a special committee of county commissioners including Peter M. Kelly, Miss Amelia Sears, Mrs. Marie Plumb, and President Emmett Whealan will leave for Washington today. The application for the loan will be presented to the commission through Gov. Emmerson either today or tomorrow.

The money is needed to supply funds for relief of the idle during the month of January. Yesterday some of the county commissioners expressed the hope that the Reconstruction Finance corporation would take the whole bond issue. They pointed out that if such an arrangement could be made it would be much better for the county than if the bonds were sold here. The Reconstruction Finance corporation asks only 3 per cent interest and will take the bonds at par.

CATCHES YOUTHS STEALING COAL; 2 SHOT IN FIGHT

Two men were shot and seriously wounded and a third was beaten yesterday in a fight that started when a railroad detective caught two youths stealing coal on the tracks of the Belt Line railroad at 73d street.

Those shot are Thomas McGarry, 7130 University avenue, the railroad operative, and Louis Benelli, 56 years old, 7240 South California avenue.

McGarry sought to arrest Benelli's 21 year old son, Rocco, and John De Grigorio, 20 years old, whom he caught pilfering from coal cars. De Grigorio resisted and was struck on the head with the detective's pistol. Young Benelli then fled to his home, followed by McGarry.

Seeing his son in trouble the elder Benelli ran out with a shotgun and fired a charge of buckshot which struck the detective. McGarry returned the fire, wounding Benelli in the right shoulder and right side. De Grigorio and Louis Benelli were taken to the Bridewell hospital and McGarry to the Holy Cross hospital. Rocco Benelli was arrested by the Lawndale police.

Two Gunmen Rob Grocer of $1,000 Holiday Receipts

Peter Chentes, proprietor of the Chatham grocery, 7900 Langley avenue, was robbed of $1,000, proceeds of the holiday sales, by two armed bandits who seized him as he opened the store yesterday. They forced him to open the safe and fled, leaving Chentes bound and gagged in a rear room.

SERIES OF DAMAGED RESTAURANT WINDOWS PROVE POLICE PUZZLE

New York, Dec. 26.—[Special.]—Twenty-four perforated restaurant windows in Brooklyn and Manhattan presented a mystery to the police today. All the windows were damaged between 3:30 a. m. and 4 p. m., ten of them in units of the Horn & Hardart company chain, the rest in units of Bickford's, Inc.

Only one of the damaged windows yielded a clew as to how the damage was effected several small round white pebbles such as may be found on the seashore. They were picked up in Broadway near a damaged Horn & Hardart restaurant.

Whether the pebbles had been the missiles used by the vandals had not been determined. All the other damaged restaurants failed to yield a trace as to what had caused the breakage.

The motive of the vandals was a mystery. The police, however, were inclined to the theory that the attacks were the result of restaurant labor disputes. Officials of both chains said they had no knowledge of such trouble.

Inky Fog Envelops Paris; Even Pedestrians Collide

PARIS, Dec. 26.—(AP)—An inky pall of fog today enveloped this "city of light." It made traffic dangerous and even caused pedestrians to collide on the sidewalks. Taxis skidded on the rain swept streets and there were many collisions. Towards noon the darkness lifted slightly.

ARMOUR ERASES OPERATING LOSS BY BUYING BONDS

Operations Deficit for '32 Is $3,857,000.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Armour & Co. erased an operating loss and substituted a profit in 1932 by purchasing its own bonds at depreciated prices, the annual report issued last night shows.

The company's operating loss was $3,857,565 for the fiscal year ended Oct. 29. This was materially smaller than in 1931 when the big packing corporation rolled up a $17,339,000 deficit from operations.

The company's profit for 1932 was $1,662,539 before dividends. Payments on the guaranteed preferred stock of Armour & Co. of Delaware, charged to surplus, were $4,188,581.

Reduces Funded Debt.

Profit arising from the purchase of the bonds was $5,520,000. These purchases reduced first mortgage bond indebtedness to $96,251,400, as compared with $118,433,000 a year earlier.

It was necessary to tap surplus to pay the dividends on the guaranteed stocks. The result was a reduction in surplus to $17,234,320 from $21,804,305. The difference represents the excess of payments over profit.

The company did nearly as large a business last year as in 1931, but the total sales fell from $468,000,000 to $468,000,000 because of the lower prices prevailing. The difference in dollar volume of business is accounted for almost entirely by the decline in prices.

Inventory Loss Is Lower.

The company's inventory loss in 1932, due to falling prices, was approximately $10,000,000 as compared with $22,000,000 in the preceding year.

T. G. Lee, president, says in his report that drastic reductions were made in expenses and operating costs. At the present time he states comparative operating costs are on a basis materially below last year.

Current assets of the company on Oct. 29 were $118,196,000 against current liabilities of $11,427,365. There were no bank loans.

Cherishes No Illusions.

In his letter to stockholders President Lee says: "The policy of the management is to so conduct our business as to take into realistic account the actual conditions which surround us, cherishing no illusions as to immediate improvement in business however determinedly we seek to bring about that improvement.

"The fact which cannot be escaped is that prices at which we must currently sell our goods are the lowest which have prevailed in the present century.

"The public, even in an acute depression, will buy our products in ample volume, but only at drastically reduced prices in line with the value of competing products. Our task is to bring our costs within current values, so that our business will be adjusted to present realities and ready to respond to any improvement in actual economic conditions."

The average selling price of the company's products declined approximately 25 per cent last year, Mr. Lee stated. Inventories stood at $52,514,000 at the close of the year, a reduction of $17,054,000 as compared with a year earlier.

Offer Finance Plans for Two Large Hotels

BY AL CHASE.

Reorganization plans for two tall apartment hotels on the near north side have been submitted to the bondholders by the protective committee for bonds underwritten by the Garard Trust company. The properties, which are security for bond issues amounting to approximately $1,500,000, are the sixteen story North State Parkway [also known as the Canterbury Court apartments] at 1214-20 North State parkway, and the thirteen story Park Dearborn apartments, at the southwest corner of Dearborn and Goethe streets.

ALDIS J. BROWNE.

Title to both has been acquired for the benefit of the bondholders, and the management of the buildings is now under the supervision of the committee, which is composed of William C. Cook, chairman; Oscar E. Aleshire, Aldis J. Browne, Ward C. Castle, George E. Keys, John R. Magill, and Charles M. Thompson. Aymer D. Davis is secretary. Walter C. Senne, of Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin, is counsel. Arrangements have been made for institutional loans to finance the reorganizations.

Under the plan announced for the North State Parkway, foreclosure proceedings may be avoided if all bonds are deposited. This property contains 180 one, two, and three room furnished suites. It is security for a $725,000 Garard Trust company issue, paid down to $665,000.

Trustee to Get Title.

The new loan, for ten years at 5 per cent, will be in the form of notes secured by a first mortgage, against which funds will be drawn as needed to the extent of $140,000. Out of this $38,000 will be paid in connection with the acquisition of the equity and furnishings, and approximately $55,000 for taxes for 1929, 1930, 1931 and 1932.

The property has been operated for the benefit of the bondholders since Oct. 27, 1932, during which time the entire income has been used to pay current expenses and unpaid bills. Title is to be vested in the Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee, and trust certificates of beneficial interest will be issued to depositing bondholders.

After the payment of interest on the new mortgage, the income will be used for operating expenses, taxes and repairs and for establishing necessary reserves. Any net surplus will be distributed among the holders of trust certificates to the extent of $4 for each trust unit, representing an old $100 bond. Any remainder will be used for a sinking fund for retirement of trust certificates.

Foreclosure Started.

A similar plan has been adopted for the Park Dearborn apartments, except that foreclosure proceedings have been instituted and are to proceed to sale within the next month, at which time the committee plans to bid in the property. The building contains a restaurant, stores and 204 furnished, one, two and three room suites. It is security for an $850,000 bond issue, which has been paid down to $800,000.

A new reorganization loan with a maximum limit of $240,000 is contemplated. The acquisition of the equity and furnishings and the foreclosure costs and distribution will require approximately $127,000, it is stated, while the taxes for 1928, 1929, 1930, and 1931 will be about $52,000.

The property has been operated for the benefit of the bondholders since Aug. 11, 1932, and on Nov. 1, 1932, there was on hand $4,286, which will be applied on the reorganization expenses. Bondholders of both issues who have not yet deposited their securities have been asked to do so in order that the two reorganizations can be completed as quickly as possible.

PLAN NEW TYPE HOUSE AT COST OF $850 TO $2,000

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Col. W. B. Greeley, head of the West Coast Lumberman's association, announced today the lumber industry of the Pacific Northwest foresaw a shortage of small, modern homes and had planned a series of residences which can be built for $850 to $2,000.

These houses are based on a new principle—interlocking joints and mortises cut into the lumber; nails being used only for additional security—and the association is making plans available to individual architects.

With these plans, said Col. Greely, "we foresee heavy timber construction, used at 50 per cent of the present cost in many places where other materials have had an advantage. This will mean added employment and greater money return to Washington and Oregon.

"It seems evident to us that the long decline in prices, which began in July, 1929, reached its end in August, 1932. From now on our industry expects a stable or an upward movement in lumber prices."

Slump Takes $300,000,000 Income of Ohio Taxpayers

Washington, D. C., Dec. 26.—(AP)—The business slump of 1929-1930 lopped off more than $300,000,000 from the income of approximately 200,000 Ohio taxpayers filing returns with the bureau of internal revenue and brought an operating deficit to 13,365 of Ohio's 25,000 corporations. The figures were made public today by the bureau of internal revenue in an analysis of income tax figures for 1930.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company

To Holders of Twenty-Year Four and One-Half Per Cent. Convertible Bonds, due March 1, 1933:

Holders of more than 84% of the Bonds have accepted the offer of the Railroad Company to pay 50% of the principal amount of the Bonds, with accrued interest, in cash and to deliver, in respect of the remaining 50%, a like principal amount of its 5% Refunding and General Mortgage Bonds, Series F, due March 1, 1996.

The offer must be accepted by holders of substantially all the Bonds in order that the transaction may be consummated. To insure prompt consummation of the Plan, and in view of the fact that the Bonds are widely scattered, and many holders who desire to accept the offer have been unable to present their Bonds within the time fixed, the Railroad Company will continue, up to the close of business on January 9, 1933, to pay in cash, upon presentation of Bonds for stamping, 10% on account of the principal thereof.

Bonds should be presented promptly for stamping to
120 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Stamped bonds will be forthwith returned to the bondholders, together with the 10% cash payment, which bondholders are to retain, even if the Plan is not carried out.

No further extension of the time within which bondholders may receive an advance cash payment will be made.

Copies of a letter giving the details of the Railroad Company's offer and a form of letter of transmittal which may be used for forwarding the Bonds may be obtained from the Railroad Company.

Dated Baltimore, Md., December 27, 1932.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY,
by GEORGE M. SHRIVER,
Senior Vice-President.

Reserve Bank Reports Gains in Employment

After eight consecutive months of declining employment, the tide turned in the Seventh Federal reserve district with moderate increases both in pay rolls and jobs in the period from Oct. 15 to Nov. 15.

Increasing forces at manufacturing plants, particularly in the automobile and railway car shops, offset recessions in other industries.

The chemicals group, the Chicago Reserve bank report reported yesterday, "gained moderately in both number of men and their earnings, contrary to seasonal trend, and leather products increased employment fractionally but suffered a sharp contraction in wage payments. The remaining seven groups recorded losses in both items. Greatest reductions were noted in the stone, clay, glass, food, rubber, and textile groups."

Nonmanufacturing employment showed little change for the period. Coal mining and merchandising employment advanced, and utilities pay rolls moved up, although employing fewer men. Construction industries stayed in the dumps with more than seasonal decline.

Anticipate 1933 Boom in British Pleasure Cruises

LONDON, Dec. 26.—(AP)—With nearly 300 trips arranged, a big boom in pleasure cruises from British ports is anticipated in 1933.

Trading will be resumed today in all the principal commodity and security markets following the Christmas shutdown. Foreign as well as American exchanges were closed yesterday.

Mortgage Tax Exemption.

TO THE EDITOR: I own a piece of property in Terre Haute, Ind., and one of the local banks held a five year first mortgage on same. At the expiration of this loan the bank requested that the note be paid. I borrowed money from my brother and paid off the loan and secured a release.

In the state of Indiana $1,000 tax exemption can be claimed if you owe that amount on a mortgage. Does the mortgage have to be paid by a bank or building and loan association, or can I have the present loan recorded and claim exemption?—A. G. W.

ANSWER: In Indiana you are allowed $1,000 tax exemption on the mortgage mentioned providing the amount of the mortgage is in excess of $2,000 and recorded. If the mortgage is less than $2,000, the amount of exemption is only one-half the amount of the mortgage. For example: If the mortgage is $1,500 you would be allowed $750 exemption.

Mortgage Past Due.

TO THE EDITOR: I have a mortgage drawn up to run for five years. The interest has always been paid promptly. Is this mortgage safe? It was recorded five years ago. How long can this loan run without renewing?—R. G. D.

ANSWER: We cannot determine the degree of safety included in your loan, but if the interest is paid promptly your investment cannot be considered bad. There is an old saying which holds true, "A mortgage is always a mortgage until it is paid." However, we assume your present loan is past due and recommend that you have an extension agreement drawn up if you intend to extend the present loan. It is necessary to make out new interest notes as well.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OPERATING NET BELOW YEAR AGO

Net operating income of the Illinois Central system during November was $1,064,178, a decrease of $690,483 from the same month of last year. Revenues totaled $7,124,037, which fell short of November, 1931, by $1,738,715.

In the first 11 months of this year net income was $11,342,980, a gain of $1,026,141 over 1931, while total revenues were $82,227,775, a drop of $26,322,877 from last year.

GROUP FORMED TO REPRESENT RAIL BOND ISSUE

A committee has been formed to represent the interests of bondholders of the Central of Georgia Railway, now in receivership. Twelve issues are involved and the committee urges "joint action for consultation with the receiver and investigation of the situation."

"If serious conflicts of interest arise among the various issues," it adds, "bondholders represented on the committee contemplate the organization of such separate committees as may at the time seem desirable."

ACTIVE MARKET SENDS PRICES OF LIGHT HOGS UP

Advances in Some Grades Sharpest of Year.

Lightweight hogs swung up 10@15c more to the highest point in three weeks on an unusually buoyant trade yesterday. Top underweights and pigs advanced to $3.50, which shows an advance of 40c, or 13 per cent, compared with the low point of last week.

Practically all swine weighing under 225 lbs shared in this upturn. These kinds had a market all their own. Some of the sharpest advances of the year in light hogs at far eastern markets has expanded demand for small hogs at all points in the middle west the last few days.

Yesterday's shipments from Chicago at 5,500 were second largest of the season. Butcher grades, however, failed to share in the activity or strength and finished barely steady with the close of last week. Local packers put up a bearish front and were more independent than usual since none of them were killing hogs yesterday and would have to carry over whatever they bought.

Heavier Hogs Weaker.

Hogs weighing 250@300 lbs sold steady to weak. The general average for the day at $3.15 showed 5c gain and was 25c, or 9 per cent above the low daily average of last week. Underweights have been rapidly pulling away from the rest of the hogs. Yesterday's top and average prices were 35c apart, showing the widest spread since middle of October. While light are selling 30@40c above the low of last week, butcher grades show only 15@25c advance. A feature of the trade lately has been the "comeback" of heavy packing sows that sagged badly last week. Those selling at $2.00 and below at the low point show gains of 25@35c in four days, coming up 10@15c yesterday, with prime smooth 450@500 lb averages around $2.25.

Cattle receipts were light yesterday, but the supply carried a big number of the plain to medium grades of long fed steers that have been difficult to sell lately. The beef tonnage in the run was greater than receipts figures indicated because of the bigger proportion of heavy cattle. These moved slowly at barely steady rates and found a late clearance, despite the activity and higher level of prices in light steers and yearling cattle. Top sales of light cattle up to $7.25 averaging 1,143 lbs equaled the highest point in more than two weeks.

Lambs Advance Again.

The lamb market resumed its upward course again yesterday and reached the highest point in three weeks. All interests were aggressive, particularly when light supplies were reported on the way for today. Eastern buyers carried urgent orders for top quality lambs, but they met plenty of local competition.

The clearance was the fastest for Monday in many weeks and prices mostly 10 per cent above the low spot of two weeks ago. More than 2,500 fed western lambs of choice quality sold to shippers at $6.50 during the first rounds. Large local packers bought top grades at $6.40@6.50, while natives sold at $6.40 and below. The supply of fed westerns was small, but quality graded better than usual. Gains for the day amounted to 15@25c in most sales. Matured sheep and yearlings were firm.

Report Canada May Trade Ry. Supplies for Soviet Oil

MONTREAL, Dec. 26.—(AP)—The Gazette tomorrow will say that Canadian railroad material may be shipped in large quantities to Russia in 1933 in exchange for soviet oil, providing the Canadian government will permit the continued importation of oil and the negotiation of commercial agreements between manufacturers in the dominion and soviet authorities.

DAVENPORT BANK TO GET $7,000,000 LOAN FROM FEDERAL GOV'T

Rock Island, Ill., Dec. 26.—Announcement was made this afternoon that the Reconstruction Finance corporation will tomorrow advance $7,000,000 to the Union Savings Bank and Trust company of Davenport which will be made available immediately for fifty per cent of the deposit liability of the Union bank to be paid out through the Davenport Bank and Trust company. The Union bank will open tomorrow and remain open daily until depositors have obtained proper credentials to withdraw their funds through the Davenport bank.

GOV'T FINANCES PRESENT GLOOMY PICTURE TO BANK

Guaranty Trust Co. Warns Insolvent Cities.

Refusal of public officials to adjust public expenditures to the new scale of revenue has brought certain state and local governments to a position of outright insolvency from which it will be difficult, if not impossible, to extricate them without outside assistance.

This is a summary of the views on the condition of public finance in the monthly economic review of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

The bank sees little prospect that the federal government will strike a balance between expenditures and income in the next fiscal year unless economic recovery sets in at a pace rapid enough to boost revenues substantially above the level of current estimates. Despite the gloomy picture of federal finances, however, the banks find that the condition of the state and local governments is even gloomier.

Deficit After Economies.

Assuming all the economy measures recommended in the President's budget are adopted, the federal government will still show a deficit of $307,192,137 in the fiscal year 1933-'34, the bank declares.

The review points out that the federal government closed its fiscal year last June with the largest peacetime deficit in the history of the country. It then goes on to say that the prospects for the adoption of the President's economy measures are far from clear.

"Unfortunately, the financial position of the federal government, dubious as it is, is not the most disquieting feature of the situation," the bank continues. "Certain state and local governments—particularly the latter—have allowed themselves to drift into a position of outright insolvency, from which they will find it difficult, if not impossible, to extricate themselves without outside assistance.

Large Cities in Default.

"Some of the largest cities in the United States are in default on their current obligations and the revenues by means of which those obligations must be met have failed through refusal or inability of property owners to pay high taxes on real estate that no longer yields an income and is virtually without a market.

"The general situation," the review continues, "may be summarized by the statement that the great majority of public officials have not yet shown any adequate appreciation of the need for deflation of governmental costs that has been imposed by the general deflation of values and income.

Fail to Readjust.

"While business establishments, as a rule, have readjusted themselves to a new scale of income and expenditures, public officials are still persistently trying to 'carry on' at the levels established at a time when underlying conditions were radically different from what they are today."

Holding its Unchanging Character

. . . to the interest of people who have come to depend upon this institution

FOR many years firms and families have been bringing here their affairs of money and estate. They expect this institution to hold to the things for which it has always stood. It seems to The Northern Trust Company that this is a direct obligation.

So with the changing years The Northern Trust Company expands its services and keeps modern its methods. But it does not change its concept of banking, its full acceptance of the trust obligation.

It remains, as always, ready to do everything it can to co-operate with firms and individuals who bank here.

It exercises in the management of its trust estates, every care and conserving action that a trustee can undertake.

To its savings depositors as to customers in every department, it continues to offer service based upon the strength of conservative banking.

This old institution invites other families of large or of moderate means to bring here their problems of estate. It invites the commercial banking business of additional conservative firms, as well as the personal checking accounts of conservative men and women. It welcomes all people who want to save.

THE DIRECTORS OF THE NORTHERN TRUST COMPANY ARE:

A. WATSON ARMOUR, Director, Armour & Company
SEWELL L. AVERY, President, U. S. Gypsum Company

BANK OF FRANCE GOLD DECLINES, BUT RATIO RISES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Dec. 26.—Since the gold reserve at the Bank of France decreased 75,000,000 francs in the week covered by Thursday's report, along with a decrease of 60,000,000 in foreign credits, the bank's combined reserve of foreign exchange and gold was reduced for the week ended last Friday by 135,000,000 francs, or $5,300,000.

Despite this reduction, the ratio of gold cover rose from 77.93 to 78.16—this because the bank's liabilities were also reduced through the shrinkage of circulation.

It is pointed out that the gold reserve now exceeds outstanding circulation by 1,283,000,000 francs, or $48,000,000. In view of that situation, the gold exports which are expected are considered to be a matter of small importance.

No Concern Is Felt.

Even if the outgo were to continue, it would arouse anxiety in financial circles, where the fact is borne in mind that, since the beginning of 1931, thirty billion francs in gold, or $1,176,000,000, has been taken into the Bank of France.

Private banks have long been complaining of the plethora of credit supplies on the existing money market as a consequence of the abnormally high figure reached by the gold reserve in the Bank of France.

Bankers, therefore, do not regret the decrease in gold reserves, believing that it could reach considerable proportions without affecting the position of the Bank of France or in any way threatening the solidity of the franc.

Politics Is Factor.

For that to happen, something else than the present international balance against France would be necessary. In reality the influence of the gold exodus on sentiment will depend largely on how the French public regards the movement, and that in turn will depend on internal politics.

Premier Boncour is evidently seeking to tranquillize public opinion, and choice of Cheron as financial minister goes some distance to effect that purpose. Still, on the other hand, the new cabinet will be more bound up with the Socialist party, which causes some uneasiness in certain quarters of the public.

OFFICIAL WEATHER FORECAST.

Wisconsin—Increasing cloudiness, probably rain turning to snow in extreme north, warmer in southeast, colder in northwest Tuesday; Wednesday generally fair, colder in east and south.

Lower Michigan—Increasing cloudiness, warmer, possibly rain in extreme north Tuesday; Wednesday unsettled and colder, probably snow flurries in extreme west and extreme north.

Upper Michigan—Increasing cloudiness, probably rain turning to snow Tuesday; Wednesday unsettled and colder, probably snow flurries in north portion.

Liquid Carbonic.

Please give me information on the status of Liquid Carbonic corporation. What effect would beer legislation have on the company? Thank you for the information you gave me on Swift. —E. T. J.

Liquid Carbonic corporation is one of the largest manufacturers of soda fountains and carbonic gas. It also carries on an important business in the manufacture of bottle labeling machinery and bottler extracts.

Operations in the fiscal year ended Sept. 30, 1932, were affected by decreased sales, narrower profit margins, and collection losses. Sales were $6,814,000, a 31 per cent decline from sales of $9,858,000 for the preceding year. Net loss last year was $441,000, against net income of $1,086,000, or $3.17 per share, for the year ended Sept. 30, 1931. Net income for the year ended Sept. 30, 1930, was $1,786,000, against net of $1,764,000 for the preceding year.

Plant writedowns will reduce future depreciation charges $100,000 a year.

On Sept. 30, 1932, current assets were $3,646,000 and current liabilities were $1,432,000. Cash assets were $569,000 and notes payable were $150,000. Ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 8.2 to 1. Working capital was $7,213,000, against $7,909,000 on Sept. 30, 1930, the decline resulting largely because of capital expenditures and payment of unearned dividends.

There is no funded debt. Capitalization consists solely of 342,406 shares of no par stock. Earnings in excess of $1 a share per year, not to exceed 20 per cent of net profit, may be used to purchase stock at prevailing market prices for the management in accordance with a profit sharing plan.

Modification of the Volstead act to permit increased alcoholic content of beverages should enable the company to sell more equipment for cleaning, filling, capping, and labeling of bottles. The company also manufactures beer pumps. Whether there would be increased sales in that line would depend on terms of the legislation. There is the possibility of reduced sales of soft drink companies, from which Liquid Carbonic now derives the major portion of its business. This factor also appears to depend on terms of the legislation. The company does not contemplate manufacturing beer.

Consol. British American Mines.

I have some stock of Consolidated British American Mines. Is it worth anything?—B. F.

Consolidated British American Mines company had capital stock of $7,000,000. Properties and operations were not reported. It was classed as a stock selling scheme. Its stock is probably worthless.

Texas Oil Pipe Line Profits Triple Allowable Return

Amarillo, Tex., Dec. 26.—(AP)—Net earnings of oil pipeline companies in Texas in 1931 averaged 29.67 per cent, or about three times the return allowed by law, Earnest O. Thompson, member of the railroad commission, said here today in releasing a report compiled by the commission. An adjustment of the rates, Thompson said, will be taken up by the commission at its meeting in Austin Wednesday.

PERSIA'S LONDON MINISTER QUITS OVER OIL FIGHT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Dec. 26.—Timdor Tash, the Persian court minister who strongly opposed the abrupt cancellation of the Anglo-Persian Oil company's concession, has fulfilled his threat and left the government, according to information here.

The Daily Herald says he was dismissed because the Persian nation regarded him as mainly responsible for having allowed the oil dispute, in which he was one of the chief negotiators, to develop into an international crisis.

There is a growing belief in Teheran that the Persian case will not be pressed hard before the league of nations and that Persia's honor will be satisfied by the payment of a sum into the Persian treasury on account of the royalties to which the shah believes his country is entitled.

LEHIGH VALLEY COAL CO. EXTENDS EXCHANGE OFFER

Time for deposits of the Lehigh Valley Coal company first mortgage 4 per cent and 5 per cent bonds, maturing Jan. 1, has been extended to Dec. 31. To date more than 80 per cent of the outstanding bonds have been deposited under the recently announced plan for paying on each $1,000 obligation $500 in cash and $500 in five year 5 per cent gold notes of the coal company, guaranteed by the Lehigh Valley railroad, which is also guarantor of the bonds.

Baltimore & Ohio Extends Time for Deposit of Bonds

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has extended to Jan. 9 the time for acceptance by holders of the 4½ per cent bonds, maturing March 1 next, of the offer to pay 50 per cent of the principal amount in cash and to deliver a like amount in refunding and general mortgage 5s. No further extension will be granted, the railroad announced.

Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes

National External Gold Loan of 1922

Forty Year Eight Per Cent. Secured External Gold Bonds, due May 1, 1962

Seven Per Cent. Secured External Gold Bonds, Series B, due May 1, 1962.

To the Holders of the Above Bonds:

The undersigned have been requested and have agreed to act as a Committee for the protection of the interests of the holders of the above described Bonds.

The Government of the Kingdom of Yugoslavia (formerly called "Serbs, Croats and Slovenes") has announced its inability to acquire the necessary foreign exchange to enable it to transfer funds to New York for the payment of the interest and sinking fund due November 1, 1932 on these Bonds, and in doing so stated —"The Minister of Finances is desirous of arranging such temporary measures as can be taken during the present abnormal period in the best interests of the Bondholders. The Government does not desire to impair its obligations, but rather to find some method of meeting the present crisis."

In view of this situation, it is important that a duly authorized committee should be placed at once in a position to negotiate with the Kingdom for the resumption at the earliest practicable time of the service of the above Bonds, and on other pertinent matters in the Bondholders' interest.

The Committee is not now calling for the deposit of Bonds, but requests all holders of Bonds at this time to advise the Committee of their holdings and to authorize the Committee to represent them in the course of any negotiations which may arise.

The form of authorization to the Committee expressly provides that it may at any time be revoked by the Bondholder by notice in writing and that no liability of any kind for expenses of the Committee is assumed by the Bondholder by the execution and delivery of the authorization. Copies of the form of authorization are available upon application to the Secretary of the Committee. You are requested to communicate with the Secretary at once.

In view of the appointment of a Receiver for the Central of Georgia Railway Company on December 19, 1932, the undersigned, representing the holders of large amounts of outstanding obligations of said Railway Company, have consented to act as a Committee for holders of the above named securities.

Under present conditions, the Committee believes that the interest of all bondholders will best be protected, and expense saved, by joint action for consultation with the Receiver and investigation of the situation. If serious conflicts of interest arise among the various issues, bondholders represented on the Committee contemplate the organization of such separate committees as may at the time seem desirable.

No deposits of securities are requested, but security holders are requested to notify the Secretary of the Committee of their names, addresses and the amounts of their respective holdings so as to enable the Committee to communicate with them when, in its opinion, further action is required.
